Auxiliary Police Begin Course for Defense Projects

Captains and Lieutenants Represent Towns of County; to Train Assistants

About 50 auxiliary police captains and lieutenants representing each town of Ulster county began a seven-week course in police work Monday night.

The course, set up under Civil Defense, is intended to acquaint the auxiliary police officers of each locality with the essentials of police work and emergency services in wartime. The officers then are expected to pass on the instructions to the men under them in their own townships.

Under the direction of the county office of Civil Defense and Sheriff Cluett Schantz, instructions are given by members and officers of the New York State Police.

Cook Awaits Action On Lindbergh Law Kidnap Charges

Bodies of Five Persons Taken From Mine Shaft Near Joplin

San Diego, Calif., Jan. 16 (AP)—Desperado William E. Cook, suspected of killing eight persons, huddled ill and meek in jail here today as authorities prepared to press Lindbergh law kidnaping charges against him.

Almost simultaneous with the announcement of the ex-convict's capture in Mexico, came word yesterday that the bodies of all five members of the Carl Mosser family, who he is charged with murdering, had been found near Cook's home town of Joplin, Mo.

Discovered in water in an unused mine shaft were the bodies of Mosser, 33; his wife, Thelma, 29; Ronald Dean, seven; Cary Carl, five, and Pamela Sue, three. All had been shot, the parents and older boy having been bound and gagged first.

They were last seen alive with Cook some two weeks ago. The finding of their blood-soaked auto near Tulsa, Okla., Jan. 3 touched off an exhaustive search for them and the 23-year-old badman.

Cook was flown here yesterday and arraigned on federal charges of kidnaping. He also is charged with fleeing to avoid prosecution on a charge of murdering Robert E. Dewey, 33, Seattle salesman, near Blythe, Calif., Jan. 6, and flight to avoid prosecution on Oklahoma robbery charges. A hearing was set for Jan. 29.

Got Drunk in Blythe

Cook told reporters he couldn't remember anything for two weeks after "I got drunk with a man in Blythe (Calif.) Christmas night."

Ill with dysentery, he had a fever of 101.

The desperado submitted to arrest without a struggle Sunday when Tinjuana Police Chief Francisco Kraus Morales and a posse confronted him in a cafe at Santa Rosalia, a small mining town 600 miles below the border on the Baja California peninsula.

With Cook were two prospectors, James Burke and Forrest Damron, both of El Centro, Calif. They said Cook had stopped their maroon sedan 40 miles below the border and forced them at gunpoint to drive to Santa Rosalia.

"Most of the seven days (we were with him)," said Burke, "Cook kept the gun in his lap with the trigger cocked. At night when he camped out, he sat with his back against a tree or rock with gun cocked. We were afraid to try to escape."

Chief Got Reports

Chief Morales was led to Santa Rosalia by reports from two mining men who said they had exchanged greetings with three men enroute to Santa Rosalia in a maroon sedan.

After Cook was reported seen in Winthrop, Ariz., with the Mossers on New Year's Day, the desperado dropped from sight until Jan. 6, when Sheriff's Deputy Homer Waldrip ran into him at Blythe, Calif.

Waldrip said Cook forced him into the deputy's car, drove him to the desert, robbed him and left him, after boasting that he had killed seven persons.

Drove to Yuma

Cook apparently drove to Yuma, Ariz., where he encountered Dewey, police said, shot him, propped the body in Waldrip's car and fled in Dewey's auto. This car was found 40 miles below the bor-

May Ballot In Senate on Troops' Use

Douglas Says He Will Force Issue Unless Administration Brings It to Vote

'Too Big' for HST

George, Nearly All GOP Senators Agree With Douglas

Washington, Jan. 16 (AP)—Democratic leaders today considered asking the Senate to approve the dispatch of American troops to Europe to bolster North Atlantic defenses.

Although President Truman has said he doesn't need Congress' approval of such a move, Senator McFarland of Arizona, the party floor leader, told a reporter:

"I have no objection to the Senate's voting on the general principle of whether we should support the Atlantic treaty with our military forces."

Senator Douglas (D.-Ill.) said he will force the issue if the administration does not move to bring the question to a vote.

Interested senators said the matter is being laid before the Democratic policy committee, with the possibility that a resolution approving the transfer of troops may be forthcoming soon.

Would Counter Wherry

This would counter a resolution offered by Senator Wherry of Nebraska, the Republican leader, to prohibit the transfer of any troops while Congress approves the action in advance. Wherry contends his proposal merely would delay a military decision and would not necessarily halt future troop transfers.

McFarland's statement indicated a change in thinking on the part of Democratic leaders. They had previously been inclined to bypass the issue now and settle it when the time comes for Congress to vote the money to send foot soldiers to Europe.

Douglas told his colleagues yesterday he will call for Senate action through a resolution of his own, if necessary, on the Brussels conference agreement—which he said may call for sending 10 U. S. divisions to Europe.

Too Big for President

The issue, Douglas declared, is too big for the President to settle on his own responsibility. Senator George (D-Ga.) and nearly all the Republicans who have spoken out have taken the same viewpoint.

Wherry defended his proposal in a speech prepared for the Senate today.

"The only purpose of this resolution is to hold in abeyance the assignment of United States troops to western Europe until the Congress, as the policy making branch of the government, acts upon the matter," he said.

Wherry sided with Senator Taft (R-Ohio) in challenging Mr. Truman's authority to act without approval of Congress. He agreed with Taft on the wisdom of building up U. S. air and sea forces. He called for a 100,000-plane air force.

Sees Sacrifice of Liberties

Taft, chairman of the G.O.P. policy committee, said in a New York speech last night that the people's "basic liberties" will be sacrificed if Congress doesn't insist on passing on the policy of sending troops to Europe. He declared:

"Whatever the right of the President may be, it seems to be

B-36s Make Secret Flight to Britain; Reason Withheld

Huge Craft Took 3 Days From Texas, Made Stopover in Maine

London, Jan. 1 (AP)—The first group of America's biggest bombers— the 10-engine B-36—ever to fly to Europe landed at Lakenheath Airport today after a mysterious flight from Texas.

The planes are capable of carrying the atom bomb more than 10,000 miles.

Six of the air giants arrived in the fight which started last Saturday from Carswell Air Force at Fort Worth, Texas, it was announced there. Headquarters of the U. S. Third Air Division here refused, however, to say how many planes made the trip.

Strategic Air Command Headquarters at Omaha, Neb., said the planes made one stop en route, at Limestone Air Force base in Maine. From there the planes flew a straight route to England.

This explained why the sky giants, capable of more than 400 miles an hour, took three days to make the trip from Texas to England, a distance of about 5,000 miles. Earlier S.A.C. had ordered that no reason be given why the planes took so long to get there.

England is only 5,000 miles from the Texas base and it would not take three days for the sky giants to make the trip. The only explanation offered by the Eighth Air Force in Fort Worth for the time lag was that the planes stopped some place on the way. The air force would not say where the stop was made.

No Reason Given

Earlier the Strategic Air Command at Omaha, Neb., had ordered that no reason be given why the planes, capable of more than 400 miles an hour, took so long to get here.

While the planes and crews are scheduled to return to Texas in a few days, there have been persistent rumors that B-36's would be stationed in England because of the worsening world situation.

Lakenheath Field, 70 miles northeast of London, was taken over by the Third Air Division in 1948 as a base for B-29 and B-50 training operations.

Led by Gerity

The "routine training mission" labeled "Operation UK" (United Kingdom) was led by Col. Thomas P. Gerity, commander of the Eighth Air Force's 11th Bomb Wing.

Training missions of the Eighth had previously been restricted to the Territory of Hawaii westward

Coalition Howls 'Socialism' at 'Fair Deal' Bills

Washington, Jan. 16 (AP)—Senator Byrd proposed today that Congress carve $7,000,000,000 out of President Truman's huge, new budget and raise taxes by $9,500,000,000 instead of the $16,000,000,000 the President suggested.

The Virginia Democrat, an outspoken foe of what he calls extravagant administration spending policies, said that plan would not deny a dollar needed for defense and produce a balanced budget well under the $71,594,000,000 the President asked.

Meanwhile, crying "socialism," the potent coalition of Republicans and southern Democrats in Congress made ready to war on a flock of "Fair Deal" measures the President put into his "national survival" budget, his estimates of government spending and revenues in the fiscal year starting July 1.

Assailed by G.O.P.

Top Republicans assailed the budget as a "spending-as-usual" plan for "the same old, tired socialist program."

They promised to crack down generally on non-defense spending.

Vast U. S. Outlay Brings Varied Reaction on Import

London, Jan. 16 (AP)—Applause tinged with amazement marked the reception in western Europe today of President Truman's new budget and its vast outlay for defense.

London's Liberal Star said the military spending figures "are so colossal that the mind is stunned by the very accumulation of digits." It added:

"The two facts which should be remembered about this biggest of all peace-time budgets are that the money must be found by the American taxpayer, and that at a word from Stalin it need never be spent at all."

A spokesman for the French foreign office called the budget "another assurance, if one were needed, that the United States is preparing to defend itself and help defend the rest of the free world."

Byrnes Asks Withdrawal Of U.S. Units

Ex-Presidential Aide, Now Governor of So. Carolina, Would Act, if U.N. Delays

'It's Time to Act'

Would Concentrate Full Strength in Europe as Deterrent to Reds

Columbia, S. C., Jan. 16 (AP)—James F. Byrnes, whom Franklin D. Roosevelt called assistant president, today became governor of South Carolina with a ringing call for American military concentration in Europe to deter Russian aggression.

He advocated withdrawal of forces from Korea unless the United Nations promptly declares China an aggressor, authorizes air attacks on enemy supply bases, and joins in a blockade of China.

"If the time is approaching when Russia will be ready to go to war," he declared in an inaugural speech bearing heavily on foreign affairs, "then it is not wise to have our army divided between Korea and Europe.

"To my mind western Europe is an indispensible first line in the defense of civilization. We should concentrate our forces in Europe.

"Self-preservation demands that we act before the Soviets strike," said the man who as secretary of state met many times with Russian diplomats.

'Must Rouse Friends'

"We must rouse our friends in Europe (and) impress on them that the time has come to stop talking and begin acting," he said.

On the home front, Byrnes contended there should be no delay in freezing wages and prices. The World War 2 director of economic stabilization and war mobilization insisted that every day such a freeze is delayed "there will be more inequities, higher prices and additional costs to the taxpayer."

In addition, he continued, "our hope must be that x x x the national administration will not urge either political proposals or Socialistic programs which are certain to divide our people."

In any event, however, South Carolina will "loyally support the foreign policy of the government of the United States," he promised.

"Unity" in support of American foreign policy is essential, he said, and "is not only our duty, it is our great opportunity."

'Last Clear Chance'

He asserted that "a united America is civilization's last clear chance for survival" while "a divided America is the greatest temptation to Soviet conquest."

Getting specific about Europe, Byrnes urged:

That the Western German republic "be treated on terms of equality" because its people "if treated fairly, will fight with us."

That military supplies should be sent to Spain "as rapidly as possible" since "Spain has more divisions of trained soldiers than any one of the western European governments."

That "we should seek the friendship of Tito and furnish military supplies to Yugoslavia."

That "we should impress upon Britain, France and all of western Europe that we want the American soldiers who fight in

General 'Ike' Says Quiet Is Soldier's Role

London, Jan. 16 (AP)—General "Ike" Eisenhower declared today that so long as Japan and Germany remained in the realm of politics "soldiers are obliged to keep their mouths shut."

The statement was made to a news conference in reply to a question as he was concluding the last part of his stay in London and preparing to leave for Lisbon, continuing his survey tour of the Atlantic Pact nations whose international army he now commands.

There was no reference either in questions or comment about the repeated British newspaper complaint that another general, Douglas MacArthur, often spoke out when the British wished he might remain quiet.

Refuses Answer

A British correspondent asked Eisenhower what he thought about the participation of a German army in the Atlantic defense setup.

"I would not have you think I was deliberately ducking a question," the general replied, "but when a problem becomes one for world statesmen and world political leaders, soldiers are by the very nature of their mission in the free world obliged to keep their mouths shut."

Asked if he felt the same way about Japan, he replied:

"So far as I am concerned."

The news conference at which Eisenhower spoke was the first on his tour in which he had agreed to answer questions. In his brief talk beforehand he expressed confidence, as he had before, in the capacity of the free western world to defend itself.

Traffic Gain 7.91 Over River Bridges

3 Spans Crossing Hudson Handle 397,994 More Vehicles in 1950

Travel over the three Hudson river bridges under jurisdiction of the New York State Bridge Authority increased by 397,994 vehicles in 1950 over 1949, the authority reported today.

The bridges handled 5,428,802 vehicles last year against 5,030,808 in 1949 for a per centage gain of 7.91.

The Rip Van Winkle Bridge near Catskill showed the highest percentage gain with 10.48 and an actual increase in vehicles of 117,293. The 1950 total was 1,246,368 and the 1949 was 1,129,075.

The Mid-Hudson at Poughkeepsie showed a gain of 163,455 in vehicles for a six per cent increase. The total last year was 2,885,672 as against 2,722,172 in 1949.

Higher in percentage gain was the Bear Mountain with 9.94, and its gain in vehicles was close to the Rip Van Winkle. It carried 1,296,807 vehicles in 1950 and 1,179,561 in 1949 for a gain of 117,246. This was only 47 less than the Rip Van Winkle gained for the year.

The Kingston-Rhinecliff ferry showed a gain of 1,744 in vehicles, but a loss of 7,598 in pedestrian travel. The ferry ran from April 5 to Dec. 26 in 1950 and showed a total of 74,817 vehicles as against 73,073 in 1949 when it ran from March 21 to Dec. 31.

The total pedestrian travel on the ferry was 25,107 in 1950 and 32,705 in 1949.

Point Is 17 Miles South Of Capital

Troops Quit Area

Soldiers Leave Wonju Wedge for Defensive Line

Tokyo, Jan. 16 (AP)—An allied tank-infantry combat team cracked through a shell of Communist resistance today and plunged into the airport city of Suwon. It is 17 air miles south of the Red-held capital of Seoul.

It was the fourth town—and first major objective—to fall to the United Nations troops in their big western front counterthrust—called a reconnaissance in force.

There was no indication that allied forces would remain in Suwon for any length of time.

A spokesman in the field explained that it is the usual practice on reconnaissance missions of this type to probe enemy positions, determine their strength, gather as much information as possible and then withdraw.

100 Reds Are Routed

The allied force routed about 100 Red troops in Suwon. The bulk of the Communist garrison had fled Monday under fierce allied bombing and strafing attacks. Hundreds of Reds were machinegunned on the road running north to Seoul.

The allied western drive began Monday south of Osan.

On the central front, allied forces pulled out of the Wonju wedge where for 16 days they had held off massed Red Korean attacks.

The U. S. Eighth Army announced the central front pullback to the defensive line set up after the retreat from Seoul. American, French and Dutch troops rode southward through breathtaking mountain passes, along sheer cliffs and around hairpin turns.

Artillery barrages and punishing air strikes covered the withdrawal. Villages flamed.

Location Not Given

Censorship prevented locating the new line. The communique said only:

"This redeployment will usher in a new phase" of the Sobaek Mountains battle. "The United Nations line has been straightened and shortened."

Censors now prohibit mention of any units smaller than the whole U. S. Eighth Army and Fifth Air Force. This was another day-to-day change which the censors say results from changing military conditions.

(Dispatches received and published Monday before the newest clamp-down identified the Wonju holding force as the U. S. Second Division and the attacking force south of Suwon as the Third Infantry Division. The Second Division included French, Dutch and South Korean troops as well as Americans. The third division, which was evacuated by sea in December from Hungnam in northeast Korea, included at that time Puerto Rican and American mainland troops.)

Garrisons Are Routed

AP Correspondent Stan Swinton, with the western front attack column, said the Americans rolled ahead after blistering allied air attacks had routed Red garrison troops from several villages and left hundreds of fleeing Communists along the northbound roads.

The western force Monday recaptured three towns — Osan, Kamyangjang and Chon. Osan, 28 air miles south of Seoul, was the place where the first American soldier of the Korean war was killed last July. Kamyangjang is 10 miles northeast and Chon is three miles south of there.

There was no indication that the western force was planning to go all the way to Seoul. Three Red armies lay in its path. A.P. Correspondent Don Huth said the Chinese 40th, 38th, and 50th

Manslaughter Verdict May Be Given in Trial of Gehr

Carmel, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—The case of Herbert Gehr, accused of slaying his wife when she raided his mountain love retreat, went to a jury at 11:45 a. m. today.

Carmel, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—The state, it appeared today, would be satisfied with a manslaughter rather than a second-degree murder verdict in the trial of Herbert Gehr, accused of killing his wife when she raided his mountain love-nest in search of divorce evidence.

Judge John D. Donohoe is to charge the Putnam county jury of seven mothers and five men this morning.

Observers were wondering if he might rule out the murder count entirely and direct the jury to rule on manslaughter.

The speculation started yesterday when District Attorney Fred A. Dickinson, in his summation, soft-pedaled the second degree murder charge contained in the indictment.

Instead, he stressed the manslaughter statute, under which Gehr is also liable.

Gehr's wife, Andrea, 30, was shot to death last July 10 as she led a raiding party of private detectives on her husband's mountain cabin, where Gehr was staying with red-haired Dorothea Matthews.

Mrs. Matthews, 31, has testified that she was with Gehr merely in her capacity as an attendant for

"Unity" in support of American foreign policy is essential, he said, and "is not only our duty, it is our great opportunity."

'Last Clear Chance'

He asserted that "a united America is civilization's last clear chance for survival" while "a divided America is the greatest temptation to Soviet conquest."

Getting specific about Europe, Byrnes urged:

That the Western German republic "be treated on terms of equality" because its people "if treated fairly, will fight with us."

That military supplies should be sent to Spain "as rapidly as possible" since "Spain has more divisions of trained soldiers than any one of the western European governments."

That "we should seek the friendship of Tito and furnish military supplies to Yugoslavia."

That "we should impress upon Britain, France and all of western Europe that we want the American soldiers who fight in

General 'Ike' Says Quiet Is Soldier's Role

London, Jan. 16 (AP) — General "Ike" Eisenhower declared today that so long as Japan and Germany remained in the realm of politics "soldiers are obliged to keep their mouths shut."

The statement was made to a news conference in reply to a question as he was concluding the last part of his stay in London and preparing to leave for Lisbon, continuing his survey tour of the Atlantic Pact nations whose international army he now commands.

There was no reference either in questions or comment about the repeated British newspaper complaint that another general, Douglas MacArthur, often spoke out when the British wished he might remain quiet.

Refuses Answer

A British correspondent asked Eisenhower what he thought about the participation of a German army in the Atlantic defense setup.

"I would not have you think I was deliberately ducking a question," the general replied, "but when a problem becomes one for world statesmen and world political leaders, soldiers are by the very nature of their mission in the free world obliged to keep their mouths shut."

Asked if he felt the same way about Japan, he replied:

"So far as I am concerned."

The news conference at which Eisenhower spoke was the first on his tour in which he had agreed to answer questions. In his brief talk beforehand he expressed confidence, as he had before, in the capacity of the free western world to defend itself.

Point Is 17 Miles South Of Capital

Soldiers Leave Wonju Wedge for Defensive Line

Tokyo, Jan. 16 (AP)—An allied tank-infantry combat team cracked through a shell of Communist resistance today and plunged into the airport city of Suwon. It is 17 air miles south of the Red-held capital of Seoul.

It was the fourth town—and first major objective—to fall to the United Nations troops in their big western front counterthrust—called a reconnaissance in force.

There was no indication that allied forces would remain in Suwon for any length of time.

A spokesman in the field explained that it is the usual practice on reconnaissance missions of this type to probe enemy positions, determine their strength, gather as much information as possible and then withdraw.

100 Reds Are Routed

The allied force routed about 100 Red troops in Suwon. The bulk of the Communist garrison had fled Monday under fierce allied bombing and strafing attacks. Hundreds of Reds were machinegunned on the road running north to Seoul.

The allied western drive began Monday south of Osan.

On the central front, allied forces pulled out of the Wonju wedge where for 16 days they had held off massed Red Korean attacks.

The U. S. Eighth Army announced the central front pullback to the defensive line set up after the retreat from Seoul. American, French and Dutch troops rode southward through breathtaking mountain passes, along sheer cliffs and around hairpin turns.

Artillery barrages and punishing air strikes covered the withdrawal. Villages flamed.

Location Not Given

Censorship prevented locating the new line. The communique said only:

"This redeployment will usher in a new phase" of the Sobaek Mountains battle. "The United Nations line has been straightened and shortened."

Censors now prohibit mention of any units smaller than the whole U. S. Eighth Army and Fifth Air Force. This was another day-to-day change which the censors say results from changing military conditions.

(Dispatches received and published Monday before the newest clamp-down identified the Wonju holding force as the U. S. Second Division and the attacking force south of Suwon as the Third Infantry Division. The Second Division included French, Dutch and South Korean troops as well as Americans. The third division, which was evacuated by sea in December from Hungnam in northeast Korea, included at that time Puerto Rican and American mainland troops.)

Garrisons Are Routed

AP Correspondent Stan Swinton, with the western front attack column, said the Americans rolled ahead after blistering allied air attacks had routed Red garrison troops from several villages and left hundreds of fleeing Communists along the northbound roads.

The western force Monday recaptured three towns — Osan, Kamyangjang and Chon. Osan, 28 air miles south of Seoul, was the place where the first American soldier of the Korean war was killed last July. Kamyangjang is 10 miles northeast and Chon is three miles south of there.

There was no indication that the western force was planning to go all the way to Seoul. Three Red armies lay in its path. A.P. Correspondent Don Huth said the Chinese 40th, 38th, and 50th

Cook Awaits Action On Lindbergh Law Kidnap Charges

Bodies of Five Persons Taken From Mine Shaft Near Joplin

San Diego, Calif., Jan. 16 (AP)—Desperado William E. Cook, suspected of killing eight persons, huddled ill and meek in jail here today as authorities prepared to press Lindbergh law kidnaping charges against him.

Almost simultaneous with the announcement of the ex-convict's capture in Mexico, came word yesterday that the bodies of all five members of the Carl Mosser family, who he is charged with murdering, had been found near Cook's home town of Joplin, Mo.

Discovered in water in an unused mine shaft were the bodies of Mosser, 33; his wife, Thelma, 29; Ronald Dean, seven; Cary Carl, five, and Pamela Sue, three. All had been shot, the parents and older boy having been bound and gagged first.

They were last seen alive with Cook some two weeks ago. The finding of their blood-soaked auto near Tulsa, Okla., Jan. 3 touched off an exhaustive search for them and the 23-year-old badman.

Cook was flown here yesterday and arraigned on federal charges of kidnaping. He also is charged with fleeing to avoid prosecution on a charge of murdering Robert E. Dewey, 33, Seattle salesman, near Blythe, Calif., Jan. 6, and flight to avoid prosecution on Oklahoma robbery charges. A hearing was set for Jan. 29.

Got Drunk in Blythe

Cook told reporters he couldn't remember anything for two weeks after "I got drunk with a man in Blythe (Calif.) Christmas night."

Ill with dysentery, he had a fever of 101.

The desperado submitted to arrest without a struggle Sunday when Tiajuana Police Chief Francisco Kraus Morales and a posse confronted him in a cafe at Santa Rosalia, a small mining town 600 miles below the border on the Baja California peninsula.

With Cook were two prospectors, James Burke and Forrest Damron, both of El Centro, Calif. They said Cook had stopped their maroon sedan 40 miles below the border and forced them at gunpoint to drive to Santa Rosalia.

"Most of the seven days (we were with him)," said Burke, "Cook kept the gun in his lap with the trigger cocked. At night when he camped out, he sat with his back against a tree or rock with gun cocked. We were afraid to try to escape."

Chief Got Reports

Chief Morales was led to Santa Rosalia by reports from two mining men who said they had exchanged greetings with three men enroute to Santa Rosalia in a maroon sedan.

After Cook was reported seen in Winthrop, Ariz., with the Mossers on New Year's Day, the desperado dropped from sight until Jan. 6, when Sheriff's Deputy Homer Waldrip ran into him at Blythe, Calif.

Waldrip said Cook forced him into the deputy's car, drove him to the desert, robbed him and left him, after boasting that he had killed seven persons.

Drove to Yuma

Cook apparently drove to Yuma, Ariz., where he encountered Dewey, police said, shot him, propped the body in Waldrip's car and fled in Dewey's auto. This car was found 40 miles below the bor-

Traffic Gain 7.91 Over River Bridges

3 Spans Crossing Hudson Handle 397,994 More Vehicles in 1950

Travel over the three Hudson river bridges under jurisdiction of the New York State Bridge Authority increased by 397,994 vehicles in 1950 over 1949, the authority reported today.

The bridges handled 5,428,802 vehicles last year against 5,030,808 in 1949 for a per centage gain of 7.91.

The Rip Van Winkle Bridge near Catskill showed the highest percentage gain with 10.48 and an actual increase in vehicles of 117,293. The 1950 total was 1,246,368 and the 1949 was 1,129,075.

The Mid-Hudson at Poughkeepsie showed a gain of 163,455 in vehicles for a six per cent increase. The total last year was 2,885,672 as against 2,722,172 in 1949.

Higher in percentage gain was the Bear Mountain with 9.94, and its gain in vehicles was close to the Rip Van Winkle. It carried 1,296,807 vehicles in 1950 and 1,179,561 in 1949 for a gain of 117,246. This was only 47 less than the Rip Van Winkle gained for the year.

The Kingston-Rhinecliff ferry showed a gain of 1,744 in vehicles, but a loss of 7,598 in pedestrian travel. The ferry ran from April 5 to Dec. 26 in 1950 and showed a total of 74,817 vehicles as against 73,073 in 1949 when it ran from March 21 to Dec. 31.

The total pedestrian travel on the ferry was 25,107 in 1950 and 32,705 in 1949.

Manslaughter Verdict May Be Given in Trial of Gehr

Carmel, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—The case of Herbert Gehr, accused of slaying his wife when she raided his mountain love retreat, went to a jury at 11:45 a. m. today.

Carmel, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—The state, it appeared today, would be satisfied with a manslaughter rather than a second-degree murder verdict in the trial of Herbert Gehr, accused of killing his wife when she raided his mountain love-nest in search of divorce evidence.

Judge John D. Donohoe is to charge the Putnam county jury of seven mothers and five men this morning.

Observers were wondering if he might rule out the murder count entirely and direct the jury to rule on manslaughter.

The speculation started yesterday when District Attorney Fred A. Dickinson, in his summation, soft-pedaled the second degree murder charge contained in the indictment.

Instead, he stressed the manslaughter statute, under which Gehr is also liable.

Gehr's wife, Andrea, 30, was shot to death last July 10 as she led a raiding party of private detectives on her husband's mountain cabin, where Gehr was staying with red-haired Dorothea Matthews.

Mrs. Matthews, 31, has testified that she was with Gehr merely in her capacity as an attendant for

McGowan Is Suing For $62,000 Verdict On Apple Contract

An action on contract brought by James E. McGowan of Marlborough against the Cooperative Grange League Federation Exchange, Inc., to recover damages for an alleged failure to deliver apples in 1948 was brought in Supreme Court. The G.L.F. in turn brings a counter claim against McGowan on a claim that he failed to take delivery of apples daily as required by his contract and thereby the G.L.F. was damaged because it was unable to use its storage facilities for other goods.

McGowan seeks damages in the amount of approximately $62,000, claiming that he failed to get some 30,000 bushels of apples from the G.L.F. and had to go out in the open market and purchase apples at a higher price to supply his pie makers in New York with whom he had a contract to deliver apples.

George Rusk and N. LeVan Haver appear for McGowan and Cashin and Ewig appear for the defendants.

Had Pie Contracts

McGowan operates a cold storage plant, fruit farm and apple buying business in Marlborough. For the past 25 years he had been in the apple business. He contends that he entered into contracts to supply New York pie makers with apples during the 1948-49 season and to fill that contract he contracted to take all the apples the fruit growers supplied the G.L.F. under a contract between the farmers and the G.L.F., at their Macedon plant in Wayne county.

McGowan contends that his contract with the pie makers was to supply them with 70,000 bushels of pie apples. This included certain "hard" apples suitable for pie. The apple crop that year was in short supply and Baldwins and other pie varieties were short. In order to seecure the apples for pie purposes McGowan bought all of the varieties which were to be delivered to the G.L.F. plant at Macedon. He paid $10,000 deposit to guarantee fulfillment of the contract and as a deposit for return of the containers.

Says He Bought on Market

McGowan contends Baldwins were to be supplied to him and he complained that this variety which he most needed was not being supplied. He claims he was assured the Baldwins would come in later and it was not until December that he found he would not get the apples needed. He claims he went out and bought apples on the open market at higher prices to fill his contracts in New York. It is contended some farmers did not bring in any apples under their contract with G.L.F. to sell their entire crop to G.L.F. McGowan claims this was the fault of the G.L.F. in not pressing the contract. In all McGowan was about 30,000 bushels short and he claims the higher prices together with the cost and expense of his traveling to procure apples to supply New York pie makers resulted in a loss of some $62,000.

G.L.F. in April returned his $10,000 deposit, less $247.50 retained for containers not returned, and McGowan says at that time no mention was made of any claim for damages by G.L.F. for loss of storage facilities because he failed to take daily delivery of apples during the fall.

What Defendant Contends

The defendant contends that it is not liable for any damages and that the agreement with McGowan was to supply him with all of the apples purchased from the growers, based upon an agreement with the farmers which stated they would sell to G.L.F. their "estimated" crop which was "estimated to be approximately" a certain number of bushels. In contracting to deliver to McGowan a certain number of apples, the G.L.F. contends it wrote into the contract it would deliver to him all of the apples delivered under the contracts with growers and cited the fact that the crop to be delivered by the farmers was "estimated." Defendant contends that in 1948 the apple crop was about 80 per cent of average and points out that the total amount of apples delivered to McGowan was about 80 per cent of the "estimated" number of bushels. The McGowan contract stated the price as $2.70 per 100 weight of tree run apples. Defendant contends that when McGowan went out into the market to buy fruit to fill the New York contracts he bought better grade apples at a higher price.

Counter Claim

The counter claim of defendant is brought on the grounds McGowan had agreed to take delivery of from 3,000 to 8,000 bushels per day and to return the containers. Defendant claims there were days when he failed to take delivery of any apples and the storage facilities of the G.L.F. plant was so taxed it was impossible to use it for other purposes and the concern was thereby damaged.

A jury was selected Monday afternoon for the case and the openings were heard this morning. Justice MacAffer excused jurors not on the case until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Announced as settled was No. 121, Laura E. Johnson, etc., against Thomas Dengler, negligence. Ernest E. Schirmer for plaintiff and Cook & Cook for defendant. No. 150, Utilities Engineering Institute against George Fox, contract, Michael Nardone for plaintiff and Roy L. Featherstone for defendant. No. 137, Carl Lind and another against Thomas Buono and another, money had and received. Napoletano, Kelly and Saccoman for plaintiff and Rosenblum and Lamb for defendants.

O'Donnell to Step Up Air Force Plans

Tokyo, Jan. 16 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Emmett ("Rosy") O'Donnell, Jr., was en route tonight to his new command at March Field, Calif., flying directly from Tokyo.

He has been named commander of the 15th Air Force of the Strategic Air Command.

O'Donnell has been in command of the Far East Bomber Command since its organization last July 13.

He will be succeeded by Brig. Gen. James E. Briggs, now commanding the Bomber Command Advance Headquarters on Okinawa.

Lt. Gen. George E. Strathemeyer, Far East Air Forces commander, said O'Donnell's return to the United States "was influenced by the stepped-up air force program which will almost double the current air force strength of 48 groups we had at the beginning of the Korean conflict."

Under O'Donnell's command, B-29 Superforts from Japan and Okinawa have dropped more than 43,000 tons of bombs on Red Korean military targets.

O'Donnell led the first B-29 attack on Tokyo in World War 2.

Battle Imminent In Legislature on New Rent Program

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—Authoritative sources predicted today that the proposed state rent control "thaw" to permit 15 per cent increases would affect less than one-third of the tenants protected by the present freeze.

The top-level estimate came as the Legislature's Democratic minority reportedly got ready to slap a "pro-landlord" tag on the new plan submitted by the state rent czar, Joseph D. McGoldrick.

A noisy battle seemed imminent.

The prediction that most tenants would not have to pay higher rent also came amid some scattered complaints that the McGoldrick plan contained loopholes making a 15 per cent across-the-board increase possible.

McGoldrick told the Legislature in his 203-page proposal that:

1—A housing shortage still existed and he could not recommend "any measure of decontrol at this time."

2—"A larger number of landlords" are earning at least as much on their property as the 1942-43 average, that "many are doing better" and that he could not recommend an across-the-board increase in rents.

Must Disapprove by Feb. 16

The McGoldrick plan becomes effective March 15 unless the Legislature disapproves it by Feb. 16.

It prescribes seven conditions on which rent increases up to 15 per cent or more may be based, and eases certain eviction provisions.

McGoldrick suggested that it be made easier for persons buying one and two-family houses to gain possession "without proving an immediate and compelling necessity." He urged similar consideration for owners of cooperative apartments holding title two years or more.

The major methods on which increases could be based are (1) a four per cent "fair net return" formula for landlords, and (2) voluntary agreements between landlords and tenants providing 15 per cent increase in two-year leases.

Although the McGoldrick plan is expected to touch off bitter legislative debate, Republican and Democratic leaders withheld immediate comment. They said they wanted to read the voluminous program before discussing it publicly.

One Democrat, Assemblyman Louis Peck of the Bronx, called for public hearings on the plan.

Seven Conditions Cited

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—Here are the seven conditions on which rent increases may be based under the proposed new state rent control program drafted by Rent Administrator Joseph D. McGoldrick:

1—Any improvement or added service or facility furnished since March 1, 1950, for which no previous rent increase has been authorized.

2—Voluntary lease agreements between landlords and tenants permitting increases up to 15 per cent in two-year leases.

3—An increase in the number of sub-tenants or occupants in the housing accommodation since March 1, 1950.

4—Where, "because of unique or peculiar circumstances," the maximum rent is substantially lower for comparable facilities in the same area.

5—Where a landlord can prove his net annual return is less than four per cent "on the equalized assessed valuation of the entire ppoperty" and in which he would be permitted to charge two per cent of the assessed value of the building alone to operating costs for depreciation.

6—In cases of "owners of small properties" and "individual adjustment" up to 15 per cent a year may be granted to repay landlords for "substantial increases in property taxes, fuel, utilities, insurance and repairs and maintenance."

7—A similar adjustment applicable only to the operators of rooming houses, controlled hotel rooms in New York city and Buffalo, and cooperative apartments.

Increases beyond 15 per cent could be authorized, in McGoldrick's discretion, where a landlord can prove his "out-of-pocket" loss was more than that amount.

Employment Decline

New York, Jan. 16 (AP)—Employment in non-agricultural industries in New York state declined slightly between mid-October and mid-November, State Industrial Commissioner Edward Corsi reported today. It was the first employment drop in nine months, he said, and "seasonal business contraction in the apparel industry was primarily responsible." Corsi estimated the November employment total at 5,758,700 —which was 15,400 below October but 223,000 above the figure for November, 1949.

Moscow, Jan. 16 (AP)—Pravda today described the new United Nations Korean cease-fire plan as a device by which the United States intends to gain time to reinforce and reorganize forces in Korea.

Noah Webster took 21 years, from 1807 to 1828, to prepare his dictionary of the English language.

Late Bulletin

West Haverstraw, N. Y., an. 16 (AP)—Two railroad brakemen were killed and another brakeman was injured today when a fast freight train plowed into a local freight train on a siding of the West Shore Railroad.

The New York Central Railroad, which owns the West Shore, said the local freight train had moved onto the siding to permit the fast freight to speed through. The Central said a switch apparently had not been thrown back soon enough and the fast freight moved on to the siding.

The fast freight plowed into the caboose of the local train. The two brakemen were in the caboose at the time.

The dead were identified as Wesley Terns, r., of (57 Wood Place) Dumont, N. J., and A. P. Baker, of 234 51st street, West New York, N. J.

Another brakeman, Edward Stonehouse, of (29 Cooper Place) Weehawken, N. J., who also was in the caboose, was badly hurt. Peter Deveney, of 237 75th street, North Bergen, N. J., was unhurt.

Says Attempt Made To Molest Woman

Local police were notified at 11:50 p. m. Monday by Joseph Qualtere, 1 Post street, that a man had attempted to molest Mrs. Mary DuBois, of 64 Broadway, on Post street.

The report said that Mrs. Rose Qualtere, Joseph's mother, and Mrs. DuBois were returning from visiting a friend at the Benedictine Hospital and were near the Qualtere home when a man "ran from an alley," grabbed Mrs. DuBois, and then "made a motion as if to strike her."

Qualtere said he came out of the house at about this time and the man ran, got into a truck and drove towards the Rondout creek bridge.

Officers George Bowers and Henry Ronnenberg investigated. Descriptions of the man and truck were given by Qualtere, and the truck, as described bore a prominent trade name and was believed to be one operating out of Poughkeepsie. The police also obtained a name to be investigated for later action, and Detectives Clarence Brophy and William Krum were expected to execute a warrant this afternoon at Poughkeepsie.

Kingsley Receives 3 U. S. Contracts

The management of Kingsley Fashions Inc., 17 Cornell street, announced today that the plant had been awarded three government contracts "in the needle line."

A spokesman for the local garment concern said that government regulations prohibits public announcement of the type of garment to be manufactured, but it was indicated that it will take from six to seven months to complete the contracts and that more are in prospect.

The amount of extra help which might be needed to complete the work is not known at this time, and probably will be determined after the material arrives later this week, the spokesman said.

Pfc. Chatham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Byron K. Chatham, Sr., of 148 Henry street, was killed in action in the Southwest Pacific Area on June 5, 1945. He had been a gunner on a B-29 crew stationed at Guam during World War 2.

According to information received by the airmen's father, the American Graves Registration Service has established that remains recently recovered are those of Pfc. Chatham and three other crewmen who were in the same bomber. No date for burial has been set, but Mr. and Mrs. Chatham and the next of kin of the other men will be informed of the date and time in sufficient time to permit them and other persons to attend the ceremonies.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 16 (AP)—The prospect of higher freight rates pushed railroad stocks to the fore of an advancing market today.

Steel, motor, rubber, public utility, gold mining and chemical stocks also played a big part in the rally that got under way after President Truman called upon Congress yesterday to approve a $71,594,000,000 budget for the 1951-52 fiscal year.

There was a heavy flow of trading and buying enthusiasm. Few leading stocks advanced up to $2 a share.

Higher prices were paid for Bethlehem Steel, Youngstown Sheet, Chrysler, B. F. Goodrich, Caterpillar Tractor, Douglas Aircraft, Schenley, Zenith, American Telephone, McIntyre Porcupine Mining, American Cyanamid, duPont, American Can, Erie Railroad, Standard Oil (N. J.) and Baltimore & Ohio.

Prices on the curb exchange were higher, with some issues advancing considerably about $1. Oils and mining shares were especially active.

Delmontes Get $10,000 For Honeymoon Upset

New York, Jan. 16 (AP) — A couple whose marriage has since been annulled has been awarded $10,000 damages from the Hotel Taft, where they said their wedding night was interrupted by three employes.

A jury handed down the decision last Friday in a sealed verdict opened yesterday.

The couple, Mario and Josephine Delmonte, had asked $200,100 from the hotel.

Mrs. Delmonte, who flew here for the trial from Tokyo, where she is employed by the army, testified that the humiliating nuptial night caused her spiritual wounds, which interfered with the marriage and which were partly responsible for the 1947 annulment.

Delmonte, a beauty shop operator in Puerto Rico, said he suffered physical injury when the three employes allegedly forced their way into the room Sept. 22, 1945.

The Hotel Taft said its employes entered the room only after reports of a disturbance there.

General 'Ike' . . .

were packed into a large room in the old Lancaster House, in the Whitehall government district.

In the audience were a number who had sat at his first news conference in 1942 when he came to take command of the British and American forces preparing to liberate Europe.

He said that returning to London gave him a sensation of "coming back home," but added that the job of building up a military force also reminded him of an American expression:

"This is where I came in."

Eisenhower said there was one essential difference. In 1942 he was preparing an army for a war already started. Now, he said, he is building an army "to preserve peace" and prevent anyone from believing they can destroy the free world.

Eisenhower talked for an hour this morning with Field Marshal Montgomery, their second session together. They had talked for four hours in Paris. It is virtually certain that he will have a part in the military set up.

Redmont Cross-Examined

New York, Jan. 16 (AP)—Paris Correspondent Bernard S. Redmont was cross-examined by the government today about a 1946 speech in which he was quoted by an Argentine newspaper as referring to "Generalissimo Truman" and "Foreign Commissar Byrnes." Redmont, a defense witness in the perjury trial of William W. Remington, former U. S. Commerce Department economist, insisted the newspaper report was inaccurate, with remarks being taken out of context.

Washington, Jan. 16 (AP)—The Pentagon holds out hope of replacement to the weary and the wounded of the long Korean battle. A Defense Department spokesman said yesterday men of the September, October and November draft calls will begin to flow "in quantity" into Korea by March and "from then onwards." They will be "replacements for casualties and battle weary soldiers" he said.

Water Plentiful May Spill Over

A gain of 1,094,000,000 gallons of water in 24 hours ending at 8 a. m., yesterday brought New York city's reservoir system to 94.2 per cent of capacity, it was reported today.

The city's Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity said this increased the reservoir system to more than 238 billions of gallons. Officials estimated an additional run-off of more than six billions of gallons from the week-end rainfall.

There is some concern however over the fact that thaws may bring the water down too fast and result in overflow and waste.

Art Objects Packed

New York, Jan. 16 (AP) — The Metropolitan Museum of Art has crated a large number of its most fragile porcelain and glass exhibits, ready for secret shipment to safety when and if Washington gives the word. Museums throughout the country have been working together on plans to safeguard their art treasures in case of war. Francis Henry Tayler, metropolitan's director, said today. "I'm still hoping we're just seeing shadows under the bed," he said "but we have our plans made and a great many preparatory measures have been taken." The metropolitan hid 15,000 of its art treasures in a barricaded Pennsylvania mansion for two years of World War 2.

Proposal Is Dropped

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—A Democratic assemblyman today demanded a legislative investigation of the Hanley letter and the 1950 state election, but top Republican leaders promptly doomed the proposal. Democrat Philip J. Schupler of Brooklyn introduced a resolution in the G.O.P.-controlled Legislature proposing a probe. He said "everyone concerned, including Governor Dewey," should be called to testify.

McGowan Is Suing For $62,000 Verdict On Apple Contract

An action on contract brought by James E. McGowan of Marlborough against the Cooperative Grange League Federation Exchange, Inc., to recover damages for an alleged failure to deliver apples in 1948 was brought in Supreme Court. The G.L.F. in turn brings a counter claim against McGowan on a claim that he failed to take delivery of apples daily as required by his contract and thereby the G.L.F. was damaged because it was unable to use its storage facilities for other goods.

McGowan seeks damages in the amount of approximately $62,000, claiming that he failed to get some 30,000 bushels of apples from the G.L.F. and had to go out in the open market and purchase apples at a higher price to supply his pie makers in New York with whom he had a contract to deliver apples.

George Rusk and N. LeVan Haver appear for McGowan and Cashin and Ewig appear for the defendants.

Had Pie Contracts

McGowan operates a cold storage plant, fruit farm and apple buying business in Marlborough. For the past 25 years he had been in the apple business. He contends that he entered into contracts to supply New York pie makers with apples during the 1948-49 season and to fill that contract he contracted to take all the apples the fruit growers supplied the G.L.F. under a contract between the farmers and the G.L.F., at their Macedon plant in Wayne county.

McGowan contends that his contract with the pie makers was to supply them with 70,000 bushels of pie apples. This included certain "hard" apples suitable for pie. The apple crop that year was in short supply and Baldwins and other pie varieties were short. In order to seecure the apples for pie purposes McGowan bought all of the varieties which were to be delivered to the G.L.F. plant at Macedon. He paid $10,000 deposit to guarantee fulfillment of the contract and as a deposit for return of the containers.

Says He Bought on Market

McGowan contends Baldwins were to be supplied to him and he complained that this variety which he most needed was not being supplied. He claims he was assured the Baldwins would come in later and it was not until December that he found he would not get the apples needed. He claims he went out and bought apples on the open market at higher prices to fill his contracts in New York. It is contended some farmers did not bring in any apples under their contract with G.L.F. to sell their entire crop to G.L.F. McGowan claims this was the fault of the G.L.F. in not pressing the contract. In all McGowan was about 30,000 bushels short and he claims the higher prices together with the cost and expense of his traveling to procure apples to supply New York pie makers resulted in a loss of some $62,000.

G.L.F. in April returned his $10,000 deposit, less $247.50 retained for containers not returned, and McGowan says at that time no mention was made of any claim for damages by G.L.F. for loss of storage facilities because he failed to take daily delivery of apples during the fall.

What Defendant Contends

The defendant contends that it is not liable for any damages and that the agreement with McGowan was to supply him with all of the apples purchased from the growers, based upon an agreement with the farmers which stated they would sell to G.L.F. their "estimated" crop which was "estimated to be approximately" a certain number of bushels. In contracting to deliver to McGowan a certain number of apples, the G.L.F. contends it wrote into the contract it would deliver to him all of the apples delivered under the contracts with growers and cited the fact that the crop to be delivered by the farmers was "estimated." Defendant contends that in 1948 the apple crop was about 80 per cent of average and points out that the total amount of apples delivered to McGowan was about 80 per cent of the "estimated" number of bushels. The McGowan contract stated the price as $2.70 per 100 weight of tree run apples. Defendant contends that when McGowan went out into the market to buy fruit to fill the New York contracts he bought better grade apples at a higher price.

Counter Claims

The counter claim of defendant is brought on the grounds McGowan had agreed to take delivery of from 3,000 to 8,000 bushels per day and to return the containers. Defendant claims there were days when he failed to take delivery of any apples and the storage facilities of the G.L.F. plant was so taxed it was impossible to use it for other purposes and the concern was thereby damaged.

A jury was selected Monday afternoon for the case and the openings were heard this morning. Justice MacAffer excused jurors not on the case until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Announced as settled was No. 121, Laura E. Johnson, etc., against Thomas Dengler, negligence. Ernest E. Schirmer for plaintiff and Cook & Cook for defendant. No. 150, Utilities Engineering Institute against George Fox, contract, Michael Nardone for plaintiff and Roy L. Featherstone for defendant. No. 187, Carl Lind and another against Thomas Buono and another, money had and received. Napoletano, Kelly and Saccoman for plaintiff and Rosenblum and Lamb for defendants.

O'Donnell to Step Up Air Force Plans

Tokyo, Jan. 16 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Emmett ("Rosy") O'Donnell, Jr., was en route tonight to his new command at March Field, Calif., flying directly from Tokyo.

He has been named commander of the 15th Air Force of the Strategic Air Command.

O'Donnell has been in command of the Far East Bomber Command since its organization last July 13.

He will be succeeded by Brig. Gen. James E. Briggs, now commanding the Bomber Command Advance Headquarters on Okinawa.

Lt. Gen. George E. Strathemeyer, Far East Air Forces commander, said O'Donnell's return to the United States "was influenced by the stepped-up air force program which will almost double the current air force strength of 48 groups we had at the beginning of the Korean conflict."

Under O'Donnell's command, B-29 Superforts from Japan and Okinawa have dropped more than 43,000 tons of bombs on Red Korean military targets.

O'Donnell led the first B-29 attack on Tokyo in World War 2.

Battle Imminent In Legislature on New Rent Program

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—Authoritative sources predicted today that the proposed state rent control "thaw" to permit 15 per cent increases would affect less than one-third of the tenants protected by the present freeze.

The top-level estimate came as the Legislature's Democratic minority reportedly got ready to slap a "pro-landlord" tag on the new plan submitted by the state rent czar, Joseph D. McGoldrick.

A noisy battle seemed imminent.

The prediction that most tenants would not have to pay higher rent also came amid some scattered complaints that the McGoldrick plan contained loopholes making a 15 per cent across-the-board increase possible.

McGoldrick told the Legislature in his 203-page proposal that:

1—A housing shortage still existed and he could not recommend "any measure of decontrol at this time."

2—"A larger number of landlords" are earning at least as much on their property as the 1942-43 average, that "many are doing better" and that he could not recommend an across-the-board increase in rents.

Must Disapprove by Feb. 16

The McGoldrick plan becomes effective March 15 unless the Legislature disapproves it by Feb. 16.

It prescribes seven conditions on which rent increases up to 15 per cent or more may be based, and eases certain eviction provisions.

McGoldrick suggested that it be made easier for persons buying one and two-family houses to gain possession "without proving an immediate and compelling necessity." He urged similar consideration for owners of cooperative apartments holding title two years or more.

The major methods on which increases could be based are (1) a four per cent "fair net return" formula for landlords, and (2) voluntary agreements between landlords and tenants providing 15 per cent increase in two-year leases.

Although the McGoldrick plan is expected to touch off bitter legislative debate, Republican and Democratic leaders withheld immediate comment. They said they wanted to read the voluminous program before discussing it publicly.

One Democrat, Assemblyman Louis Peck of the Bronx, called for public hearings on the plan.

Seven Conditions Cited

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—Here are the seven conditions on which rent increases may be based under the proposed new state rent control program drafted by Rent Administrator Joseph D. McGoldrick:

1—Any improvement or added service or facility furnished since March 1, 1950, for which no previous rent increase has been authorized.

2—Voluntary lease agreements between landlords and tenants permitting increases up to 15 per cent in two-year leases.

3—An increase in the number of sub-tenants or occupants in the housing accommodation since March 1, 1950.

4—Where, "because of unique or peculiar circumstances," the maximum rent is substantially lower for comparable facilities in the same area.

5—Where a landlord can prove his net annual return is less than four per cent "on the equalized assessed valuation of the entire property" and in which he would be permitted to charge two per cent of the assessed value of the building alone to operating costs for depreciation.

6—In cases of "owners of small properties" and "individual adjustment" up to 15 per cent a year may be granted to repay landlords for "substantial increases in property taxes, fuel, utilities, insurance and repairs and maintenance."

7—A similar adjustment applicable only to the operators of rooming houses, controlled hotel rooms in New York city and Buffalo, and cooperative apartments.

Increases beyond 15 per cent could be authorized, in McGoldrick's discretion, where a landlord can prove his "out-of-pocket" loss was more than that amount.

Employment Decline

New York, Jan. 16 (AP)—Employment in non-agricultural industries in New York state declined slightly between mid-October and mid-November, State Industrial Commissioner Edward Corsi reported today. It was the first employment drop in nine months, he said, and "seasonal business contraction in the apparel industry was primarily responsible." Corsi estimated the November employment total at 5,758,700—which was 15,400 below October but 223,000 above the figure for November, 1949.

To Gain Time, Says Pravda

Moscow, Jan. 16 (AP)—Pravda today described the new United Nations Korean cease-fire plan as a device by which the United States intends to gain time to reinforce and reorganize forces in Korea.

Noah Webster took 21 years, from 1807 to 1828, to prepare his dictionary of the English language.

Late Bulletin

West Haverstraw, N. Y., an. 16 (AP)—Two railroad brakemen were killed and another brakeman was injured today when a fast freight train plowed into a local freight train on a siding of the West Shore Railroad.

The New York Central Railroad, which owns the West Shore, said the local freight train had moved onto the siding to permit the fast freight to speed through. The Central said a switch apparently had not been thrown back soon enough and the fast freight moved on to the siding.

The fast freight plowed into the caboose of the local train. The two brakemen were in the caboose at the time.

The dead were identified as Wesley Terns, r., of (57 Wood Place) Dumont, N. J., and A. P. Baker, of 234 51st street, West New York, N. J.

Another brakeman, Edward Stonehouse, of (29 Cooper Place) Weehawken, N. J., who also was in the caboose, was badly hurt. Peter Deveney, of 237 75th street, North Bergen, N. J., was unhurt.

Says Attempt Made To Molest Woman

Local police were notified at 11:50 p. m. Monday by Joseph Qualtere, 1 Post street, that a man had attempted to molest Mrs. Mary DuBois, of 64 Broadway, on Post street.

The report said that Mrs. Rose Qualtere, Joseph's mother, and Mrs. DuBois were returning from visiting a friend at the Benedictine Hospital and were near the Qualtere home when a man "ran from an alley," grabbed Mrs. DuBois, and then "made a motion as if to strike her."

Qualtere said he came out of the house at about this time and the man ran, got into a truck and drove towards the Rondout creek bridge.

Officers George Bowers and Henry Ronnenberg investigated. Descriptions of the man and truck were given by Qualtere, and the truck, as described bore a prominent trade name and was believed to be one operating out of Poughkeepsie. The police also obtained a name to be investigated for later action, and Detectives Clarence Brophy and William Krum were expected to execute a warrant this afternoon at Poughkeepsie.

Kingsley Receives 3 U. S. Contracts

The management of Kingsley Fashions Inc., 17 Cornell street, announced today that the plant had been awarded three government contracts "in the needle line."

A spokesman for the local garment concern said that government regulations prohibits public announcement of the type of garment to be manufactured, but it was indicated that it will take from six to seven months to complete the contracts and that more are in prospect.

The amount of extra help which might be needed to complete the work is not known at this time, and probably will be determined after the material arrives later this week, the spokesman said.

To Honor Chatham At Arlington Rites

Military rites will honor the late Pfc. Byron Kenneth Chatham, Jr., of this city when his recently recovered remains are buried with those of his three comrades at Arlington National Cemetery, Fort Myer, Va.

Pfc. Chatham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Byron K. Chatham, Sr., of 148 Henry street, was killed in action in the Southwest Pacific Area on June 5, 1945. He had been a gunner on a B-29 crew stationed at Guam during World War 2.

According to information received by the airmen's father, the American Graves Registration Service has established that remains recently recovered are those of Pfc. Chatham and three other crewmen who were in the same bomber. No date for burial has been set, but Mr. and Mrs. Chatham and the next of kin of the other men will be informed of the date and time in sufficient time to permit them and other persons to attend the ceremonies.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 16 (AP)—The prospect of higher freight rates pushed railroad stocks to the fore of an advancing market today.

Steel, motor, rubber, public utility, gold mining and chemical stocks also played a big part in the rally that got under way after President Truman called upon Congress yesterday to approve a $71,594,000,000 budget for the 1951-52 fiscal year.

There was a heavy flow of trading and buying enthusiasm. Few leading stocks advanced up to $2 a share.

Higher prices were paid for Bethlehem Steel, Youngstown Sheet, Chrysler, B. F. Goodrich, Caterpillar Tractor, Douglas Aircraft, Schenley, Zenith, American Telephone, McIntyre Porcupine Mining, American Cyanamid, du-Pont, American Can, Erie Railroad, Standard Oil (N. J.) and Baltimore & Ohio.

Prices on the curb exchange were higher, with some issues advancing considerably about $1. Oils and mining shares were especially active.

Delmontes Get $10,000 For Honeymoon Upset

New York, Jan. 16 (AP) — A couple whose marriage has since been annulled has been awarded $10,000 damages from the Hotel Taft, where they said their wedding night was interrupted by three employes.

A jury handed down the decision last Friday in a sealed verdict opened yesterday.

The couple, Mario and Josephine Delmonte, had asked $200,100 from the hotel.

Mrs. Delmonte, who flew here for the trial from Tokyo, where she is employed by the army, testified that the humiliating nuptial night caused her spiritual wounds, which interfered with the marriage and which were partly responsible for the 1947 annulment.

Delmonte, a beauty shop operator in Puerto Rico, said he suffered physical injury when the three employes allegedly forced their way into the room Sept. 22, 1945.

The Hotel Taft said its employes entered the room only after reports of a disturbance there.

General 'Ike' . . .

were packed into a large room in the old Lancaster House, in the Whitehall government district.

In the audience were a number who had sat at his first news conference in 1942 when he came to take command of the British and American forces preparing to liberate Europe.

He said that returning to London gave him a sensation of "coming back home," but added that the job of building up a military force also reminded him of an American expression:

"This is where I came in."

Eisenhower said there was one essential difference. In 1942 he was preparing an army for a war already started. Now, he said, he is building an army "to preserve peace" and prevent anyone from believing they can destroy the free world.

Eisenhower talked for an hour this morning with Field Marshal Montgomery, their second session together. They had talked for four hours in Paris. It is virtually certain that he will have a part in the military set up.

der in Baja, California. Beside it were tire treads left by the prospectors' machine.

This was the last tangible clue as to Cook's whereabouts until the mining men reported seeing three men in the maroon sedan. While FBI agents and other law enforcement officers traced down hundreds of false reports that Cook had been seen in the midwest, southwest and far west, they believed he remained below the border.

Redmont Cross-Examined

New York, Jan. 16 (AP)—Paris Correspondent Bernard S. Redmont was cross-examined by the government today about a 1946 speech in which he was quoted by an Argentine newspaper as referring to "Generalissimo Truman" and "Foreign Commissar Byrnes." Redmont, a defense witness in the perjury trial of William W. Remington, former U. S. Commerce Department economist, insisted the newspaper report was inaccurate, with remarks being taken out of context.

Replacement Hopes Held

Washington, Jan. 16 (AP)—The Pentagon holds out hope of replacement to the weary and the wounded of the long Korean battle. A Defense Department spokesman said yesterday men of the September, October and November draft calls will begin to flow "in quantity" into Korea by March and "from then onwards." They will be "replacements for casualties and battle weary soldiers" he said.

Talked on Defense

Howard Shurter, Ulster county civil defense director, and Sherwood Davis, Kingston city defense head, were guest speakers Monday night at a meeting of the Wallkill Chamber of Commerce at Wallkill Central School.

Water Plentiful May Spill Over

A gain of 1,094,000,000 gallons of water in 24 hours ending at 8 a. m., yesterday brought New York city's reservoir system to 94.2 per cent of capacity, it was reported today.

The city's Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity said this increased the reservoir system to more than 238 billions of gallons. Officials estimated an additional run-off of more than six billions of gallons from the week-end rainfall.

There is some concern however over the fact that thaws may bring the water down too fast and result in overflow and waste.

Art Objects Packed

New York, Jan. 16 (AP) — The Metropolitan Museum of Art has crated a large number of its most fragile porcelain and glass exhibits, ready for secret shipment to safety when and if Washington gives the word. Museums throughout the country have been working together on plans to safeguard their art treasures in case of war. Francis Henry Tayler, metropolitan's director, said today. "I'm still hoping we're just seeing shadows under the bed," he said "but we have our plans made and a great many preparatory measures have been taken." The metropolitan hid 15,000 of its art treasures in a barricaded Pennsylvania mansion for two years of World War 2.

Proposal Is Dropped

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—A Democratic assemblyman today demanded a legislative investigation of the Hanley letter and the 1950 state election, but top Republican leaders promptly doomed the proposal. Democrat Philip J. Schupler of Brooklyn introduced a resolution in the G.O.P.-controlled Legislature proposing a probe. He said "everyone concerned, including Governor Dewey," should be called to testify.

Effort to Unseat Bianchi Rejected

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—A move to oust Republican William J. Bianchi from the state Senate seat he won with American Labor Party support has been rejected by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

All 12 Republicans and three Democrats on the committee voted last night to turn down a petition by Robert V. Sabatini of New York city, listed as a "Democratic voter." Two Democratic members asked a delay of one week to allow more study.

Sabatini filed the ouster petition in the Senate on the opening day of the session, Jan. 3. He was reported to have the backing of former Senator Alfred E. Santangelo, Democrat defeated by Bianchi in the Nov. 7 election.

Republican leaders repudiated Bianchi last fall after he ignored a written pledge not to accept ALP endorsement.

The Senate's Republican leadership seated Bianchi as a "Republican-American Labor Party" member but "quarantined" him politically. He is barred from G.O.P. caucuses or conferences.

New York, Jan. 16 (Special)—The will of the late Dr. I. Arthur Stoloff, retired surgeon, of Woodstock and this city, was filed for probate in Surrogate's Court here Monday.

Sole legatee of his estate, not yet appraised, but declared formally to be "more than $20,000," is his widow, Mrs. Ella Stoloff.

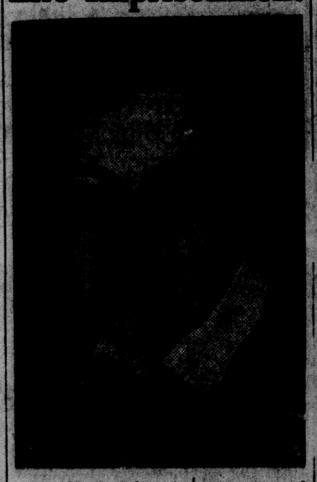

Dr. Stoloff died at the age of 64 in St. Petersburg, Fla., on December 18.

Born in New York, Dr. Stoloff studied in Vienna and was a member of the faculty of the New York Homeopathic Medical College and Flower Hospital here. He was a member of the Woodstock Artists Association and had exhibited his paintings there. Dr. Stoloff retired in 1945.

Life Imprisonment

Ilse Koch (above) was sentenced to life imprisonment in Augsburg, Germany, for causing the murder of Buchenwald concentration camp prisoners. The red-haired widow of the camp's wartime Nazi commander was not in court to hear the sentence. She was convicted of crimes against Austrian and German prisoners of the Nazis. She is shown here during an appearance in court at Augsburg last November.

Pravda Makes Call For Peace Treaty

Moscow, Jan. 16 (AP)—Pravda today called for immediate conclusion of a peace treaty with Germany. The Communist party organ said such a treaty should unify the country and provide for withdrawal of all occupation forces within one year after the pact.

The Pravda article repeated previous Soviet charges that great Britain, France and the United States are delaying and obstructing a Big Four meeting proposed by the U.S.S.R. on the question of Germany.

The paper's leading editorial said a threat of resurrection of German militarism and aggression demands from all peace-loving peoples a "decisive battle against the bloody plans and intrigues of the warmongers."

Pravda also today headlined as "new treason in Bonn" a report of the rejection by West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of the proposals by East German Premier Otto Grotewohl for talks on German unity.

Will Use Parachutes

Dayton, O., Jan. 16 (AP)—Now the air force is planning to deliver packages of soldiers and equipment by parachute. At least that's the goal of engineers of the air material command at nearby Wright-Patterson Air Force Base. Tests will begin soon on a container capable of holding 6,000 pounds. Engineers at Wright-Patterson say the containers may be used to drop an entire infantry squad and equipment from an airplane. Or, they say, the container may be used as a complete weather station, rescue station, or survival and rescue hut for Arctic use.

Date Setting Delayed

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—The Court of Appeals has delayed setting a new date for the electrocution of New York's "lonely hearts" killers. The state's highest tribunal was scheduled to act yesterday, but attorneys for Mrs. Martha Beck and Raymond Fernandez failed to appear in court. Decision was reserved on a motion by District Attorney Philip Huntington of Nassau county for immediate re-sentencing of the pair convicted in the slaying of an Albany widow. Mrs. Beck's attorney, Herbert E. Rosenberg of New York city, telegraphed the Court of Appeals yesterday that his client wanted to re-apply for relief from the U. S. Supreme Court.

Effort to Unseat Bianchi Rejected

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—A move to oust Republican William J. Bianchi from the state Senate seat he won with American Labor Party support has been rejected by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

All 12 Republicans and three Democrats on the committee voted last night to turn down a petition by Robert V. Sabatini of New York city, listed as a "Democratic voter." Two Democratic members asked a delay of one week to allow more study.

Sabatini filed the ouster petition in the Senate on the opening day of the session, Jan. 3. He was reported to have the backing of former Senator Alfred E. Santangelo, Democrat defeated by Bianchi in the Nov. 7 election.

Republican leaders repudiated Bianchi last fall after he ignored a written pledge not to accept ALP endorsement.

The Senate's Republican leadership seated Bianchi as a "Republican-American Labor Party" member but "quarantined" him politically. He is barred from G.O.P. caucuses or conferences.

Dr. Stoloff's Will Filed for Probate

New York, Jan. 16 (Special)—The will of the late Dr. I. Arthur Stoloff, retired surgeon, of Woodstock and this city, was filed for probate in Surrogate's Court here Monday.

Sole legatee of his estate, not yet appraised, but declared formally to be "more than $20,000," is his widow, Mrs. Ella Stoloff.

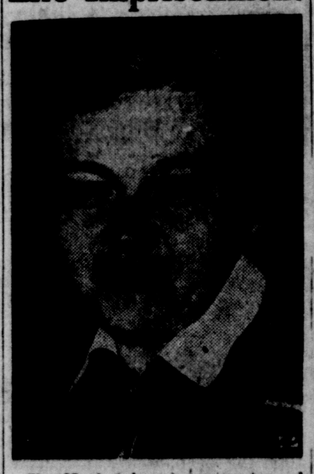

Dr. Stoloff died at the age of 64 in St. Petersburg, Fla., on December 18.

Born in New York, Dr. Stoloff studied in Vienna and was a member of the faculty of the New York Homeopathic Medical College and Flower Hospital here. He was a member of the Woodstock Artists Association and had exhibited his paintings there. Dr. Stoloff retired in 1945.

Alaskan Shop Burns

Anchorage, Alaska, Jan. 16 (AP)—Flames, believed to have started in a blacksmith shop, last night destroyed the Alaska Railroad Company's car repair shop here, with a loss unofficially estimated at $1,000,000. There were no casualties.

Life Imprisonment

Ilse Koch (above) was sentenced to life imprisonment in Augsburg, Germany, for causing the murder of Buchenwald concentration camp prisoners. The red-haired widow of the camp's wartime Nazi commander was not in court to hear the sentence. She was convicted of crimes against Austrian and German prisoners of the Nazis. She is shown here during an appearance in court at Augsburg last November.

Pravda Makes Call For Peace Treaty

Moscow, Jan. 16 (AP)—Pravda today called for immediate conclusion of a peace treaty with Germany. The Communist party organ said such a treaty should unify the country and provide for withdrawal of all occupation forces within one year after the pact.

The Pravda article repeated previous Soviet charges that great Britain, France and the United States are delaying and obstructing a Big Four meeting proposed by the U.S.S.R. on the question of Germany.

The paper's leading editorial said a threat of resurrection of German militarism and aggression demands from all peace-loving peoples a "decisive battle against the bloody plans and intrigues of the warmongers."

Pravda also today headlined as "new treason in Bonn" a report of the rejection by West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of the proposals by East German Premier Otto Grotewohl for talks on German unity.

Will Use Parachutes

Dayton, O., Jan. 16 (AP)—Now the air force is planning to deliver packages of soldiers and equipment by parachute. At least that's the goal of engineers of the air material command at nearby Wright-Patterson Air Force Base. Tests will begin soon on a container capable of holding 6,000 pounds. Engineers at Wright-Patterson say the containers may be used to drop an entire infantry squad and equipment from an airplane. Or, they say, the container may be used as a complete weather station, rescue station, or survival and rescue hut for Arctic use.

Date Setting Delayed

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—The Court of Appeals has delayed setting a new date for the electrocution of New York's "lonely hearts" killers. The state's highest tribunal was scheduled to act yesterday, but attorneys for Mrs. Martha Beck and Raymond Fernandez failed to appear in court. Decision was reserved on a motion by District Attorney Philip Huntington of Nassau county for immediate re-sentencing of the pair convicted in the slaying of an Albany widow. Mrs. Beck's attorney, Herbert E. Rosenberg of New York city, telegraphed the Court of Appeals yesterday that his client wanted to re-apply for relief from the U. S. Supreme Court.

RUSSIA REALLY HAS A-BOMB

If there have been any lingering doubts among Americans about Russia having the atomic bomb, recent stories appearing in the U. S. press should have dispelled them.

We have more detail now, for instance, on how the government decided Moscow had exploded a bomb.

To begin with, seismographic stations—earthquake detectors—were on the alert all around the globe for any unusual disturbances. They recorded one in central Siberia in mid-1949.

Secondly, an A-bomb hurls radioactive substances high into the upper atmosphere, whereupon they are carried around the world. Scientific stations strategically placed were able to detect these particles after the explosion occurred. Once their presence was known, larger samples of the upper air were captured by planes and special balloons.

Then a group of the nation's top atomic scientists examined the samples with exhaustive care. They paid particular attention to the possibility the Russians might have accidentally discharged an atomic pile while trying to make a bomb.

They concluded unanimously that it was actually a bomb. The metallic content of the air would not fit any other conclusion. Indeed, when the scientists reported to President Truman, they told him that if it wasn't a bomb they couldn't imagine what it was.

Since that time, reliable intelligence sources have confirmed these convictions and have led our top atomic officials to believe the Soviet Union is producing about two A-bombs a month.

Despite all this, politicians both here and in Europe have been casting doubt on Soviet A-bomb progress. Some have questioned whether Russia really has a bomb "in production."

To answer the doubters, Gordon Dean, chairman of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission, recently reaffirmed these carefully considered estimates of Russian bomb output. He predicted that by the end of 1951 the Soviet Union would have a stockpile of nearly 60 bombs.

His reply was unequivocal and it fits exactly the two-a-month estimate offered earlier. In the light of this and other sober declarations by men in the best position to know, it would seem there's no room any more for dreaming that it "just ain't so."

Our own stockpile is variously estimated at from 350 to more than 1,000 bombs. Hence we'll still have a vast numerical superiority over Russia at the end of this year.

But when that time arrives, we can no longer think of delivering an A-bomb attack on Russia without suffering painful retaliation upon our own cities. For no air defense can keep all the bombs away, and Russia will then have enough to hurt us severely.

CRIME OF SPEECH

There is a new crime in the Russian satellite countries, "war-mongering," punishable by imprisonment up to 25 years. Czechoslovakia, Hungary, East Germany and Romania have all recently placed this new crime on their statute books. They can hardly have taken the same action simultaneously without direction from Moscow.

Why this new law should have been passed is not at all clear. All these lackeys to the Kremlin now arrest, imprison and execute citizens as they please. They give no explanation, nor can they be made to do so. Why is not this freedom of punishment enough? What power can any new law give them that they do not already possess? It is, perhaps, the power of propaganda.

SYNTHETIC HEADACHES

"It's an ill wind which blows no good," and also a good one which blows no ill. A great advance in medicine has been the development of synthetic copies of many of the important drugs which are scarce or costly in their original form. The synthetics have made possible much wider application of such drugs.

But if synthetics have cured headaches, they also have created them. One of these is suffered by the Permanent Central Opium Board, which reports that control of narcotics is becoming harder because of synthetics. How true it is that man persists in inventing trouble for himself.

Residents of Guam are to pay income taxes for the first time this year. This note is for anyone who still thinks a Pacific isle is an idyllic paradise.

IMPLIED POWERS

It is unfortunate that a quarrel over the constitutional powers of the President and the Congress has developed at this moment of tragic defeat of our country on both the military and diplomatic fronts. The quarrel is a reflex to the antagonism in Congress to Dean Acheson, whom the President supports.

Some members of Congress insist that the so-called UN (90 per cent American) police action in Korea is a device to avoid submitting the question of a declaration of war to Congress, which alone has the constitutional power in the matter. Some further contend that American troops may not be sent to Europe without the consent of Congress.

President Truman contends that the President possesses implied powers; that unless the Constitution specifically forbids him to take an action, he can do "anything" that he deems it necessary to do.

Involved in all this are the treaty-making powers of the President, requiring ratification by the Senate. A treaty becomes the law of the land. The issue over the North Atlantic treaty raises the further question as to whether representatives of the administration did or did not lie to the Senate as to the nature of our commitments.

As a practical proposition, the President can do just about anything. Only three restraints are placed upon him:

1. Congressional reprisal by a failure to vote him money;
2. Supreme Court decision on an action which involves a provision of the Constitution;
3. An impeachment of the President.

All three are not within practicality in relation to the matters now being discussed in "the great debate." With Americans being killed in war, no Congress will refuse to vote funds for military action. A Supreme Court decision takes a long time, particularly on a complicated matter of a presidential implementation of a treaty. It is doubtful whether the Supreme Court would consider the question of a treaty being used as a subterfuge to void the authority of Congress. Even if lawyers found a way to bring such a matter before the Supreme Court, it would all take so long that it would be academic at the moment of decision. History does not wait for the Supreme Court.

There has only been one impeachment of a President in the United States and it ended in failure. The Constitution provides:

"The President, vice-president and all civil officers of the United States, shall be removed from office on impeachment for, and conviction of, treason, bribery, or other high crimes and misdemeanors."

It also provides:

"The House of Representatives shall chuse their speaker and other officers; and shall have the sole power of impeachment;" and

"The Senate shall have the sole power to try all impeachments. When sitting for that purpose, they shall be on oath or affirmation. When the President of the United States is tried, the chief justice shall preside; and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present."

The method is cumbersome, slow and obviously fruitless. It is not at this moment within the realm of probability that a Democratic House of Representatives will manage an impeachment or that the Senate can muster a two-thirds vote in favor of such an impeachment.

Therefore, the President can, as a practical proposition, do anything he chooses to do unless he so outrages public opinion that Congress responds by an impeachment. That is not likely to happen in the case of President Truman.

However, it is expected of the President that he will act with restraint, that he will possess the qualities of statesmanship and that he will avoid conflicts with Congress that result in a loss of confidence in government.

This involves qualities of statesmanship which Mr. Truman admits he does not possess. He defines a statesman as a dead politician, and he obviously is a politician who is not dead. But statesmanship, in its broadest implication, is the ability to husband the nation, to manage its affairs with breadth and wisdom.

Mr. Truman lacks the ability to associate Congress with his leadership. He has failed with four Congresses; the 79th, the 80th, the 81th and now the 82nd. It is unfortunate if the people come to believe that he is a Missouri Mussolini. It would be better for the country were he not so stiff-necked.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

WATER INCREASES WEIGHT

Several months ago, a team of research workers investigating the causes of obesity made the statement that water and other liquids do not make fat and that liquids need not be avoided by those seeking to reduce weight.

It is quite true that liquids do not make fat and that those of normal weight can safely drink plenty of water or other liquids without increasing fat tissue or even increasing their weight. However, those with a tendency to overweight should not drink too much liquid as fat tissue absorbs liquids like a sponge, each pound of fat holding three pounds of water.

Wrestlers and football players often lose 10 to 15 pounds in a bout or game, yet have all this weight back in 24 hours. The weight lost is mostly water, not fat tissue.

There is no question, however, but that the majority of those of normal weight do not drink enough water daily for all the needs of the body.

The body needs water to manufacture all its juices: digestive juices, water in the joints, water to moisten and lubricate the covering of the lungs and the lining of the chest against which the lungs glide when we breathe. Every cell in the body needs water to complete necessary chemical action. Physiologists say that every cell in the body is like a small fish, which must be surrounded with water in order to live.

The blood not only carries nourishment and oxygen to every cell in the body but, what is equally important, carries away the wastes manufactured by every cell in its daily work; and blood is mostly water.

In addition to fluids for digestive juices, fluids must be taken to supply stomach, small and large intestine, with enough liquid for the linings of these organs to pour out liquid on foods and the wastes from foods, helping digestion and lubrication and preventing constipation.

Most of us could drink more water safely but overweights, because of their excess fat tissue, with its excess water, could get along with half their usual quantity and so lose pounds of weight.

You Said It, Sam!

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—Tim McInerny, the ex-Justice Department official and friend of statesmen, was visiting with Pope Pius XII at Castel Gandolfo, his summer palace. McInerny, formerly a Boston newsman, had known the Pope when the latter visited Boston as papal secretary. As they paced up and down the terrace together, the conversation got round to the Teheran Conference, at which Churchill, arguing for a second front through southern Europe, pointed to the influence of the Catholic Church in that area. To this Stalin replied: "And how many divisions has the Pope?"

"Tell me, your Holiness," asked McInerny, "what was your answer when Churchill later told you about that?"

Quick as a flash, the Pope replied: "Tell my son Joseph that he will meet my divisions in eternity.

Tax Frauds

President Truman has now warned the nation that Mr. John Q. Taxpayer will have to pay taxes literally through the nose to finance rearmament.

This isn't going to be pleasant, but John Q. Taxpayer can take it—as long as no favorites are played in tax collections.

About 99 per cent of the T-men who enforce tax collections are honest, underpaid and hard-working. However, a few dishonest fixers can leave an awfully sour taste with the American people.

Exactly one year ago, for instance, this column exposed the way a small band of Internal Revenue agents were shaking down New Yorkers and gouging bribes from them in lieu of taxes.

Among those shaken down was the Kenmoor Cloak and Suit Company at 512 Seventh Ave., which made a payoff of 3,000 in cash to T-men William A. Ganey, Thomas Cannon, Jr., and James A. Bessell, who then split the money among them.

Another outfit shaken down was the Sherman Chevrolet Company, 561 Central Park Ave., Yonkers, after T-man John Galgano discovered a black-market, under-the-table transaction of $300. The two partners; Jack Ingraham and Morris Sherman, finally paid $4,000 in cash to Ganey, Bessell and Galgano, who kept $1,200 each, giving the balance to an unknown politician named "George."

The T-men also started a tax shakedown of the Rex Refrigeration Service Co., at 3097 Third Ave., New York, but Carl Sandberg, a leader of the Star Democratic Club at 1029 East 163rd street, stepped in and finally got the tax case called off.

These and many other details were published by this column one year ago. Names, dates and places were given. Naturally this is not the kind of news story some editors relish because it carries definite risks of libel. Following publication, however, Assistant Attorney General James McInerny stepped in, and as a result, William A. Ganey has now been given five years, John Galgano two years, Anthony Fiscella two and a half years and Thomas Cannon, Jr., 18 months—all behind bars. They were also fined a total of $22,209.

With high taxes, we are now heading into a period when the temptation to tax evade will be strong. A forthright system of tax collection is the only thing that can be fair to everyone.

Tide of Toys

Whether or not you agree with Herbert Hoover about sending a land army abroad, the American Legion has touched both the root and the heartstrings of the European problem by building friendships among children.

That's why hundreds of Legion post are now pouring the tide of toys toward Pier 38, Philadelphia, after which the toys will be shipped to Europe and distributed by CARE, the organization which has done so much to bring food and friendship to the European people. Here's how the tide of toys is flowing:

Toledo is going to surpass last year's total of 10,000 toys with a 1951 total of 22,000. The Toledo Boys Club even sacrificed part of its Christmas vacation to making brand new toys . . . Miami has challenged Denver, Memphis, Omaha and the bigger Legion posts to beat them this year. But Omaha, the world's largest Legion post has already piled up a pretty good start . . . Sears, Roebuck at Wilmington, Del., is donating $600 worth of toys, with the state of Delaware contributing 10,000 toys . . . In Boston, American Legion Theatrical Post No. 270 has established headquarters for their toy drive on the famous Boston Common, and newspapers and radio are cooperating to make this campaign a success . . . Biggest campaign so far is in Buffalo where about 80,000 toys are being shipped in eight boxcars to Philadelphia. The tide was so great that Mayor Joseph Mruk opened up Buffalo's Memorial Auditorium with railroad siding facilities for packaging and shipment . . . Note—don't forget to send a letter of friendship with your toy.

Chinese Communist Shift — A significant report has leaked out of China that General Lin Piao, whose troops are now fighting in Korea, has been shifted to central-south China. This is the area that borders Indo-China. Lin Piao is Communist China's most able and trusted general, so his transfer from Manchuria may mean an imminent Chinese attack on Indo-China. The Chinese Communists may figure that Korea is already in the bag, hence Lin Piao can be spared for new duties.

Mohammedan War Lord

The Chinese war lord whom he had hoped might be a bulwark against Communism, has now evacuated in a private plane and is seeking haven in the United States. He is Mohammedan General Ma Hung-Kwei, described by Life Magazine as a "block of strength in the sagging Nationalist structure. Communist agitators and invaders steer clear of Ninghsia," said Life, "mainly because they know that Ma Hung-Kwei's peasant soldiers are tough, well trained and always ready to fight for their homes." . . . General Ma, however, did not hang around to find out how well his peasant soldiers would fight. When the Chinese Communists started marching into his remote domain, he bundled his wife, nurse, wife's nurse, secretary and interpreter into a private plane and made a beeline for Hong Kong. There he picked up visitors and transit visas for his party and lit out for the United States. However, unable to get the visas extended, he set up camp in Mexico City, and is pulling strings and spending from his vast treasury chest to get a permanent permit to stay in this country.

Misunderstanding Has Arisen in Public Mind Over High Officials' Trips to Far East

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 16—There is altogether too much panic and emotion in some of the interpretations being placed on the Korean news. Despite the fact, for instance, that members of the U. S. joint chiefs of staff have been making periodic visits to the Far East during the last six months, the latest trip of General Collins, chief of staff of the army, and General Vandenberg, head of the U. S. Air Force, has been widely misconstrued.

Some observers have intimated that the purpose was to curtail the authority of General MacArthur's headquarters, and others have hinted that a withdrawal from Korea is really contemplated.

The presence of two high-level intelligence officers from the United States merely coincided with the visit of General Collins and General Vandenberg and had nothing to do with the mission of the two members of the joint chiefs of staff.

The truth is that planning in the Korean operation is never on a day-to-day but on a month-to-month or even on a two- or three-month basis. The reason that Generals Collins and Vandenberg went to the Far East, while the third member, Admiral Sherman, and the chairman, General Bradley, stayed behind, is that the joint chiefs must continue as a functioning body in Washington. In place of Admiral Sherman, there are high naval officers in the Far East to represent the navy with reference to any naval problems connected with the fighting.

The purpose of Generals Collins aand Vandenberg in flying to the Far East—they will be back in a few days—is to make a survey of the progress made to date and to take a look ahead as to manpower requirements and other problems.

The Defense Department has just announced that troop replacements are on the way and that some of them will arrive in Korea in February and some in March. The very mention of next month as the time when replacements are due is a quiet hint to the skeptics that the United States plans to keep on fighting to hold Korea.

There was some speculation here that the possibility of Chinese acceptance of the U.N. "cease fire" plan might have occasioned the trip to the Far East by Generals Collins and Vandenberg, but this is not so. The joint chiefs of staff was familiarized three weeks ago with the technical detail of the various "cease fire" plans then being offered before the U.N. The decision of the American government, however, to support the "cease fire" resolution before the U.N. was not made with the consent of or the objection of the joint chiefs, as they were not consulted on what was regarded by the Department of State as purely a diplomatic decision.

When Generals Collins and Vandenberg return to Washington, they will have completed further plans for the carrying on of the military operations in Korea and they will bring back their impressions as to how the U.N. forces are progressing.

The Korean problem is one that could change only after weeks and weeks of fighting but it is not likely to change overnight. If American losses should become prohibitive, withdrawal would be considered. If American losses are such that from a military viewpoint there would be an advantage in sending heavy reinforcements and pressing the attack northward, this will be done. So everything depends on the tide of battle in Korea and a decision is not likely to be made for several weeks.

Meanwhile a "cease fire" or a failure of the U.N. to declare Communist China an aggressor could bring about a decisive change. The latter could mean that the U. S. Air Force and Navy will be released to bomb targets and ports in Communist China. For it is inconceivable that the United States would fail to press the battle against the Communist Chinese on its own if the U.N. gets bogged down on the matter of declaring the Communist regime an aggressor or declines to follow this up with steps to punish such aggression.

It is natural that more and more of the command operation should be transferred to General Ridgway in Korea and less and less responsibility should be carried by General MacArthur. Since fairly large-scale operations are in progress and more may come later, it is important that General Ridgway have the authority of a theatre commander who also reports directly to the joint chiefs of staff. This is a normal military procedure and doubtless was recommended by General MacArthur himself, who, as a former chief of staff and wartime commander, understands fully the difference between trying to run a war in Korea and trying to run it simultaneously from an office building in Tokyo 200 or 300 miles away.

New York, Jan. 15—A phony organization, in the familiar guise of a letterhead society, is being set up to counteract the wrath of loyal Americans against actors, dancers, noted war correspondents with minimal records of experience under fire, lecturers and all such trash who have been playing the treasonous game for varying periods down to the Korean war and even down to now. The ostensible purpose is to go after traitors, but the sleight-of-hand occurs where the propaganda says that, of course we must be on guard to protect innocent persons from malicious smears by hateful minds who may have ulterior reasons for casting suspicion. To that end, we must be wary not to contribute to funds for the defense of persons who defame innocent liberals and thus bring down on themselves suits for damages.

The names of the principal founding fathers of this letterhead bund are the same old roster of Reds, frauds and fools who are found in other similar fictitious societies devoted to the same general, ultimate perfidious purposes.

I now approach again the case of Mr. and Mrs. John T. McCullough, of Greenwich, Conn., who were dragged through the courts by Paul Draper and Larry Adler and put to a total expense of $58,137 to defend themselves. Hester McCullough did not call these two Communists but she did call the turn when one of those cultural high-suburban winter-evening societies booked them for a show.

The text of her statements is contained in the pleadings and she never backed down but undertook to prove it all. The trial was held before a federal judge who served the New Deal in Congress, and it is putting a pretty face on matters to say that Hester McCullough got none of the breaks in his rulings. The result was a disagreement, but Draper and Adler may have the gall to drag Mrs. McCullough through the same ordeal again notwithstanding the change of sentiment among a remarkably apathetic citizenry who are at last aroused. In that case, Hester McCullough must have financial support or the American people will be muzzled by fear of ruinous expense. It will be dangerous to speak out, even against Communist traitors of the most flagrant type. Remember Harry Bridges once sued me for calling him a Communist.

Hester's cause is the cause of all of us, although the cheesecake Wall Street patriots of Greenwich who live neighbor to the McCulloughs haven't even put up nickels to match five-dollar bills from less pretentious citizens all over.

RUSSIA REALLY HAS A-BOMB

If there have been any lingering doubts among Americans about Russia having the atomic bomb, recent stories appearing in the U. S. press should have dispelled them.

We have more detail now, for instance, on how the government decided Moscow had exploded a bomb.

To begin with, seismographic stations—earthquake detectors—were on the alert all around the globe for any unusual disturbances. They recorded one in central Siberia in mid-1949.

Secondly, an A-bomb hurls radioactive substances high into the upper atmosphere, whereupon they are carried around the world. Scientific stations strategically placed were able to detect these particles after the explosion occurred. Once their presence was known, larger samples of the upper air were captured by planes and special balloons.

Then a group of the nation's top atomic scientists examined the samples with exhaustive care. They paid particular attention to the possibility the Russians might have accidentally discharged an atomic pile while trying to make a bomb.

They concluded unanimously that it was actually a bomb. The metallic content of the air would not fit any other conclusion. Indeed, when the scientists reported to President Truman, they told him that if it wasn't a bomb they couldn't imagine what it was.

Since that time, reliable intelligence sources have confirmed these convictions and have led our top atomic officials to believe the Soviet Union is producing about two A-bombs a month.

Despite all this, politicians both here and in Europe have been casting doubt on Soviet A-bomb progress. Some have questioned whether Russia really has a bomb "in production."

To answer the doubters, Gordon Dean, chairman of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission, recently reaffirmed these carefully considered estimates of Russian bomb output. He predicted that by the end of 1951 the Soviet Union would have a stockpile of nearly 60 bombs.

His reply was unequivocal and it fits exactly the two-a-month estimate offered earlier. In the light of this and other sober declarations by men in the best position to know, it would seem there's no room any more for dreaming that it "just ain't so."

Our own stockpile is variously estimated at from 350 to more than 1,000 bombs. Hence we'll still have a vast numerical superiority over Russia at the end of this year.

But when that time arrives, we can no longer think of delivering an A-bomb attack on Russia without suffering painful retaliation upon our own cities. For no air defense can keep all the bombs away, and Russia will then have enough to hurt us severely.

CRIME OF SPEECH

There is a new crime in the Russian satellite countries, "war-mongering," punishable by imprisonment up to 25 years. Czechoslovakia, Hungary, East Germany and Romania have all recently placed this new crime on their statute books. They can hardly have taken the same action simultaneously without direction from Moscow.

Why this new law should have been passed is not at all clear. All these lackeys to the Kremlin now arrest, imprison and execute citizens as they please. They give no explanation, nor can they be made to do so. Why is not this freedom of punishment enough? What power can any new law give them that they do not already possess? It is, perhaps, the power of propaganda.

SYNTHETIC HEADACHES

"It's an ill wind which blows no good," and also a good one which blows no ill. A great advance in medicine has been the development of synthetic copies of many of the important drugs which are scarce or costly in their original form. The synthetics have made possible much wider application of such drugs.

But if synthetics have cured headaches, they also have created them. One of these is suffered by the Permanent Central Opium Board, which reports that control of narcotics is becoming harder because of synthetics. How true it is that man persists in inventing trouble for himself.

'These Days'

IMPLIED POWERS

It is unfortunate that a quarrel over the constitutional powers of the President and the Congress has developed at this moment of tragic defeat of our country on both the military and diplomatic fronts. The quarrel is a reflex to the antagonism in Congress to Dean Acheson, whom the President supports.

Some members of Congress insist that the so-called UN (90 per cent American) police action in Korea is a device to avoid submitting the question of a declaration of war to Congress, which alone has the constitutional power in the matter. Some further contend that American troops may not be sent to Europe without the consent of Congress.

President Truman contends that the President possesses implied powers; that unless the Constitution specifically forbids him to take an action, he can do "anything" that he deems it necessary to do.

Involved in all this are the treaty-making powers of the President, requiring ratification by the Senate. A treaty becomes the law of the land. The issue over the North Atlantic treaty raises the further question as to whether representatives of the administration did or did not lie to the Senate as to the nature of our commitments.

As a practical proposition, the President can do just about anything. Only three restraints are placed upon him:

1. Congressional reprisal by a failure to vote him money;
2. Supreme Court decision on an action which involves a provision of the Constitution;
3. An impeachment of the President.

All three are not within practicality in relation to the matters now being discussed in "the great debate." With Americans being killed in war, no Congress will refuse to vote funds for military action. A Supreme Court decision takes a long time, particularly on a complicated matter of a presidential implementation of a treaty. It is doubtful whether the Supreme Court would consider the question of a treaty being used as a subterfuge to void the authority of Congress. Even if lawyers found a way to bring such a matter before the Supreme Court, it would all take so long that it would be academic at the moment of decision. History does not wait for the Supreme Court.

There has only been one impeachment of a President in the United States and it ended in failure. The Constitution provides:

"The President, vice-president and all civil officers of the United States, shall be removed from office on impeachment for, and conviction of, treason, bribery, or other high crimes and misdemeanors."

It also provides:

"The House of Representatives shall chuse their speaker and other officers; and shall have the sole power of impeachment;" and

"The Senate shall have the sole power to try all impeachments. When sitting for that purpose, they shall be on oath or affirmation. When the President of the United States is tried, the chief justice shall preside; and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present."

The method is cumbersome, slow and obviously fruitless. It is not at this moment within the realm of probability that a Democratic House of Representatives will manage an impeachment or that the Senate can muster a two-thirds vote in favor of such an impeachment.

Therefore, the President can, as a practical proposition, do anything he chooses to do unless he so outrages public opinion that Congress responds by an impeachment. That is not likely to happen in the case of President Truman.

However, it is expected of the President that he will act with restraint, that he will possess the qualities of statesmanship and that he will avoid conflicts with Congress that result in a loss of confidence in government.

This involves qualities of statesmanship which Mr. Truman admits he does not possess. He defines a statesman as a dead politician, and he obviously is a politician who is not dead. But statesmanship, in its broadest implication, is the ability to husband the nation, to manage its affairs with breadth and wisdom.

Mr. Truman lacks the ability to associate Congress with his leadership. He has failed with four Congresses; the 79th, the 80th, the 81th and now the 82nd. It is unfortunate if the people come to believe that he is a Missouri Mussolini. It would be better for the country were he not so stiff-necked.

That Body of Yours

WATER INCREASES WEIGHT

Several months ago, a team of research workers investigating the causes of obesity made the statement that water and other liquids do not make fat and that liquids need not be avoided by those seeking to reduce weight.

It is quite true that liquids do not make fat and that those of normal weight can safely drink plenty of water or other liquids without increasing fat tissue or even increasing their weight. However, those with a tendency to overweight should not drink too much liquid as fat tissue absorbs liquids like a sponge, each pound of fat holding three pounds of water.

Wrestlers and football players often lose 10 to 15 pounds in a bout or game, yet have all this weight back in 24 hours. The weight lost is mostly water, not fat tissue.

There is no question, however, but that the majority of those of normal weight do not drink enough water daily for all the needs of the body.

The body needs water to manufacture all its juices: digestive juices, water in the joints, water to moisten and lubricate the covering of the lungs and the lining of the chest against which the lungs glide when we breathe. Every cell in the body needs water to complete necessary chemical action. Physiologists say that every cell in the body is like a small fish, which must be surrounded with water in order to live.

The blood not only carries nourishment and oxygen to every cell in the body but, what is equally important, carries away the wastes manufactured by every cell in its daily work; and blood is mostly water.

In addition to fluids for digestive juices, fluids must be taken to supply stomach, small and large intestine, with enough liquid for the linings of these organs to pour out liquid on foods and the wastes from foods, helping digestion and lubrication and preventing constipation.

Most of us could drink more water safely but overweights, because of their excess fat tissue, with its excess water, could get along with half their usual quantity and so lose pounds of weight.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—Tim McInerny, the ex-Justice Department official and friend of statesmen, was visiting with Pope Pius XII at Castel Gandolfo, his summer palace. McInerny formerly a Boston newsman, had known the Pope when the latter visited Boston as papal secretary. As they paced up and down the terrace together, the conversation got round to the Teheran Conference, at which Churchill, arguing for a second front through southern Europe, pointed to the influence of the Catholic Church in that area. To this Stalin replied: "And how many divisions has the Pope?"

"Tell me, your Holiness," asked McInerny, "what was your answer when Churchill later told you about that?"

Quick as a flash, the Pope replied: "Tell my son Joseph that he will meet my divisions in eternity.

Tax Frauds

President Truman has now warned the nation that Mr. John Q. Taxpayer will have to pay taxes literally through the nose to finance rearmament.

This isn't going to be pleasant, but John Q. Taxpayer can take it—as long as no favorites are played in tax collections.

About 99 per cent of the T-men who enforce tax collections are honest, underpaid and hard-working. However, a few dishonest fixers can leave an awfully sour taste with the American people.

Exactly one year ago, for instance, this column exposed the way a small band of Internal Revenue agents were shaking down New Yorkers and gouging bribes from them in lieu of taxes.

Among those shaken down was the Kenmoor Cloak and Suit Company at 512 Seventh Ave., which made a payoff of 3,000 in cash to T-men William A. Ganey, Thomas Cannon, Jr., and James A. Bessell, who then split the money among them.

Another outfit shaken down was the Sherman Chevrolet Company, 561 Central Park Ave., Yonkers, after T-man John Galgano discovered a black-market, under-the-table transaction of $300. The two partners; Jack Ingraham and Morris Sherman, finally paid $4,000 in cash to Ganey, Bessell and Galgano, who kept $1,200 each, giving the balance to an unknown politician named "George."

The T-men also started a tax shakedown of the Rex Refrigeration Service Co., at 3097 Third Ave., New York, but Carl Sandberg, a leader of the Star Democratic Club at 1029 East 163rd street, stepped in and finally got the tax case called off.

These and many other details were published by this column one year ago. Names, dates and places were given. Naturally this is not the kind of news story some editors relish because it carries definite risks of libel. Following publication, however, Assistant Attorney General James McInerny stepped in, and as a result, William A. Ganey has now been given five years, John Galgano two years, Anthony Fiscella two and a half years and Thomas Cannon, Jr., 18 months—all behind bars. They were also fined a total of $22,209.

With high taxes, we are now heading into a period when the temptation to tax evade will be strong. A forthright system of tax collection is the only thing that can be fair to everyone.

Tide of Toys

Whether or not you agree with Herbert Hoover about sending a land army abroad, the American Legion has touched both the root and the heartstrings of the European problem by building friendships among children.

That's why hundreds of Legion post are now pouring the tide of toys toward Pier 38, Philadelphia, after which the toys will be shipped to Europe and distributed by CARE, the organization which has done so much to bring food and friendship to the European people. Here's how the tide of toys is flowing:

Toledo is going to surpass last year's total of 10,000 toys with a 1951 total of 22,000. The Toledo Boys Club even sacrificed part of its Christmas vacation to making brand new toys . . . Miami has challenged Denver, Memphis, Omaha and the bigger Legion posts to beat them this year. But Omaha, the world's largest Legion post has already piled up a pretty good start . . . Sears, Roebuck at Wilmington, Del., is donating $600 worth of toys, with the state of Delaware contributing 10,000 toys . . . In Boston, American Legion Theatrical Post No. 270 has established headquarters for their toy drive on the famous Boston Common, and newspapers and radio are cooperating to make this campaign a success . . . Biggest campaign so far is in Buffalo where about 80,000 toys are being shipped in eight boxcars to Philadelphia. The tide was so great that Mayor Joseph Mruk opened up Buffalo's Memorial Auditorium with railroad siding facilities for packaging and shipment . . . Note—don't forget to send a letter of friendship with your toy.

Chinese Communist Shift — A significant report has leaked out of China that General Lin Piao, whose troops are now fighting in Korea, has been shifted to central-south China. This is the area that borders Indo-China. Lin Piao is Communist China's most able and trusted general, so his transfer from Manchuria may mean an imminent Chinese attack on Indo-China. The Chinese Communists may figure that Korea is already in the bag, hence Lin Piao can be spared for new duties.

Mohammedan War Lord

The Chinese war lord whom he had hoped might be a bulwark against Communism, has now evacuated in a private plane and is seeking haven in the United States. He is Mohammedan General Ma Hung-Kwei, described by Life Magazine as a "block of strength in the sagging Nationalist structure. Communist agitators and invaders steer clear of Ninghsia," said Life, "mainly because they know that Ma Hung-Kwei's peasant soldiers are tough, well trained and always ready to fight for their homes." . . . General Ma, however, did not hang around to find out how well his peasant soldiers would fight. When the Chinese Communists started marching into his remote domain, he bundled his wife, nurse, wife's nurse, secretary and interpreter into a private plane and made a beeline for Hong Kong. There he picked up visitors and transit visas for his party and lit out for the United States. However, unable to get the visas extended, he set up camp in Mexico City, and is pulling strings and spending from his vast treasury chest to get a permanent permit to stay in this country.

Misunderstanding Has Arisen in Public Mind Over High Officials' Trips to Far East

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 16—There is altogether too much panic and emotion in some of the interpretations being placed on the Korean news. Despite the fact, for instance, that members of the U. S. joint chiefs of staff have been making periodic visits to the Far East during the last six months, the latest trip of General Collins, chief of staff of the army, and General Vandenberg, head of the U. S. Air Force, has been widely misconstrued.

Some observers have intimated that the purpose was to curtail the authority of General MacArthur's headquarters, and others have hinted that a withdrawal from Korea is really contemplated.

The presence of two high-level intelligence officers from the United States merely coincided with the visit of General Collins and General Vandenberg and had nothing to do with the mission of the two members of the joint chiefs of staff.

The truth is that planning in the Korean operation is never on a day-to-day but on a month-to-month or even on a two- or three-month basis. The reason that Generals Collins and Vandenberg went to the Far East, while the third member, Admiral Sherman, and the chairman, General Bradley, stayed behind, is that the joint chiefs must continue as a functioning body in Washington. In place of Admiral Sherman, there are high naval officers in the Far East to represent the navy with reference to any naval problems connected with the fighting.

The purpose of Generals Collins aand Vandenberg in flying to the Far East—they will be back in a few days—is to make a survey of the progress made to date and to take a look ahead as to manpower requirements and other problems.

The Defense Department has just announced that troop replacements are on the way and that some of them will arrive in Korea in February and some in March. The very mention of next month as the time when replacements are due is a quiet hint to the skeptics that the United States plans to keep on fighting to hold Korea.

There was some speculation here that the possibility of Chinese acceptance of the U.N. "cease fire" plan might have occasioned the trip to the Far East by Generals Collins and Vandenberg, but this is not so. The joint chiefs of staff was familiarized three weeks ago with the technical detail of the various "cease fire" plans then being offered before the U.N. The decision of the American government, however, to support the "cease fire" resolution before the U.N. was not made with the consent of or the objection of the joint chiefs, as they were not consulted on what was regarded by the Department of State as purely a diplomatic decision.

When Generals Collins and Vandenberg return to Washington, they will have completed further plans for the carrying on of the military operations in Korea and they will bring back their impressions as to how the U.N. forces are progressing.

The Korean problem is one that could change only after weeks and weeks of fighting but it is not likely to change overnight. If American losses should become prohibitive, withdrawal would be considered. If American losses are such that from a military viewpoint there would be an advantage in sending heavy reinforcements and pressing the attack northward, this will be done. So everything depends on the tide of battle in Korea and a decision is not likely to be made for several weeks.

Meanwhile a "cease fire" or a failure of the U.N. to declare Communist China an aggressor could bring about a decisive change. The latter could mean that the U. S. Air Force and Navy will be released to bomb targets and ports in Communist China. For it is inconceivable that the United States would fail to press the battle against the Communist Chinese on its own if the U.N. gets bogged down on the matter of declaring the Communist regime an aggressor or declines to follow this up with steps to punish such aggression.

It is natural that more and more of the command operation should be transferred to General Ridgway in Korea and less and less responsibility should be carried by General MacArthur. Since fairly large-scale operations are in progress and more may come later, it is important that General Ridgway have the authority of a theatre commander who also reports directly to the joint chiefs of staff. This is a normal military procedure and doubtless was recommended by General MacArthur himself, who, as a former chief of staff and wartime commander, understands fully the difference between trying to run a war in Korea and trying to run it simultaneously from an office building in Tokyo 200 or 300 miles away.

Marbletown Makes Polio Campaign Plans

Plans for the March of Dimes canvass in the town of Marbletown were discussed at a meeting of the committee Monday evening at the Rock Cliff Hotel, High Falls. Marguerite M. Quick chairman of the Marbletown committee, and her committee members outlined a plan at that time which it is expected will result in a very generous response from the townspeople.

Assisting Miss Quick on the committee are: Paul M. Sturges and Supervisor Richard Mack of Stone Ridge, Mrs. Ashton Hart, Miss Anna Draudt and Jack Smith of High Falls, Eddie Zwick and Mr. and Mrs. William Joyce of Kerhonkson.

The committee will stress the $2 cards which are being sent out by mail this week and it is hoped there will be a generous response to this plan. Those who feel they cannot contribute are asked to return the cards. The committee feels that if the cards are returned and the response generous, the success of the campaign in the town will be assured. The usual March of Dimes boxes will be placed about the town for contributions and other plans to derive funds to polio relief were discussed by the committee and among the events now planned is a card party at the Rock Cliff Hotel on January 29 and a basketball game on February 10. Other events will be announced later.

Elks Didn't Dance

Mother Carey and Her Brood

Fourteen brothers and sisters were on hand to welcome the latest Carey arrival, Bruce, who is held by his mother, Mrs. Clara Carey, as they reached home in Cliffwood Beach, N. J., from the hospital, Jan. 14. Bruce is the 18th child in 18 years in the Carey family. Left to right: Johnny, 2, Barbara, 3; Vernon, 4; Dale, 5; Emily, 6; Doris Joan, 7; Dorothy Ann, 8; Geraldine, 9; Raymond, 10; Margaret, 11; William, 12; Crawford, 13; Joseph, 15; Carol, 17; Mrs. Carey, holding Bruce; and the father, Joseph. Three of the Carey children were absent. Carey earns $60 a week as a boiler engineer and in lieu of rent he takes care of the 180-acre property on which the house is located.

clear that under the constitution it cannot extend to the deliberate making of an aggressive war and it cannot extend to the commitment of troops to an international command or to a binding commitment as to when, how and where we will fight a future war, unless we are prepared to set up a dictatorship in the United States."

In a speech prepared for the Senate, Senator Kerr (D-Okla) said Taft was trying to "reverse this nation's bi-partisan foreign policy."

Hits Hoover Idea

Kerr said adoption of former President Hoover's recommendation that the U. S. withhold further men and dollars until western Europe erects a "sure dam" against communism would cause "this mighty nation to spin its wheels in neutral when it should be surging full speed ahead."

The Oklahoman said Taft's plan to build up American air and sea strength would merely put a "posted" sign on western Europe "to keep out the Russian giant but it wouldn't station enough guards there to stop bandit Pygmies."

Outside the Senate, former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota proposed a program to start a "counter revolution" among the peoples of Russia and other countries whose government deny them freedom.

Hits At Press Group

Taft said in his New York speech that some Senators voted to go along with proposals made by President Truman "because they do not like to oppose the power of those internationalist editors, columnists, commentators and writers who have formed a close party line to support every proposal made by the State Department and smear all opponents and critics."

Taft renewed his charge that Mr. Truman had no authority to send American ground troops to Korea. He said this venture had turned into "one of the most disastrous defeats in the history of the United States."

The Ohio senator lashed out at the "cease-fire" plan adopted by the United Nations with American support. He said it involves "the most complete appeasement since Munich."

The plan calls for withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea and a conference of the United States, Britain, Russia and Communist China on admission of the Chinese Reds to the U.N. and the disposal of Formosa. The Chinese Nationalists under Chiang Kai-shek now hold Formosa.

Senators Knowland (R.-Calif.) and H. Alexander Smith (R.-N. J.) also attacked the cease fire agreement. Senator Eastland (D.-Miss.) introduced a resolution providing for U. S. withdrawal from the U.N. if Red China is admitted. He also proposed American defense of Formosa if it is attacked.

Dr. Bennett Retires

Rocky Mount, N. C., Jan. 16 (AP)—Dr. Hugh H. Bennett, the man who helped remake the race of America, will retire as chief of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service April 15. Word of Bennett's retirement when he reaches age 70 was passed out today by W. W. Eagles, president of the North Carolina Association of Soil Supervisors. The announcement coincided with the release of the story of Bennett's life, contained in the book, "Big Hugh—the Father of Soil Conservation." The book, by Wellington Brink, was published today by the Macmillan Company in New York.

Schools Will Hold

River and the American Book Company will address discussion groups at which local teachers can survey problems in which they have particular interest.

Invitations have been issued to other schools both in Ulster county and the Hudson valley. Although replies have not yet been received, it is expected that many of these schools will also be represented at the conference.

Manslaughter . . .

his two children. She was married at the time but since has been divorced.

Gehr, 40-year-old New York television director, faces a possible maximum penalty of life in prison if convicted on second degree murder. New York state law defines this count as homicide committed with the intent to kill but without premeditation.

Manslaughter is defined as homicide without intent to kill. First degree manslaughter carries a maximum penalty of 20 years and second degree manslaughter a maximum of 15 years and a $1,000 fine.

As he wound up his summation yesterday, Dickinson told the jurors that it was up to them "to decide that the facts warrant a verdict of guilty." He omitted mention of second degree murder at this point.

The prosecutor began to stress the manslaughter statute after Judge Donohoe said he would analyze the charge today.

Dickinson devoted considerable time to the reputation of the private detectives who testified for the state. He pointed to one of the detectives, Daniel Philipson, and said:

"Yes, he's dumb. But ask yourselves—isn't he honest?"

Defense Attorney Robert Dempsey, in his own summation yesterday, had said the detectives told "lies" because they were afraid to lose their licenses.

The prosecutor said the detectives and Mrs. Gehr were forced to sneak up on the cabin in order to trap "a pigeon in the cage like Mrs. Matthews."

Dempsey earlier contended that the detectives and Mrs. Gehr were "sneaking up like burglars and murderers," and that Gehr fired without knowing his wife was outside.

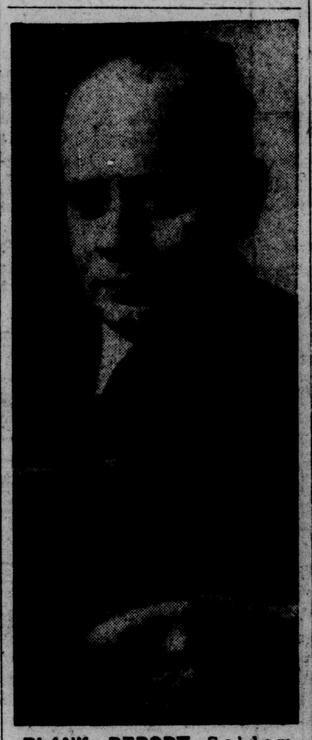

By inference, the district attorney admitted that testimony by Mrs. Matthews helped the defense more than the state.

"Whose witness was she?" he asked the jury. "I had to call her. If I hadn't, the defense might have called her."

Gehr, who listened attentively to the closing arguments, put his fingers in his ears at one point so that he might not hear Dickinson describe the course taken in his wife's body by the fatal .22 caliber bullet.

Man Sawed in Two

Bethel, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—Earl Edwards, about 65, was killed instantly today when he lost his balance and fell directly across a two-foot circular saw. His body was cut in two before workmen at the sawmill, which Edwards had owned for the past 25, years, were able to shut off the gasoline motor. Bethel is near Monticello.

'Why Korea?' Will Be Shown at the Kingston Theatre

Answers to the timely questions of why American troops are fighting in Korea are given in the gripping documentary motion picture "Why Korea?" which will be shown as a special added attraction at the Kingston Theatre for three days starting Thursday, January 18, it was announced today by Betty Riseley, manager of the Kingston Theatre.

The headline subject, compiled by Twentieth Century-Fox Movietone News, will be shown locally simultaneous with its New York city premiere. Prints were rushed for the Walter Reade Theatres showings as a public service.

A dramatic story of the historical events which led up to the United Nations police action in beleaguered Korea, the production of "Why Korea?" was undertaken by Movietone News editors following a visit Darryl F. Zanuck, vice president in charge of production for Twentieth Century Fox, had with President Truman last summer in Washington. At that time he announced his company would produce a subject designed to acquaint the public with the reasons it was necessary to embark on the Korean campaign.

Highlights of this three-reel documentary show the rise of Mussolini and Hitler; the overrunning of Manchuria by the Japanese; the invasion of Ethopia and the Nazis gobbling up country after country in central Europe. After each such episode the question is raised: "What business was this of ours?" The answer in each instance is "none." These countries were far away from the United States and the public felt secure at the time that it was truly none of our business. The picture then reveals the pattern of World War 2.

Moving into the present, "Why Korea?" shows the spread of Communist domination moving inevitably over central Europe. The Red menace is shown pushing east through Manchuria down into Korea and the newsreel cameras reveal graphically the reasons why aggression anywhere in the world must at some future date involve the freedom of the United States.

"Why Korea?" makes plain the reasons why the United States must be strong and prepared if the world is to have peace. Hundreds of thousands of feet of newsreel film was carefully edited by Movietone's staff of editors to bring to the screen the most important historical events of the last decade which form the basis for this documentary.

Manager Riseley said that the subject will be presented at every showing of "Branded" starring Alan Ladd, which will be the regular screen attraction at the Kingston Theatre.

Such collections as Charles O'Connor loaned me of local papers dating back from the "Rising Sun" of 1795 are very rare. Right now I have before me "The Ulster Sentinel" published in Kingston, Wednesday, November 9, 1836, by William Culley. Most of the front page taken up by advs. One adv. reads: "Long Island Flax Seed. We offer for sale a tierces of clean Long Island Flaxseed. J. S. Smith and Brother. According to my 25 cent dictionary, a tierce is a "cask of 42 gallons."

William Tremper has the following adv. "House and lot for sale. The subscriber offers for sale on advantageous terms, the house and lot owned and occupied by him. Said house and lot is beautifully situated on the road leading from Kingston to Rondout, about one mile from Kingston village, and a half mile from Rondout. The house is new, has a good well of water, and a choice collection of fruit trees. Those desirous of purchasing, will please call and examine the premises, Rondout, July 19, 1836." Incidentally just received a very colorful calendar from Jacob H. Tremper, insurance people of 42 Main street, not only listing the holidays but giving historical dates in color. Best of all the calendar picture is a photo of the "Jacob H. Tremper" one of our own Hudson River steamers of the old Romer-Tremper Steamboat Co.

I also understand that the Savings and Loan Assn. of 267 Wall street carries as their calendar picture this year, the historical old stone aqueduct at High Falls, which carried the old D. & H. Canal aqueduct across the Rondout Creek and canal boats which ran from Honesdale, Pa. to tidewater at Eddyville, N. Y. This two arch stone bridge was built around 1830. Must get one of those calendars from Mr. Darrow of the bank some day.

Another adv. from the 1836 Kingston paper, dated Jan. 12, read: Hollow-ware and Cauldrons. A large assortment of hollow-ware and also cauldrons, from 15 to 120 gallons, for sale at the Ulster County Furnace, by Jas. W. Baldwin & Co." What did they use such large vessels for in those days?

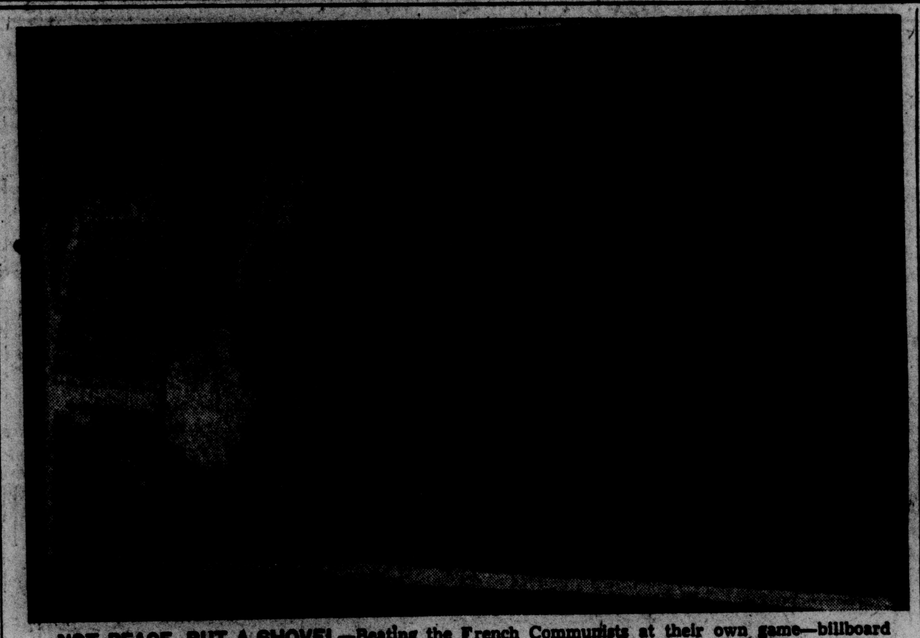

The following adv. will really send you: "Sperm oil and candles—10 bbls. superior Winter Oil, 30 boxes Mould and Sperm candles, just received, and for sale by Daniel H. Mansfield, Rondout." I wonder what Danny Mansfield would think of our modern indirect lighting, and Neon signs. And yet those were the days they did beautiful craftwork, especially in embroideries, like samplers.

That was just about 60 years after the Revolution and Kingston was not only set up for living quarters but had luxuries as well as the following advs. states: "J. K. Trumpbour has just received an assortment of broadcloths, cassimers, sattenetts and mole-skin of superior quality. Also French merino cloths, English and German, English circassians and an assortment of silks and calicoes, etc."

Wm. Smith's adv. advised that he was continuing the "Cloth Dressing and Cleaning business in St. James street, nearly opposite the Academy. He also attended to the white washing of houses. All orders thankfully received and punctually attended to."

Go See It . . For an Inspiration !

Standard equipment, accessories and trim illustrated are subject to change without notice.

You ought to go see the new Cadillac. You ought to walk all around it and look at it from every angle—and you ought to open the door and get in and sit down.

You ought to slide over behind the wheel and look out over that jewel-like dash into the exciting beyond.

And you ought to do this, whatever the car you own today—and whatever the car you expect to own.

For it will lift up your spirits and add to your faith in America's industrial enterprise and productive ingenuity.

Yes—it's an inspiration just to see it.

You look at those beautiful, flowing lines—and you can't escape the conviction that America's industrial artistry in metals is unsurpassed in all the world.

You look at the fabrics that tailor the seats and cushions—and you realize that America's manufacturing genius is unapproached for bringing luxury into everyday life.

You look at the flawless execution of every structural detail—and you have the comforting feeling that America's industrial craftsmanship is in a class by itself.

But your greatest inspiration is yet to come.

You ask the attendant on the display room floor to give you the price of the lowest-priced Cadillac model—and you find that it's easily within the means of hundreds of thousands of American families.

Where else, in all the world—you ask yourself—could there be such a blending of luxury and practicality?

And the answer, of course, is—"nowhere." It's strictly an American "monopoly."

Since you're coming in to see the car, we won't try to tell you too much about it. But come with your hopes set high.

For here is the new standard for the automotive world. It is new in beauty, in comfort, in luxury and in performance.

We'll be looking for you—some day soon.

Would Outlaw Cap Pistols

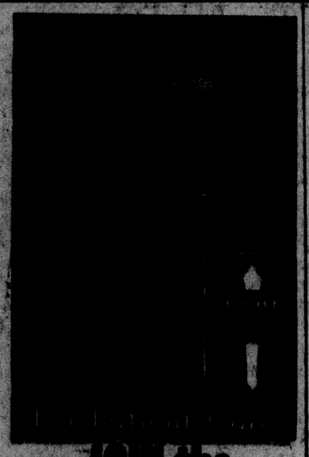

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—At the risk of incurring the wrath of uncounted Hopalong Cassidys, the Legislature considered today a proposal to outlaw cap pistols again in New York state. Senator George T. Manning, Rochester Republican, introduced a bill last night to ban the sale and use of toy pistols and other toys in which explosives are used. The Legislature lifted the ban last year. Cap pistols previously were outlawed by the state's anti-fireworks law.

Notes on Music

FINGERING

In piano studies, there are three rudiments which are of extreme importance. These are counting, notes and fingering. Once these have been explained, the student is expected to carefully regard them for himself during the rest of his studies. Pupils must learn to police themselves in regard to these rudiments, for carelessness causes an insecure foundation which no successful performance can ever be built upon.

Pupils generally do understand the necessity for playing correct notes; however, the importance of accurate and precise fingering at all times is a thing which they seldom understand. Indeed, fingering is probably the most neglected rudiment in piano playing.

Adherence to a choice of fingering can either make or break a piece. Memorizing and speed in learning are unfavorably affected if the fingering of a composition is not right for that performer.

Probably the reason why this important rudiment is so often neglected is that the student finds that he can "after a fashion" actually play the right notes.

However in order effectively to learn a composition so that it can be played with sureness and confidence, it is absolutely necessary that every practice repetition be the same as every other, insofar as fingering is concerned.

Some pianists spend as much as one third of the total learning time of a new composition in the choosing of the most suitable fingering. Simplicity should be the keynote when starting on the new piece. First, the piece should be played through several times in order to gain a conception of the character of it as a whole. Then, measure for measure, it should be examined from beginning to end and the most convenient fingering pencilled in.

Editors' fingerings are good in some cases but many times they should be regarded with skepticism. In many cases the fingering might have been written for a hand of different size and shape than that of the pupil. Also in some cases, these fingerings were hastily written by a "dollar-a-page" man, who has different notions as to how chromatic scales and repeated notes are to be played.

The pupil should, after inventing his own fingering, check it over with his teacher before routine practice begins on the piece. Sometimes a plan of fingering a passage which gives the best effect during slow practice tempo will not stand up to the final performance speed of the composition.

The problem at the very beginning is to find the easiest and most convenient fingering to which the student may most faithfully adhere in all future playings.

The Virgin Islands form the most eastern outpost of the United States.

As Pegler Sees It

of them." Those are my considered sentiments about the Greenwich aristocracy.

Mrs. McCullough still owes legitimate debts of $16,500 arising out of this lawsuit, including the investigation and the trial. A recent appeal, accompanied by a statement of account, brought in about $4,200. Much of this money, indeed most of the contributions to date, was accounted for by a few large checks from public-spirited individuals.

The largest gift in the recent response was $500 from a manufacturer who felt that Hester's cause was actually his own cause. These gifts are not deductible from taxable income. They are are real money.

The McCulloughs had to spend $2,000 of their own, which was all they had. I think they should be reimbursed. Public opinion ran rather high when the plaintiffs attached the home where the McCulloughs live with their own small child, when it was still an open question—as it remains this day—whether they ever would owe the elfin faun and the esthetic piper anything at all. Draper and Adler took off the attachment when the publicity began to take effect.

T. B. Reed Pancoast, the surrogate of Salem county, N. J., has sent me a check for $25, covered by a letter which says:

"Last night, our Salem county committee of the American Legion contributed $25, which is a lot more than I expected. I did not have to urge them. As one of them said: 'If this woman is willing to stand up and fight and risk her entire estate, some of the rest of us should help her.' Three other members came over and took down the McCulloughs' name. I suspect that they are going to stand up and be counted and fight back."

There seems to be a belief that because one dollar buys so little now, contributions of a dollar each are too small. Only a few thousand have contributed whereas it would have been a much more heartening sign of wide patriotic sympathy if 58,187 loyal Americans had sent one dollar each and cleared it all up. Few persons in the one-dollar financial brackets came through, although as I say, there may be a feeling that a single dollar wouldn't help.

Are there 24,500 such Americans in the entire country who will send a dollar to pay Hester McCullough out of a debt incurred in this patriotic ordeal, remembering, also, that this girl went through a hell of harassment for almost a year and was made ill and suffered great pain in the cause?

Please do not send any money to me. That would only complicate my work and Hester McCullough's. Send those 24,500 individual one-dollar bills to Mrs. John T. McCullough, Parsonage Rd., Greenwich, Conn., and make a mental pledge to duplicate the gift and hustle up as many more like it as may be necessary to defend her to the end if Draper and Adler bring the case to trial again.

Patriotic Americans will learn with a peculiar interest that Draper and Adler have been whining over their impoverishment because the American public would not patronize their dancing and piping respectively.

Bills in Legislature

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—Use of European displaced persons for an anti-Communist military force under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was proposed today by a Republican legislator.

Assemblyman James A. Fitzpatrick of Plattsburg introduced a resolution urging Congress to "initiate an immediate investigation of the number of such persons available and qualified for service."

He said that "the utilization of this available source of manpower should release large numbers of American young men for productive service in other fields and would thus afford activity and employment for both the minds and bodies of those Europeans now confined."

Other bills introduced in the Legislature would:

Give civil service employes serving in the armed forces the same increment credit, sick leave and vacation credits that they would have earned had they remained on their civilian jobs (Senator Seymour Halpern and Assemblyman Samuel Rabin, R-Queens).

Extend unemployment insurance benefits to persons who work on a day-by-day basis (Halpern and Rabin).

Provide for an inspection of railroad safety equipment by a representative of the State Public Service Commission before each train left its terminal (Assemblyman Philip J. Schupler, D-Brooklyn).

Create a temporary state commission to study the construction of public highways and bridges (Senator MacNeil Mitchell, R-Manhattan).

Permit members of the armed forces to marry without waiting 24 hours after obtaining marriage licenses (Assemblyman William M. Stuart, R-Canisteo).

Repeal the Feinberg Law banning members of subversive organizations from jobs in public schools (Senator Fred G. Moritt, D-Brooklyn).

Establish one $350 teacher training scholarship annually in each Assembly district for elementary teachers (Assemblyman Wheeler Milmoe, R-Canastota).

Bills to boost liability insurance coverage now required of taxicab operators will be introduced in the Legislature again with the backing of the State Insurance Department.

Identical measures were returned to the Assembly Insurance Committee last year without a final vote after cab interests charged that the bills were a move "to throttle the taxi industry."

Rabin said he would introduce the bills again, probably late this week. He said they would have the backing of the Insurance Department.

Workers Ask Increase

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—The association of New York State highway employes asks a 20 per cent cost-of-living pay increase for all state workers in "lower" pay brackets. If wage boosts being considered for all state employes are less than 20 per cent, the association wants Governor Dewey to grant such an increase to highway maintenance workers, paid by the hour or day. The organization, which claims 1,300 members, submitted the request to the governor yesterday. The association president, Lee Cushman of Plymouth, N. Y., said hourly and daily paid highway workers were not covered by the state's automatic increment system.

Notes on Music

FINGERING

In piano studies, there are three rudiments which are of extreme importance. These are counting, notes and fingering. Once these have been explained, the student is expected to carefully regard them for himself during the rest of his studies. Pupils must learn to police themselves in regard to these rudiments, for carelessness causes an insecure foundation which no successful performance can ever be built upon.

Pupils generally do understand the necessity for playing correct notes; however, the importance of accurate and precise fingering at all times is a thing which they seldom understand. Indeed, fingering is probably the most neglected rudiment in piano playing.

Adherence to a choice of fingering can either make or break a piece. Memorizing and speed in learning are unfavorably affected if the fingering of a composition is not right for that performer.

Probably the reason why this important rudiment is so often neglected is that the student finds that he can "after a fashion" actually play the right notes.

However in order effectively to learn a composition so that it can be played with sureness and confidence, it is absolutely necessary that every practice repetition be the same as every other, insofar as fingering is concerned.

Some pianists spend as much as one third of the total learning time of a new composition in the choosing of the most suitable fingering. Simplicity should be the keynote when starting on the new piece. First, the piece should be played through several times in order to gain a conception of the character of it as a whole. Then, measure for measure, it should be examined from beginning to end and the most convenient fingering penciled in.

Editors' fingerings are good in some cases but many times they should be regarded with skepticism. In many cases the fingering might have been written for a hand of different size and shape than that of the pupil. Also in some cases, these fingerings were hastily written by a "dollar-a-page" man, who has different notions as to how chromatic scales and repeated notes are to be played.

The pupil should, after inventing his own fingering, check it over with his teacher before routine practice begins on the piece. Sometimes a plan of fingering a passage which gives the best effect during slow practice tempo will not stand up to the final performance speed of the composition.

The problem at the very beginning is to find the easiest and most convenient fingering to which the student may most faithfully adhere in all future playings.

The Virgin Islands form the most eastern outpost of the United States.

As Pegler Sees It

of them." Those are my considered sentiments about the Greenwich aristocracy.

Mrs. McCullough still owes legitimate debts of $16,500 arising out of this lawsuit, including the investigation and the trial. A recent appeal, accompanied by a statement of account, brought in about $4,200. Much of this money, indeed most of the contributions to date, was accounted for by a few large checks from public-spirited individuals.

The largest gift in the recent response was $500 from a manufacturer who felt that Hester's cause was actually his own cause. These gifts are not deductible from taxable income. They are real money.

The McCulloughs had to spend $8,000 of their own, which was all they had. I think they should be reimbursed. Public opinion ran rather high when the plaintiffs attached the home where the McCulloughs live with their own small child, when it was still an open question—as it remains this day—whether they ever would owe the elfin faun and the esthetic piper anything at all. Draper and Adler took off the attachment when the publicity began to take effect.

T. B. Reed Pancoast, the surrogate of Salem county, N. J., has sent me a check for $25, covered by a letter which says:

"Last night, our Salem county committee of the American Legion contributed $25, which is a lot more than I expected. I did not have to urge them. As one of them said: 'If this woman is willing to stand up and fight and risk her entire estate, some of the rest of us should help her.' Three other members came over and took down the McCulloughs' name. I suspect that they are going to stand up and be counted and fight back."

There seems to be a belief that because one dollar buys so little now, contributions of a dollar each are too small. Only a few thousand have contributed whereas it would have been a much more heartening sign of wide patriotic sympathy if 58,187 loyal Americans had sent one dollar each and cleared it all up. Few persons in the one-dollar financial brackets came through, although as I say, there may be a feeling that a single dollar wouldn't help.

Are there 24,500 such Americans in the entire country who will send a dollar to pay Hester McCullough out of a debt incurred in this patriotic ordeal, remembering, also, that this girl went through a hell of harassment for almost a year and was made ill and suffered great pain in the cause?

Please do not send any money to me. That would only complicate my work and Hester McCullough's. Send those 24,500 individual one-dollar bills to Mrs. John T. McCullough, Parsonage Rd., Greenwich, Conn., and make a mental pledge to duplicate the gift and hustle up as many more like it as may be necessary to defend her to the end if Draper and Adler bring the case to trial again.

Patriotic Americans will learn with a peculiar interest that Draper and Adler have been whining over their impoverishment because the American public would not patronize their dancing and piping respectively.

Bills in Legislature

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—Use of European displaced persons for an anti-Communist military force under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was proposed today by a Republican legislator.

Assemblyman James A. Fitzpatrick of Plattsburg introduced a resolution urging Congress to "initiate an immediate investigation of the number of such persons available and qualified for service."

He said that "the utilization of this available source of manpower should release large numbers of American young men for productive service in other fields and would thus afford activity and employment for both the minds and bodies of those Europeans now confined."

Other bills introduced in the Legislature would:

Give civil service employes serving in the armed forces the same increment credit, sick leave and vacation credits that they would have earned had they remained on their civilian jobs (Senator Seymour Halpern and Assemblyman Samuel Rabin, R-Queens).

Extend unemployment insurance benefits to persons who work on a day-by-day basis (Halpern and Rabin).

Provide for an inspection of railroad safety equipment by a representative of the State Public Service Commission before each train left its terminal (Assemblyman Philip J. Schupler, D-Brooklyn).

Create a temporary state commission to study the construction of public highways and bridges (Senator MacNeil Mitchell, R-Manhattan).

Permit members of the armed forces to marry without waiting 24 hours after obtaining marriage licenses (Assemblyman William M. Stuart, R-Canisteo).

Repeal the Feinberg Law banning members of subversive organizations from jobs in public schools (Senator Fred G. Moritt, D-Brooklyn).

Establish one $350 teacher training scholarship annually in each Assembly district for elementary teachers (Assemblyman Wheeler Milmoe, R-Canastota).

Bills to boost liability insurance coverage now required of taxicab operators will be introduced in the Legislature again with the backing of the State Insurance Department.

Identical measures were returned to the Assembly Insurance Committee last year without a final vote after cab interests charged that the bills were a move "to throttle the taxi industry."

Rabin said he would introduce the bills again, probably late this week. He said they would have the backing of the Insurance Department.

Workers Ask Increase

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—The association of New York State highway employes asks a 20 per cent cost-of-living pay increase for all state workers in "lower" pay brackets. If wage boosts being considered for all state employes are less than 20 per cent, the association wants Governor Dewey to grant such an increase to highway maintenance workers, paid by the hour or day. The organization, which claims 1,200 members, submitted the request to the governor yesterday. The association president, Leo Cushman of Plymouth, N. Y., said hourly and daily paid highway workers were not covered by the state's automatic increment system.

Would Outlaw Cap Pistols

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—At the risk of incurring the wrath of uncounted Hopalong Cassidys, the Legislature considered today a proposal to outlaw cap pistols again in New York state. Senator George T. Manning, Rochester Republican, introduced a bill last night to ban the sale and use of toy pistols and other toys in which explosives are used. The Legislature lifted the ban last year. Cap pistols previously were outlawed by the state's anti-fireworks law.

Good Taste Today

by Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "Children Are People," etc.)

MEANING OF "COMING OUT"

A mother writes: "My daughter will not have her coming-out party until next year, when she will be eighteen. However, many of her friends are coming out this year at the usual Cotillion. Should she be allowed to go to this party or will that make her own coming out next year a bit ridiculous?"

If the Cotillion that you speak of is one given for the debutantes, her appearance at this will definitely include her in their number. In other words, "coming out" means going to debutante parties. The only time at which her appearance at a debutante party would not mean her coming out would be at a dance in her own home given for her older sister, at which she might be admitted that one evening.

John Smith, 2nd?

Dear Mrs. Post: Who is called John Smith, 2nd? Is he the grandson of a man of the same name, as someone has told me you have said?

Answer: Yes, but only if he has an uncle who is named Junior for the still living John Smith. If there were no uncle and his father has another name, the boy would be Junior.

Long Gloves at Dinner

Dear Mrs. Post: I know you've always been very much against turning long gloves back at the wrist. But what about modern gloves? Mine are long and match my evening dress and I wear a collection of rather handsome bracelets outside the glove. It will be less becoming and even difficult to remove the gloves. What about turning these in at the wrist?

Answer: I agree that for you, the practical solution is to turn them in.

Sympathy for Death of Divorced Husband

Dear Mrs. Post: The man I was married to and divorced from a number of years ago, died lately. A distant friend sent me a sympathy card and I considered this in very bad taste. I'd like your opinion.

Answer: I agree with you.

Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. Should your question be when to wear a hat, or should gloves be worn with an evening dress, you will find the answer in leaflet, E-35, "The Well-Dressed Woman." To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to her, c/o The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

Galaxy of Stars To Brighten Scene At Marines' Ball

According to the theatrical agency booking the stage show for the fifth annual ball of Ulster Detachment, Marine Corps League, there will be a galaxy of stars to please the patrons of the event, a goodly portion of the proceeds from which will go to disabled veterans.

Jimmy Daly, one of the leading bookers of talent over a period of years running back to the good old vaudeville days, he has a top-flight show arranged for the social to be held in the Kingston Elks Club on Fair street, Saturday night, Jan. 20.

Ty and Tony, acrobatic dancers, are two of the performers making up the show that will present more than five acts for the pleasure of those in attendance. Music for dancing will be by Don Pierson's local orchestra.

Besides the dancers, other entertainers already announced are Wally Overman, novelty comedy cartoonist, The Selandias, unique continental dance team; Don and Thelma Greenwood, artists in deception with their routine of magic and Dancing Buddy, in his Little Touch of Harlem.

Other acts will be announced in the near future.

Commandant Albert J. Melville of the Marine detachment today reported that ticket sales indicate a large attendance for the Saturday night affair being held in the Elks club on invitation from that organization which endorses the project to help wounded veterans.

The Elks have been carrying on a program of their own since World War 1 to entertain and assist Americans serving in the armed forces.

At a recent meeting Exalted Ruler James G. Connelly urged Elks to attend the ball which is one of the major activities promoted during the incumbency, of Commandant Melville, who is also an Elk.

Refreshments will be available throughout the night through the courtesy of the Elks.

The doors will open at 8 p. m. Dancing is scheduled to start at 9 o'clock and the show will go on at 10. After the acts dancing will continue for the remainder of the night.

Former Pastor Ends New Parish's Debt

The Rev. Stanislaus J. Malinowski, pastor of St. Stanislaus Church, Staten Island, it was announced today, recently celebrated the removal of that parish's original debt of $134,000, which faced him when he left this city April 19, 1945.

In his first address to his people, the Rev. Fr. Malinowski promised the debt would be cleared within ten years. This January, little more than five years later, the promise has been kept.

In an official letter from the Rt. Rev. John J. McGuire, chancellor of the archdiocese, the debt was aknowledged liquidated.

"Please accept," the letter read, "a hearty 'prosit' on a job well done. It is a fine tribute to your own zeal and leadership, and to the magnificent cooperation of your people to achieve what you have accomplished in such a short space of time."

Randel Discusses Fluorine Treatment

Guest speaker Thursday afternoon during a meeting of the Mothers Club of School No. 5 was Dr. Victor Randel, who discussed the effects of fluorine treatment. Comparing the school age children in both Newburgh and Kingston, Dr. Randel pointed out that the children in Newburgh, where fluorine is added to drinking water, suffer from fewer cavities.

Fluorine treatments, he told the group, should be given at the ages of three, seven, 10 and 13. Foods containing fluorine, he added, are eggs, milk, salmon, and chicken soup.

During the business meeting, with Mrs. Addison Scholes presiding, Mrs. Walter Fallon was elected chairman of the Valentine tea which will be held at the next meeting. The group was thanked for obtaining clothing for a few needy children, and it was announced a foodless food sale will be held sometime during the month. The Mothers Club also expressed their thanks to the Lions Club for purchasing Christmas candy for the school pupils.

Ellenville School Paper Awarded 1st Prize in Contest

Announcement was made today on a report of the 1950 School Press Project carried on by the Ulster County Tuberculosis and Health Association. The judges, representing the newspapers, the health and education departments, and the Board of Directors of the Tuberculosis Association were Fred Hoffman, Floyd Edinger, Dr. Robert H. Broad, B. C. Van Ingen, and C. D. Raymond.

The judges were most generous in their praise for the the effort and response which was made by the many students who participated in this press project. This is the 14th year that school papers all over the country have taken part in the health education program of their respective tuberculosis associations. The Tuberculosis Association believes that such a program is an extremely valuable one in giving information about tuberculosis — the disease that kills more people between the ages of 15 and 34 than any other disease. They also recognize that the school press is one of the most powerful means of spreading this valuable health information.

The Ellenville High School paper, "The Quill," received first place. "Nepa - Hi-Lites," New Paltz High School, was awarded second place. "MJM Chatter," Kingston Junior High School paper received third place and "Dame Rumor," Kingston High School was awarded fourth place.

Entries were judged on accuracy of fact, clearness, originality, and journalistic style. Evidence of careful research and intelligent understanding were given first consideration when the entries were judged.

The contest was co-sponsored by the Ulster County Tuberculosis and Health Association, the State and National Tuberculosis Associations, and the Columbia Scholastic Press Association. The schools participating in the project carried staff-written articles, editorials, and cartoons on "What Facilities Does My Community Need to Fight TB" and "How the Christmas Seals Fight TB."

The four best entries from Ulster County will now be forwarded to the State Committee on Tuberculosis and Public Health. Nine outstanding entries from each state can be sent to the National Tuberculosis Association for judging. These papers will be judged by a nationally selected committee of health educators and journalists. Each school submitting entries approved by the national committee will be awarded a certificate of honor by the National Tuberculosis Association and the Columbia Scholastic Press Association.

Good Taste Today

MEANING OF "COMING OUT"

A mother writes: "My daughter will not have her coming-out party until next year, when she will be eighteen. However, many of her friends are coming out this year at the usual Cotillion. Should she be allowed to go to this party or will that make her own coming out next year a bit ridiculous?"

If the Cotillion that you speak of is one given for the debutantes, her appearance at this will definitely include her in their number. In other words, "coming out" means going to debutante parties. The only time at which her appearance at a debutante party would not mean her coming out would be at a dance in her own home given for her older sister, at which she might be admitted that one evening.

John Smith, 2nd?

Dear Mrs. Post: Who is called John Smith, 2nd? Is he the grandson of a man of the same name, as someone has told me you have said?

Answer: Yes, but only if he has an uncle who is named Junior for the still living John Smith. If there were no uncle and his father has another name, the boy would be Junior.

Long Gloves at Dinner

Dear Mrs. Post: I know you've always been very much against turning long gloves back at the wrist. But what about modern gloves? Mine are long and match my evening dress and I wear a collection of rather handsome bracelets outside the glove. It will be less becoming and even difficult to remove the gloves. What about turning these in at the wrist?

Answer: I agree that for you, the practical solution is to turn them in.

Sympathy for Death of Divorced Husband

Dear Mrs. Post: The man I was married to and divorced from a number of years ago, died lately. A distant friend sent me a sympathy card and I considered this in very bad taste. I'd like your opinion.

Answer: I agree with you.

Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. Should your question be when to wear a hat, or should gloves be worn with an evening dress, you will find the answer in leaflet, E-35, "The Well-Dressed Woman." To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to her, c/o The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

One of the Featured Acts for Marine Ball

One of the feature acts on the program for the fifth annual ball of Ulster Detachment, Marine Corps League, will present Ty and Tony, in their acrobatic specialties. The social event will be held at the Kingston Elks Club on Fair street, Saturday night, Jan. 20. This team of talented dancers has appeared on the stages of the nation's leading theatres and in some of the biggest night clubs. (Belanger Photo)

Galaxy of Stars To Brighten Scene At Marines' Ball

According to the theatrical agency booking the stage show for the fifth annual ball of Ulster Detachment, Marine Corps League, there will be a galaxy of stars to please the patrons of the event, a goodly portion of the proceeds from which will go to disabled veterans.

Jimmy Daly, one of the leading bookers of talent over a period of years running back to the good old vaudeville days, he has a top-flight show arranged for the social to be held in the Kingston Elks Club on Fair street, Saturday night, Jan. 20.

Ty and Tony, acrobatic dancers, are two of the performers making up the show that will present more than five acts for the pleasure of those in attendance. Music for dancing will be by Don Pierson's local orchestra.

Besides the dancers, other entertainers already announced are Wally Overman, novelty comedy cartoonist, The Selandias, unique continental dance team; Don and Thelma Greenwood, artists in deception with their routine of magic and Dancing Buddy, in his Little Touch of Harlem.

Other acts will be announced in the near future.

Commandant Albert J. Melville of the Marine detachment today reported that ticket sales indicate a large attendance for the Saturday night affair being held in the Elks club on invitation from that organization which endorses the project to help wounded veterans.

The Elks have been carrying on a program of their own since World War 1 to entertain and assist Americans serving in the armed forces.

At a recent meeting Exalted Ruler James G. Connelly urged Elks to attend the ball which is one of the major activities promoted during the incumbency, of Commandant Melville, who is also an Elk.

Refreshments will be available throughout the night through the courtesy of the Elks.

The doors will open at 8 p. m. Dancing is scheduled to start at 9 o'clock and the show will go on at 10. After the acts dancing will continue for the remainder of the night.

Phil Corrado Rolls 716 Triple in City League With 234, 278, 204

His First '700'; 278 Solo Is New League Record

New Ball Produces Sudden Strike Spree

Give a man a horse he can ride and a bowler a newly-drilled grip and sometimes you get amazing results.

The latest exhibit No. 1 is Phil Corrado, youthful veteran of the major league wheels in Kingston.

A few weeks ago Phil was floundering in one of the worst slumps of his career. He sauntered over to Johnny Ferraro's bowling clinic in the basement of the Bowlodrome and was promptly presented with a custom-fitted new grip.

The first time out, Corrado started a City League game with seven strikes in a row.

Last night, in the same league, he reached the pinnacle of his career with a brilliant 716 series on games of 234, 278 and 204.

The new 278 eclipsed by a single pin the former high of 277 held by Johnny Ferraro. Phil's 716—the first "700" blast of his career in league play—fell short of Ferraro's seasonal record of 733.

Flirts With 290

Corrado opened his middle set with a spare and then tossed nine strikes in a row. With a "290" in the wood, he left two pins standing on the second ball in the tenth, converted the spare and filled with another strike.

Oddly enough, Phil's team mates were not carried along by his tidal wave of strikes on the famed 7 and 8 drives at the Central Recs, but Johnny Ferraro managed to sneak home with a 666 blast via 197-210-259 for Old Capital Motors, recent three-game conquerors of the Colonials.

The "600" list for the night included the usual honor roll of hotshots, including George Robinson with 203-225-200-628; Larry Weishaupt 204-213-200-617; "Hod" Spaulding 209-232-628; Chris Gallo 202-224-623; Bill Kuehn 224-600; Harry Smith 222-205-619 and Charlie Manfro 223-200-600.

KAA Meeting Set Wednesday

The monthly meeting of the Kingston Athletic Association is scheduled on Wednesday, Jan. 17, at 8 p. m. at the Stuyvesant Hotel.

President Robert Umpleby requests a large attendance, since final plans will be made for the annual Hot Stove League dinner on Wednesday, Jan. 31, at the Barn.

Colonel Edward P. F. Eagan, boxing commissioner of the state of New York; golfer Gene Sarazen and Carl E. Stotz, national commissioner of the Little Baseball League, have accepted invitations to speak. A fourth speaker will be announced later.

Horse Racing Holds The Line

New York, Jan. 16 (AP)—With 1950 horse race betting showing an increase in several key states, it appeared today that the steady nationwide decline in wagering and attendance from the peak year of 1946 had come to a halt.

The annual year-end Associated Press survey of pari-mutuel betting and attendance at the country's race tracks shows that 23,026,028 persons shoved $1,389,109,699 through the windows last season.

In 1950, racing with pari-mutuel betting was conducted in 23 states, compared with only 21 in 1949. Colorado and Maine were the newcomers to the turf sport.

Including both Colorado and Maine, betting last year fell off only 1.34 per cent as compared with 1949. Attendance, however, showed an increase of 0.62 per cent.

With Colorado and Maine excluded, the decline for the 21 states which conducted racing in 1949 was 2.34 per cent in betting, and 1.20 per cent in attendance. In 1949, attendance was 22,885,062 persons, who bet $1,407,946,030. Excluding Maine and Colorado, the 1950 betting handle was $1,375,048,844 and attendance 22,609,322.

Maxim-Charles Bout in Making

Cleveland, Jan. 16 (AP)—Dapper Joey Maxim fidgeted in his East Side Cleveland delicatessen today, hoping to go after Ezzard Charles and the world's heavyweight boxing title.

In case anyone has forgotten Joey, he's the world light heavyweight champion. He hasn't defended his title since he got it from Freddie Mills in England a year ago.

But Joey claims his chatty manager, Jack Kearns, is "positive" a Maxim-Charles fight will be carded for this summer, possibly in Pittsburgh or Chicago.

"That heavyweight championship is all Doc (Kearns) thinks about," said Maxim. "And he's the boss. I never was so sure of myself and that's the truth."

Maxim has fought Charles three times and lost them all on points.

Davis Passes Up Army Commission

Los Angeles, Jan. 16 (AP)—Halfback Glenn Davis of the Los Angeles Rams is passing up a reserve commission in the Army—at least for the present—say officials of his professional football club.

Similar letters have been sent to all former Army officers, giving them the privilege of refusing or accepting a reserve commission. Davis, a graduate of West Point, joined the Rams in 1950 after his resignation as a first lieutenant.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

At the risk of being accused of kicking dead dogs, we'll have to re-open discussion concerning the rhubarb that developed the night Kingston High edged Poughkeepsie High by a single point at the municipal auditorium.

You remember the occasion. The night of "The Clock" incident.

His protest voted down by the DUSO League Council, which based its decision on a DUSO League by-law that the "referee shall be the final authority on the score and time," Coach Sam Kalloch carried his appeal to Oswald Tower, nationally known editor of the basketball rule book and the Oliver Wendell Holmes of the rules interpretation world.

The point we raise is this: If Kalloch insisted on carrying his appeal to a higher authority, then we must grant ourselves the privilege of extended editorial opinion about an incident that we considered long closed and forgotten.

Kalloch notified the Poughkeepsie press last Saturday that he had received a letter from Mr. Tower which indicated that Poughkeepsie didn't get a just decision in its recent protest of the DUSO League game in Kingston.

"In his letter, Mr. Tower states that the foul should have been allowed," said the Blue coach.

The foul referred to therein was the one called against Kingston eight seconds after the game had ended. When Timer Jim Tobin notified Referee Joe Palone that the Kingston foul had been committed several seconds after the contest ended, the grinning West Point lieutenant ruled that the foul did not count and the game was over.

"Mr. Tower, a great basketball authority, wrote me that the referee was in error when he did not appoint an official timer who met with the approval of both teams before the start of play," said Kalloch.

"I am not convinced that Kingston won that game," said the coach.

"At the meeting in Middletown, a paragraph in the DUSO rules which states that the 'referee shall be the final authority on the score any time,'" was quoted. However, on another page, it states that "all games shall be played according to interscholastic rules." And, according to Mr. Tower, the official rules were not followed," he added.

Assuming that Coach Kalloch is standing on technicalities, he is also guilty of a slight case of sour apples.

In the first place, there was a qualified timekeeper on duty, one whom Kalloch has not seen fit to challenge for many years. Secondly, it is customary, as Kalloch knows, to designate the visiting scorer as official and the home timer as official. This is not a new arrangement and has been in existence for many years.

As for Mr. Tower's observation that the official rules were not followed to the letter, the patriarch of rules interpretation is correct. On the other hand, it is not unusual to have a league or conference abrogate strict interpretations of the "book" rule in favor of "homemade rules." Kalloch knows that, too.

It is doubtful if Mr. Tower's letter will have much effect on DUSO moguls. They want to forget it like everybody else—except Kalloch.

And we have to wonder about Kalloch's communication to Tower.

Did it mention the fact that when Referee Joe Palone halted hostilities that clock was eight seconds over. And it was as plain to Kalloch as to anybody else in the hall that night.

Tebbetts Signs

Cleveland, Jan. 16 (AP)—Peppery Birdie Tebbetts, Cleveland's new catcher, has signed his 1951 contract. This brings to five the number signed. The others are Early Wynn and Steve Gromek, pitchers, and Outfielders Larry Doby and Jim Lemon. Lemon, however, is due for the army.

St. Ursula's Wins

Scranton—Gene Hairston, 159, New York, outpointed Artie Towne, 163, New York (10).

Holyoke, Mass.—Charlie Titone 124½, Brooklyn, outpointed Harry Lasane, 131, Houston, Tex. (10).

UPENDED INDIAN—St. John's Ronnie MacGilvray goes for a ride, papoose-style, on the back of Bradley's Gene Melchiorre after missing a pass at Madison Square Garden. Bradley's Bill Mann, 11, and Fred Schlictman hustle out of the way. It was Bradley who was really upset as the Brooklynites played their best game of the season, winning, 68-59.

KHS Basketball On Thursday

Kingston High School will play a DUSO Basketball League game against Ellenville High on Thursday at 8 p. m. at the municipal auditorium.

The date has been moved up from the usual Friday game in order not to conflict with the K.H.S.A.A. banquet featuring "Red" Barber.

The 8 p. m. starting time is a half hour earlier than usual. The Jayvee squads will start play at 6:30 p. m.

Kingston plays at Catskill High tonight.

L.I.U. Moves Into Fourth Position

New York, Jan. 16 (AP)—Oklahoma A. & M., the new national basketball leader, faces a stiff test tomorrow night in St. Louis University—and it could turn out to be a jinx game for the Aggies.

Hank Iba's Aggies yesterday replaced Bradley as the No. 1 team in the weekly Associated Press poll. The Peoria, Ill., Braves fell from the top post when, after winning 15 straight games, they lost to St. John's last Thursday.

Now Oklahoma A. & M. is working on a 15-game skein and the St. Louis Billikins, ranked No. 8, could be just the boys to end that run. They knocked Kentucky out of the No. 1 spot earlier in the season.

Bradley still hasn't recovered from the 68-59 loss to St. John's. After a narrow four-point squeak past Niagara last Saturday, the Braves stumbled again last night, losing to Detroit, 70-65. Can it happen to Oklahoma A. & M.?

The Aggies just got past their last two games against Tulsa and Drake, winning by two points each. Maybe they, too, are running out of gas.

At any rate, the eyes of the basketball world—especially those of Kentucky, Bradley and LIU, grouped in order right behind the Aggies—will be awaiting the outcome at Stillwater, Okla.

This week's poll of 175 sports writers and broadcasters was the closest of the season. Oklahoma A. & M. drew 39 first-place votes—just three more than fourth-ranked LIU—but piled up 2,084 points to Long Island's 994.

Second-ranked Kentucky, with 21 first-place votes, finished only 23 points behind A. & M., with a 1,061. The Wildcats scored their fifth straight victory last night with a 69-44 plastering of Notre Dame.

Bradley, with 1,006 points, collected only 11 first-place votes, compared to 126 last week. St. John's received 539 votes and three bids for first place.

The rest of the top ten consists of St. John's, Indiana, Columbia, St. Louis, North Carolina State and Kansas State.

Port Kegler Hits 278 at Bowlodrome

Lou Dipipi, veteran Port Jervis kegler, set a new Hudson Valley League high single with a 278 blast against Elston Sport Shop, Sunday at the Bowlodrome.

Dipipi opened his big game with a spare and then struck until he came up with a "9". Other scores of 203 and 158 gave him a 639 series. Charlie "Pop" Grassey rolled 211-234—632 for the winners who blanked Elstons in three straight.

In an intra-city duel, Trailways rallied to take a pair from Elstons. Johnny Ferraro paced the winners with 234-206—611; Harold Broskie posted 223; Johnny Schatzel 222 and Hank Kemmerer 247. Frank "Boots" Leskie of Elstons powered 248-198-202—648 and Richard Howard had the hat trick with 218-200-214—632.

Larry Weishaupt crashed 233-236-189—658 and Charlie Grunenwald had 212-235—640 as Miron Lumber grabbed a pair from Ruzzo's. Steve Leone's 200-207—578 led the Ruzzo's.

Veteran Freddie Rice had the timbers dancing in a Mid-Hudson Classic League match at the Dutchess County Recreation with 243-210-234—687 as the Trailways won a pair from the Poughkeepsie squad. Larry Weishaupt's 648 and Ad Jones' 622 sparked the Dairymen to a 2-1 decision in Middletown.

Orange Bowl Contest Jeopardized By New NCAA Post-Season Ruling

Promoters Say They May Switch to Pros

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 16 (AP)—Three of the nation's four major football bowls plan "business as usual" New Year's Day. But new NCAA rules governing the post-season classics may force a change in the Orange Bowl.

Representatives of the Rose, Cotton, and Sugar bowls said their games would not be greatly affected.

But an Orange Bowl committee member said his group was thinking of switching from college to professional teams.

What the new regulations—providing primarily specific division of gross receipts and NCAA representation in staging the games—will mean for the minor bowls is not yet known.

The new regulations were adopted here last week at the annual convention of the National Collegiate Athletic Association. They provide, in the main, that participating teams share 75 per cent of the gross receipts and that the NCAA be represented in the management of the bowls.

The Rose Bowl, granddaddy of post-season play, is under supervision of the Pacific Coast Conference. The Cotton is supervised by the Southwest Conference. Member schools in each conference belong to the NCAA.

The Sugar and Orange bowls have no conference tie-ups.

Arthur Ungar, an Orange Bowl committeeman, said it would be impossible to meet the 75 per cent demand because the game's sponsors must pay 20 per cent for rental of the Miami, Fla., stadium. That, he said, would leave just five per cent for operating expenses.

He said he and other committee members were considering the idea of booking professional teams.

Rules Committee Slow on Changes

Galveston, Tex., Jan. 16 (AP)—The men who make college football's rules are taking a "go slow" attitude toward any changes because of the national emergency.

H. O. (Fritz) Crisler, Michigan athletic director and chairman of the National Collegiate Football Rules Committee, summed up his feelings yesterday.

"We should keep changes to a minimum but should not impede progress. We don't want boys who go into service to be confronted with unnecessary changes when they come back."

There will be no rules changed until tomorrow, when a vote is taken on matters that have been discussed here in the past three days.

Yesterday the committee considered three possible changes in regard to starting the clock after a time out.

1. Start it, for the most part, when the referee spots the ball and declares it ready for play.

2. Generally start the clock when the ball is snapped.

3. Leave the rule substantially as it is, where the "ready" signal is used in some specified cases and the snap in others, but try to iron out some present flaws.

There was no discussion of the return of the fair catch rule. But this is one of the topics thought due to come up during the meeting.

Maxim-Charles Bout in Making

Cleveland, Jan. 16 (AP)—Dapper Joey Maxim fidgeted in his East Side Cleveland delicatessen today, hoping to go after Ezzard Charles and the world's heavyweight boxing title.

In case anyone has forgotten Joey, he's the world light heavyweight champion. He hasn't defended his title since he got it from Freddie Mills in England a year ago.

But Joey claims his chatty manager, Jack Kearns, is "positive" a Maxim-Charles fight will be carded for this summer, possibly in Pittsburgh or Chicago.

"That heavyweight championship is all Doc (Kearns) thinks about," said Maxim. "And he's the boss. I never was so sure of myself and that's the truth."

Maxim has fought Charles three times and lost them all on points.

Davis Passes Up Army Commission

Los Angeles, Jan. 16 (AP)—Halfback Glenn Davis of the Los Angeles Rams is passing up a reserve commission in the Army—at least for the present—say officials of his professional football club.

Similar letters have been sent to all former Army officers, giving them the privilege of refusing or accepting a reserve commission. Davis, a graduate of West Point, joined the Rams in 1950 after his resignation as a first lieutenant.

KAA Meeting Set Wednesday

The monthly meeting of the Kingston Athletic Association is scheduled on Wednesday, Jan. 17, at 8 p. m. at the Stuyvesant Hotel.

President Robert Umpleby requests a large attendance, since final plans will be made for the annual Hot Stove League dinner on Wednesday, Jan. 31, at the Barn.

Colonel Edward P. F. Eagan, boxing commissioner of the state of New York; golfer Gene Sarazen and Carl E. Stotz, national commissioner of the Little Baseball League, have accepted invitations to speak. A fourth speaker will be announced later.

Horse Racing Holds The Line

New York, Jan. 16 (AP)—With 1950 horse race betting showing an increase in several key states, it appeared today that the steady nationwide decline in wagering and attendance from the peak year of 1946 had come to a halt.

The annual year-end Associated Press survey of pari-mutuel betting and attendance at the country's race tracks shows that 23,026,028 persons shoved $1,389,109,699 through the windows last season.

In 1950, racing with pari-mutuel betting was conducted in 23 states, compared with only 21 in 1949. Colorado and Maine were the newcomers to the turf sport.

Including both Colorado and Maine, betting last year fell off only 1.34 per cent as compared with 1949. Attendance, however, showed an increase of 0.62 per cent.

With Colorado and Maine excluded, the decline for the 21 states which conducted racing in 1949 was 2.34 per cent in betting, and 1.20 per cent in attendance. In 1949, attendance was 22,885,062 persons, who bet $1,407,946,030. Excluding Maine and Colorado, the 1950 betting handle was $1,375,048,844 and attendance 22,609,322.

SPORTS

At the risk of being accused of kicking dead dogs, we'll have to re-open discussion concerning the rhubarb that developed the night Kingston High edged Poughkeepsie High by a single point at the municipal auditorium.

You remember the occasion. The night of "The Clock" incident.

His protest voted down by the DUSO League Council, which based its decision on a DUSO League by-law that the "referee shall be the final authority on the score and time," Coach Sam Kalloch carried his appeal to Oswald Tower, nationally known editor of the basketball rule book and the Oliver Wendell Holmes of the rules interpretation world.

The point we raise is this: If Kalloch insisted on carrying his appeal to a higher authority, then we must grant ourselves the privilege of extended editorial opinion about an incident that we considered long closed and forgotten.

Kalloch notified the Poughkeepsie press last Saturday that he had received a letter from Mr. Tower which indicated that Poughkeepsie didn't get a just decision in its recent protest of the DUSO League game in Kingston.

"In his letter, Mr. Tower states that the foul should have been allowed," said the Blue coach.

The foul referred to therein was the one called against Kingston eight seconds after the game had ended. When Timer Jim Tobin notified Referee Joe Palone that the Kingston foul had been committed several seconds after the contest ended, the grinning West Point lieutenant ruled that the foul did not count and the game was over.

"Mr. Tower, a great basketball authority, wrote me that the referee was in error when he did not appoint an official timer who met with the approval of both teams before the start of play," said Kalloch.

"I am not convinced that Kingston won that game," said the coach.

"At the meeting in Middletown, a paragraph in the DUSO rules which states that the 'referee shall be the final authority on the score any time,'" was quoted. However, on another page, it states that "all games shall be played according to interscholastic rules." And, according to Mr. Tower, the official rules were not followed," he added.

Assuming that Coach Kalloch is standing on technicalities, he is also guilty of a slight case of sour apples.

In the first place, there was a qualified timekeeper on duty, one whom Kalloch has not seen fit to challenge for many years. Secondly, it is customary, as Kalloch knows, to designate the visiting scorer as official and the home timer as official. This is not a new arrangement and has been in existence for many years.

As for Mr. Tower's observation that the official rules were not followed to the letter, the patriarch of rules interpretation is correct. On the other hand, it is not unusual to have a league or conference abrogate strict interpretations of the "book" rule in favor of "homemade rules." Kalloch knows that, too.

It is doubtful if Mr. Tower's letter will have much effect on DUSO moguls. They want to forget it like everybody else—except Kalloch.

And we have to wonder about Kalloch's communication to Tower.

Did it mention the fact that when Referee Joe Palone halted hostilities that clock was eight seconds over. And it was as plain to Kalloch as to anybody else in the hall that night.

Tebbetts Signs

Cleveland, Jan. 16 (AP)—Peppery Birdie Tebbetts, Cleveland's new catcher, has signed his 1951 contract. This brings to five the number signed. The others are Early Wynn and Steve Gromek, pitchers, and Outfielders Larry Doby and Jim Lemon. Lemon, however, is due for the army.

Scranton—Gene Hairston, 159, New York, outpointed Artie Towne, 163, New York (10).

St. Ursula's Wins

Holyoke, Mass.—Charlie Titone 124½, Brooklyn, outpointed Harry Lasane, 131, Houston, Tex. (10).

UPENDED INDIAN—St. John's Ronnie MacGilvray goes for a ride, papoose-style, on the back of Bradley's Gene Melchiorre after missing a pass at Madison Square Garden. Bradley's Bill Mann, 11, and Fred Schlictman hustle out of the way. It was Bradley who was really upset as the Brooklynites played their best game of the season, winning, 68-59.

KHS Basketball On Thursday

Kingston High School will play a DUSO Basketball League game against Ellenville High on Thursday at 8 p. m. at the municipal auditorium.

The date has been moved up from the usual Friday game in order not to conflict with the K.H.S.A.A. banquet featuring "Red" Barber.

The 8 p. m. starting time is a half hour earlier than usual. The Jayvee squads will start play at 6:30 p. m.

Kingston plays at Caskill High tonight.

L.I.U. Moves Into Fourth Position

New York, Jan. 16 (AP)—Oklahoma A. & M., the new national basketball leader, faces a stiff test tomorrow night in St. Louis University—and it could turn out to be a jinx game for the Aggies.

Hank Iba's Aggies yesterday replaced Bradley as the No. 1 team in the weekly Associated Press poll. The Peoria, Ill., Braves fell from the top post when, after winning 15 straight games, they lost to St. John's last Thursday.

Now Oklahoma A. & M. is working on a 15-game skein and the St. Louis Billikins, ranked No. 8, could be just the boys to end that run. They knocked Kentucky out of the No. 1 spot earlier in the season.

Bradley still hasn't recovered from the 68-59 loss to St. John's. After a narrow four-point squeak past Niagara last Saturday, the Braves stumbled again last night, losing to Detroit, 70-65. Can it happen to Oklahoma A. & M.?

The Aggies just got past their last two games against Tulsa and Drake, winning by two points each. Maybe they, too, are running out of gas.

At any rate, the eyes of the basketball world—especially those of Kentucky, Bradley and LIU, grouped in order right behind the Aggies—will be awaiting the outcome at Stillwater, Okla.

This week's poll of 175 sports writers and broadcasters was the closest of the season. Oklahoma A. & M. drew 39 first-place votes—just three more than fourth-ranked LIU—but piled up 2,084 points to Long Island's 994.

Second-ranked Kentucky, with 21 first-place votes, finished only 23 points behind A. & M., with a 1,061. The Wildcats scored their fifth straight victory last night with a 69-44 plastering of Notre Dame.

Bradley, with 1,006 points, collected only 11 first-place votes, compared to 126 last week. St. John's received 539 votes and three bids for first place.

The rest of the top ten consists of St. John's, Indiana, Columbia, St. Louis, North Carolina State and Kansas State.

Port Kegler Hits 278 at Bowlodrome

Lou Dipipi, veteran Port Jervis kegler, set a new Hudson Valley League high single with a 278 blast against Elston Sport Shop, Sunday at the Bowlodrome.

Dipipi opened his big game with a spare and then struck until he came up with a "9". Other scores of 203 and 158 gave him a 639 series. Charlie "Pop" Grassey rolled 211-234—632 for the winners who blanked Elstons in three straight.

In an intra-city duel, Trailways rallied to take a pair from Elstons. Johnny Ferraro paced the winners with 234-206—611; Harold Broskie posted 223; Johnny Schatzel 222 and Hank Kemmerer 247. Frank "Boots" Leskie of Elstons powered 248-198-202—648 and Richard Howard had the hat trick with 218-200-214—632.

Larry Weishaupt crashed 233-236-189—658 and Charlie Grunenwald had 212-235—640 as Miron Lumber grabbed a pair from Ruzzo's. Steve Leone's 200-207—578 led the Ruzzo's.

Veteran Freddie Rice had the timbers dancing in a Mid-Hudson Classic League match at the Dutchess County Recreation with 243-210-234—687 as the Trailways won a pair from the Poughkeepsie squad. Larry Weishaupt's 648 and Ad Jones' 622 sparked the Dairymen to a 2-1 decision in Middletown.

Orange Bowl Contest Jeopardized By New NCAA Post-Season Ruling

Promoters Say They May Switch to Pros

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 16 (AP)—Three of the nation's four major football bowls plan "business as usual" New Year's Day. But new NCAA rules governing the post-season classics may force a change in the Orange Bowl.

Representatives of the Rose, Cotton, and Sugar bowls said their games would not be greatly affected.

But an Orange Bowl committee member said his group was thinking of switching from college to professional teams.

What the new regulations—providing primarily specific division of gross receipts and NCAA representation in staging the games—will mean for the minor bowls is not yet known.

The new regulations were adopted here last week at the annual convention of the National Collegiate Athletic Association. They provide, in the main, that participating teams share 75 per cent of the gross receipts and that the NCAA be represented in the management of the bowls.

The Rose Bowl, granddaddy of post-season play, is under supervision of the Pacific Coast Conference. The Cotton is supervised by the Southwest Conference. Member schools in each conference belong to the NCAA.

The Sugar and Orange bowls have no conference tie-ups.

Arthur Ungar, an Orange Bowl committeeman, said it would be impossible to meet the 75 per cent demand because the game's sponsors must pay 20 per cent for rental of the Miami, Fla., stadium. That, he said, would leave just five per cent for operating expenses.

He said he and other committee members were considering the idea of booking professional teams.

Rules Committee Slow on Changes

Galveston, Tex., Jan. 16 (AP)—The men who make college football's rules are taking a "go slow" attitude toward any changes because of the national emergency.

H. O. (Fritz) Crisler, Michigan athletic director and chairman of the National Collegiate Football Rules Committee, summed up his feelings yesterday.

"We should keep changes to a minimum but should not impede progress. We don't want boys who go into service to be confronted with unnecessary changes when they come back."

There will be no rules changed until tomorrow, when a vote is taken on matters that have been discussed here in the past three days.

Yesterday the committee considered three possible changes in regard to starting the clock after a time out.

1. Start it, for the most part, when the referee spots the ball and declares it ready for play.

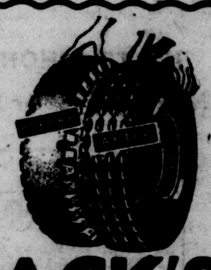

2. Generally start the clock when the ball is snapped.

3. Leave the rule substantially as it is, where the "ready" signal is used in some specified cases and the snap in others, but try to iron out some present flaws.

There was no discussion of the return of the fair catch rule. But this is one of the topics thought due to come up during the meeting.

LAKE KATRINE ROD AND GUN CLUB HAS ANNUAL BANQUET

About 40 members of the Lake Katrine Rod and Gun Club honored outgoing officers and welcomed the new ones at the annual banquet held last night at the Airport Inn. Guest speakers were Mayor Oscar V. THE RUMINATOR

A Column of Contrary Opinion
By HUMPHREY B. NEILL

Now that the "great debate" on our war policies is carrying on, with some hope that a composite viewpoint will finally prevail, there is another debate that should be joined in.

Next to our war policy is the question of inflation.

And, in order to get into the subject of inflation we have to get into the complex discussion of money and credit.

I say "complex," because most people seem to think that anytime a discussion of monetary affairs begins it is sure to be over their heads. Well, in order to get in deep enough to understand what makes inflation, we do not need to get in over our depth.

The simple fact is that inflation stems from too much money. In our modern economic society money includes bank deposits, of course, because we do most of our business with checks in place of currency.

Next in order comes "credit," because credit becomes money, too. If you go into your bank and borrow a thousand dollars the loan clerk simply enters a deposit in your bank book. Thus, in the argument it took you to sign the note, you have added to the money supply by a thousand dollars.

So long as borrowing is "cheap" loans are sure to keep rising. At present, the rates of interest on loans are ridiculously low—altogether too low, in fact. Prime borrowers (that is, top flight corporations and similar gilt-edged borrowers) can get money as low as 2½ per cent.

Obviously, if inflation stems from too much money, then an easy way to curtail the supply of money would be to curb loans. And the way to curb loans is to make them cost more.

You would suppose, then, wouldn't you, that everyone would be in favor of seeing interest rates rise substantially, in order to stop the ruinous inflation?

I think it is safe to say that everybody is in favor of such a policy, except the short-sighted officials in Washington, including the administration.

Because of the long years of New Deal influences—one principle of which was "cheap money"—the government heads (and this includes the President and the Secretary of the Treasury) will not rise up from their cheap-money couches and face the true facts of inflation.

They argue that our public debt is so enormous that interest rates must be low, in order to "service" the debt (as they call it, when paying interest) at low cost.

But they refuse to see that government costs, especially rearmament costs, are skyrocketing from the inflation. The inflated costs of running the government are far greater than they would be if interest rates were higher and inflation stopped.

Thus the dilemma.

The Federal Reserve Bank authorities are in favor of curbing loans and in favor of higher interest rates. Yet, this agency is forced to support the government bond market and hold the long-time rate to 2½% or better. One of the governors of the Federal Reserve, former Chairman Eccles, put the issue in plain words:

"In making a cheap money market for the Treasury, we cannot avoid making it for everybody. All monetary and credit restraints are gone under such conditions; the Federal Reserve becomes simply an engine of inflation."

This statement was made over a year ago. You can see how accurate Mr. Eccles' viewpoint was. The Federal Reserve Board has tried to curb the money supply, but each time the situation remains deadlocked.

The heart of the postwar monetary dilemma lies in the fact that, as the Guaranty Trust Company of New York points out, the policies of the Federal Reserve System can have only limited effect "so long as the Federal Reserve banks are obliged to support the market for government securities by taking all the securities offered for sale . . . ."

Perhaps it will be necessary to get some outstanding American, whose opinions are respected and feared in Washington, to come out with a blast against the harmful financial policies of the Administration. Just as Mr. Hoover stirred up a nationwide debate on faulty foreign policies, we need to get stirred up on money matters and inflation.

Pilot of Plane Says Misunderstanding Cause of Fatalities

Philadelphia, Jan. 16 (AP)—The pilot of an airliner that crashed at International Airport Sunday is quoted as saying he landed his plane in the middle of a 5,350-foot runway because of a misunderstanding.

Larry Cates, representative of the Airline Pilots Association, AFL, said the pilot told Civil Aeronautics Board investigators he thought an "under construction" warning referred to about 1,000 feet of a strip that had been in service for some time.

Seven persons were killed in the crash of the National Airlines DC-4.

Two Are Questioned

The pilot, Capt. Harold Barwick, and co-pilot, Lieut. Edward J. Zatarain, both of Jacksonville, Fla., were questioned by CAB investigators yesterday.

Cates said Barwick told the investigators he slowed the plane after landing from 85 to 35 miles an hour with wing flaps, then applied his brakes.

The brakes locked and the plane skidded out of control on the slush-covered runway, the AFL representative quoted Barwick as saying.

The plane crashed through a fence and burst into flames.

The CAB will report its official findings after an open hearing in Washington, probably within 10 days, a spokesman said.

"How should this hand be bid?" asks a Portland, Ore., reader. "North can make nine ice-cold tricks at no-trump, but there are only nine tricks at spades—so far as we can see.

"West opened the ten of hearts, dummy put up the jack and East won with the king. East promptly shifted to the king of Clubs, and South let him hold it. East then shifted to the eight of diamonds, and dummy won with the king.

"South drew trumps, cashed the ace of diamonds, and led another diamond, hoping that East would have to lead. As it happened, West grabbed the trick with the queen of diamonds and led a club through dummy's ace-jack. South had already lost three tricks and had to lose another club trick for down one.

"How should North and South bid the hand to get to their best contract? Also, could South have done better at four spades?"

The bidding question is hard, but the play question is easy to answer. Let's tackle the hard one first.

North should bid three no-trump instead of only two no-trump. The hand is surely worth a game bid opposite any reasonable overcall. Moreover, such a jump shows a heart holding strong enough to stop the enemy cold in their tracks.

There is no guarantee that South will pass to three no-trump. Some good players would bid four spades anyway, partly for the honors and partly for the "safety" of a long trump suit. I think most experts would pass, however, and North would thus get his chance to play at three no-trump.

As to the play, South should have made four spades. The first three tricks were well played, but when dummy takes the king of diamonds, the queen of hearts should be led at once.

East must cover with the ace (otherwise South will discard), and South ruffs. South cashes the ace of trumps and leads another trump to dummy. The seven of hearts is then led and when East plays low (as he must), South discards a club.

West wins with the nine of hearts, but then dummy's six of hearts is established as the tenth trick.

Four Are Arrested In School Drug Drive

New York, Jan. 16 (AP)—A crackdown on narcotics selling at Manhattan and Bronx schools was launched yesterday with the arrest of four persons in the Bronx.

Assistant District Attorney David S. Blatt, who directed the drive, said Lloyd Sackey, 19, and Amato Perez, 27, were arrested after a three-week investigation.

The two Bronx recipents were booked on charges of selling heroin. Perez had been free in $500 bail on a previous charge of possession of narcotics.

Blatt also said Walter Creque, 23, a Negro, was charged with possession of narcotics with intent to sell. The prosecutor said another Negro, Earl Morton, 19, was booked for shoplifting articles which he could sell in order to buy dope.

Sackey and Perez were arrested, Blatt said, after they had sold heroin to two detectives, posing as students, and a policeman, posing as a teacher, at the New York Vocational School.

Ulster Share in Gas Fund $66,075.58

State distribution of $2,676,862.88 of motor fuel tax receipts will bring Ulster county a share of $66,075.58, State Comptroller J. Raymond McGovern announced today.

The total is distributed to 57 counties outside of New York city. It is the share of state-collected motor fuel tax which is being returned to the counties for the three-month period which ended Dec. 31, 1950.

The amount distributed for 1949 corresponding period was $2,215,973.29.

A state law provides that 10 per cent of the amount collected by the state be divided quarterly amoung the counties outside of New York city on the basis of the number of miles of town highways in each county, and the money goes into the county road funds.

Desires Loggers To Clear Forests Of Fallen Trees

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—Governor Dewey asked the Legislature today to permit private logging firms to salvage immediately thousands of trees felled by the near hurricane of Nov. 25.

Dewey proposed a $200,000 special appropriation to allow the work to start at once and thus remove the threat of a "serious fire hazard." It also would avoid "a grave waste" of timber in the present national emergency, he added.

In a message to the Legislature, Dewey said the staffs of state departments were not large enough to remove the fallen timber.

"In order to obtain the assistance of private logging firms," Dewey said, "the Department of Conservation urges that it be authorized to contract with such firms for the sale of the timber. This requires statutory authorization."

The proposal is expected to meet opposition from some conservationists on the ground that it violates the state constitution's provisions that the forest preserve shall be kept "forever wild" and that timber on it shall not be "sold, removed or destroyed."

Greatest Loss

Dewey said the big windstorm leveled from 25 to 100 per cent of the standing timber on over 400,000 acres in the Adirondack area and that 60 per cent of this acreage was in the state's forest preserve.

"This catastrophe," he said, "is the greatest of its kind in the history of our state.

"If the fallen timber is left in its present state it will constitute a serious fire hazard which will menace the remaining state and private timber resources of the area for at least a decade."

Dewey proposed to finance the salvage work by a revolving fund into which the proceeds of state contracts with private firms would be paid. If any profit should be made, it would appear as revenue in the next budget, he said.

What Opposition Says

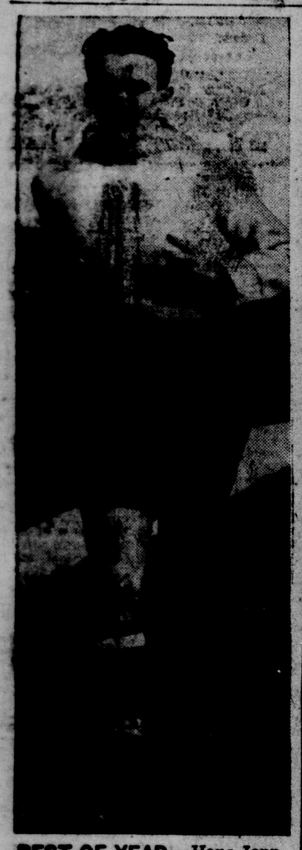

Some conservationists argue that the heaps of "dead and down" timber are widely scattered and that it would be profitable, consequently to take logs only from windfalls near roads.

They say further that removal of remote windfalls would require road building and that this would destroy the "wild" nature of the state preserve.

In addition, they contend, logging contractors would bother only with windfalls that would yield profitable timber and would leave a large number of trees untouched. This, they add, would take care of the fire hazard only in certain places.

Fist Fight Spreads To School Cafeteria

New York, Jan. 16 (AP)—A fist fight between a white boy and Negro schoolmate spread through a Brooklyn high school cafeteria yesterday, involving 1,200 boys and girls in a melee that overturned tables and broke crockery.

Many of the white and Negro students in the Franklin K. Lane High School cafeteria soon were exchanging blows.

A teacher who attempted to restore peace was punched in the eye.

Another dispute among students from the school broke out later in the day, and 25 Negro and white boys and girls fought on a subway train. A Negro patrolwoman employed by the subway line was punched and kicked when she tried to intervene.

Brooklyn police began to round up a number of students for questioning.

Police said there had been trouble at the school since last Friday, when a white boy and Negro boy had a dispute.

Police May Arrest Street Speakers Court Rules

Washington, Jan. 16 (AP)—City police may arrest a street speaker who shouts fiery words and undertakes to incite a riot without violating the Constitution's free speech guarantee, the Supreme Court has ruled.

At the same time the high tribunal told cities they may not give their officials discretion to control in advance the right of speakers to talk on religious matters in streets and public parks.

In three related opinions announced yesterday by Chief Justice Vinson the high tribunal:

1. Upheld the disorderly conduct conviction of Irving Feiner for a political speech he made in a Syracuse street. He told a mixed crowd of whites and Negroes that Negroes "should rise up in arms and fight for their rights."

2. Struck down a New York city ordinance which required preachers to get permits before conducting street meetings.

3. Overturned conviction of two Jehovah Witnesses who were arrested for attempting to speak in a park in Havre de Grace, Md., after being refused a speaking permit.

THE RUMINATOR

A Column of Contrary Opinion
By HUMPHREY B. NEILL

Now that the "great debate" on our war policies is carrying on, with some hope that a composite viewpoint will finally prevail, there is another debate that should be joined in.

Next to our war policy is the question of inflation.

And, in order to get into the subject of inflation we have to get into the complex discussion of money and credit.

I say "complex," because most people seem to think that anytime a discussion of monetary affairs begins it is sure to be over their heads. Well, in order to get in deep enough to understand what makes inflation, we do not need to get in over our depth.

The simple fact is that inflation stems from too much money. In our modern economic society money includes bank deposits, of course, because we do most of our business with checks in place of currency.

Next in order comes "credit," because credit becomes money, too. If you go into your bank and borrow a thousand dollars the loan clerk simply enters a deposit in your bank book. Thus, in the moment it took you to sign the note, you have added to the money supply by a thousand dollars.

So long as borrowing is "cheap" loans are sure to keep rising. At present, the rates of interest on loans are ridiculously low—altogether too low, in fact. Prime borrowers (that is, top flight corporations and similar gilt-edged borrowers) can get money as low as 2½ per cent.

Obviously, if inflation stems from too much money, then an easy way to curtail the supply of money would be to curb loans. And the way to curb loans is to make them cost more.

You would suppose, then, wouldn't you, that everyone would be in favor of seeing interest rates rise substantially, in order to stop the ruinous inflation?

I think it is safe to say that everybody is in favor of such a policy, except the short-sighted officials in Washington, including the administration.

Because of the long years of New Deal influences—one principle of which was "cheap money"—the government heads (and this includes the President and the Secretary of the Treasury) will not rise up from their cheap-money couches and face the true facts of inflation.

They argue that our public debt is so enormous that interest rates must be low, in order to "service" the debt (as they call it, when paying interest) at low cost.

But they refuse to see that government costs, especially rearmament costs, are skyrocketing from the inflation. The inflated costs of running the government are far greater than they would be if interest rates were higher and inflation stopped.

Thus the dilemma.

The Federal Reserve Bank authorities are in favor of curbing loans and in favor of higher interest rates. Yet, this agency is forced to support the government bond market and hold the long-time rate to 2½% or better. One of the governors of the Federal Reserve, former Chairman Eccles, put the issue in plain words:

"In making a cheap money market for the Treasury, we cannot avoid making it for everybody. All monetary and credit restraints are gone under such conditions; the Federal Reserve becomes simply an engine of inflation."

This statement was made over a year ago. You can see how accurate Mr. Eccles' viewpoint was. The Federal Reserve Board has tried to curb the money supply, but each time the situation remains deadlocked.

The heart of the postwar monetary dilemma lies in the fact that, as the Guaranty Trust Company of New York points out, the policies of the Federal Reserve System can have only limited effect "so long as the Federal Reserve banks are obliged to support the market for government securities by taking all the securities offered for sale . . . . "

Perhaps it will be necessary to get some outstanding American, whose opinions are respected and feared in Washington, to come out with a blast against the harmful financial policies of the Administration. Just as Mr. Hoover stirred up a nationwide debate on faulty foreign policies, we need to get stirred up on money matters and inflation.

Pilot of Plane Says Misunderstanding Cause of Fatalities

Philadelphia, Jan. 16 (AP)—The pilot of an airliner that crashed at International Airport Sunday is quoted as saying he landed his plane in the middle of a 5,350-foot runway because of a misunderstanding.

Larry Cates, representative of the Airline Pilots Association, AFL, said the pilot told Civil Aeronautics Board investigators he thought an "under construction" warning referred to about 1,000 feet of a strip that had been in service for some time.

The tower operator, however, meant a 2,000-foot extension of the runway which is 65 per cent complete.

Seven persons were killed in the crash of the National Airlines DC-4.

Two Are Questioned

The pilot, Capt. Harold Barwick, and co-pilot, Lieut. Edward J. Zatarain, both of Jacksonville, Fla., were questioned by CAB investigators yesterday.

Cates said Barwick told the investigators he slowed the plane after landing from 85 to 35 miles an hour with wing flaps, then applied his brakes.

The brakes locked and the plane skidded out of control on the slush-covered runway, the AFL representative quoted Barwick as saying.

The plane crashed through a fence and burst into flames.

The CAB will report its official findings after an open hearing in Washington, probably within 10 days, a spokesman said.

"How should this hand be bid?" asks a Portland, Ore., reader. "North can make nine ice-cold tricks at no-trump, but there are only nine tricks at spades—so far as we can see.

"West opened the ten of hearts, dummy put up the jack and East won with the king. East promptly shifted to the king of Clubs, and South let him hold it. East then shifted to the eight of diamonds, and dummy won with the king.

"South drew trumps, cashed the ace of diamonds, and led another diamond, hoping that East would have to lead. As it happened, West grabbed the trick with the queen of diamonds and led a club through dummy's ace-jack. South had already lost three tricks and had to lose another club trick for down one.

"How should North and South bid the hand to get to their best contract? Also, could South have done better at four spades?"

The bidding question is hard, but the play question is easy to answer. Let's tackle the hard one first.

North should bid three no-trump instead of only two no-trump. The hand is surely worth a game bid opposite any reasonable overcall. Moreover, such a jump shows a heart holding strong enough to stop the enemy cold in their tracks.

There is no guarantee that South will pass to three no-trump. Some good players would bid four spades anyway, partly for the honors and partly for the "safety" of a long trump suit. I think most experts would pass, however, and North would thus get his chance to play at three no-trump.

As to the play, South should have made four spades. The first three tricks were well played, but when dummy takes the king of diamonds, the queen of hearts should be led at once.

East must cover with the ace (otherwise South will discard), and South ruffs. South cashes the ace of trumps and leads another trump to dummy. The seven of hearts is then led and when East plays low (as he must), South discards a club.

West wins with the nine of hearts, but then dummy's six of hearts is established as the tenth trick.

Four Are Arrested In School Drug Drive

New York, Jan. 16 (AP)—A crackdown on narcotics selling at Manhattan and Bronx schools was launched yesterday with the arrest of four persons in the Bronx.

Assistant District Attorney David S. Blatt, who directed the drive, said Lloyd Sackey, 19, and Amato Perez, 27, were arrested after a three-week investigation.

The two Bronx recipents were booked on charges of selling heroin. Perez had been free in $500 bail on a previous charge of possession of narcotics.

Blatt also said Walter Creque, 23, a Negro, was charged with possession of narcotics with intent to sell. The prosecutor said another Negro, Earl Morton, 19, was booked for shoplifting articles which he could sell in order to buy dope.

Sackey and Perez were arrested, Blatt said, after they had sold heroin to two detectives, posing as students, and a policeman, posing as a teacher, at the New York Vocational School.

Ulster Share in Gas Fund $66,075.58

State distribution of $2,676,862.88 of motor fuel tax receipts will bring Ulster county a share of $66,075.58, State Comptroller J. Raymond McGovern announced today.

The total is distributed to 57 counties outside of New York city. It is the share of state-collected motor fuel tax which is being returned to the counties for the three-month period which ended Dec. 31, 1950.

The amount distributed for 1949 corresponding period was $2,215,973.29.

A state law provides that 10 per cent of the amount collected by the state be divided quarterly amoung the counties outside of New York city on the basis of the number of miles of town highways in each county, and the money goes into the county road funds.

Greetings and So Forth

Newport News, Va., Jan. 16 (AP) Irvin Fenton was busy making preparations for his wedding in the afternoon to Miss Nancy Miller. A stack of congratulatory telegrams, letters and packages arrived. Most messages said the usual things," "Best Wishes," and so forth. One was different. It said: "Greetings," and so forth. Nancy and Irvin were married on schedule, but Ervin will keep his January 23 appointment to take his physical for the armed forces.

Desires Loggers To Clear Forests Of Fallen Trees

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—Governor Dewey asked the Legislature today to permit private logging firms to salvage immediately thousands of trees felled by the near hurricane of Nov. 25.

Dewey proposed a $200,000 special appropriation to allow the work to start at once and thus remove the threat of a "serious fire hazard." It also would avoid "a grave waste" of timber in the present national emergency, he added.

In a message to the Legislature, Dewey said the staffs of state departments were not large enough to remove the fallen timber.

"In order to obstain the assistance of private logging firms," Dewey said, "the Department of Conservation urges that it be authorized to contract with such firms for the sale of the timber. This requires statutory authorization."

The proposal is expected to meet opposition from some conservationists on the ground that it violates the state constitution's provisions that the forest preserve shall be kept "forever wild" and that timber on it shall not be "sold, removed or destroyed."

Greatest Loss

Dewey said the big windstorm leveled from 25 to 100 per cent of the standing timber on over 400,000 acres in the Adirondack area and that 60 per cent of this acreage was in the state's forest preserve.

"This catastrophe," he said, "is the greatest of its kind in the history of our state.

"If the fallen timber is left in its present state it will constitute a serious fire hazard which will menace the remaining state and private timber resources of the area for at least a decade."

Dewey proposed to finance the salvage work by a revolving fund into which the proceeds of state contracts with private firms would be paid. If any profit should be made, it would appear as revenue in the next budget, he said.

What Opposition Says

Some conservationists argue that the heaps of "dead and down" timber are widely scattered and that it would be profitable, consequently to take logs only from windfalls near roads.

They say further that removal of remote windfalls would require road building and that this would destroy the "wild" nature of the state preserve.

In addition, they contend, logging contractors would bother only with windfalls that would yield profitable timber and would leave a large number of trees untouched. This, they add, would take care of the fire hazard only in certain places.

Coat Is Found

Melvin Passer, Sr., 8 North Wilbur avenue, reported to the police at 7:06 a. m. today, that someone "had thrown" a woman's mouton fur coat on his porch some time during the night. Officers Leonard Ellsworth and Gurnsey Burger, Jr., brought the coat to headquarters where it was tagged and held to be claimed.

The center-forward rejected an Italian offer of £10,000 for himself plus £100 a month. He has 12 times been "capped" by Sweden, led his country's World Cup team in South America last summer. He is claimed to be the best soccer catch of the year.

David Sherry, manager of the Orpheum Theater on lower Broadway reported to the police yesterday that youngsters had been using knives to cut and mar seats in the theater. Police Chief Raymond Van Buren said today that any boys found guilty of this mischief will be subject to full penalty.

Fist Fight Spreads To School Cafeteria

New York, Jan. 16 (AP)—A fist fight between a white boy and Negro schoolmate spread through a Brooklyn high school cafeteria yesterday, involving 1,200 boys and girls in a melee that overturned tables and broke crockery.

Many of the white and Negro students in the Franklin K. Lane High School cafeteria soon were exchanging blows.

A teacher who attempted to restore peace was punched in the eye.

Another dispute among students from the school broke out later in the day, and 25 Negro and white boys and girls fought on a subway train. A Negro patrolwoman employed by the subway line was punched and kicked when she tried to intervene.

Brooklyn police began to round up a number of students for questioning.

Police said there had been trouble at the school since last Friday, when a white boy and Negro boy had a dispute.

Police May Arrest Street Speakers Court Rules

Washington, Jan. 16 (AP)—City police may arrest a street speaker who shouts fiery words and undertakes to incite a riot without violating the Constitution's free speech guarantee, the Supreme Court has ruled.

At the same time the high tribunal told cities they may not give their officials discretion to control in advance the right of speakers to talk on religious matters in streets and public parks.

In three related opinions announced yesterday by Chief Justice Vinson the high tribunal:

1. Upheld the disorderly conduct conviction of Irving Feiner for a political speech he made in a Syracuse street. He told a mixed crowd of whites and Negroes that Negroes "should rise up in arms and fight for their rights."

2. Struck down a New York city ordinance which required preachers to get permits before conducting street meetings.

3. Overturned conviction of two Jehovah Witnesses who were arrested for attempting to speak in a park in Havre de Grace, Md., after being refused a speaking permit.

Colony Liquor Warehouse

The Colony Liquor Distributors, Inc., has completed an expansion program in its Hudson Valley territory and area extending to the Canadian border with new office-warehouses at 62-68 Ten Broeck avenue in this city and at Elmwood Road in Menands.

The building here is a 26,000 square foot brick and steel structure and is built with a large cellar warehouse, with automatic conveyor belts to move merchandise to the main floor.

Both plants have the latest automatic equipment and the newest International Business Machines are used to process orders and bill merchandise and speed the clerical details of distribution. They both have their own railroad sidings to facilitate shipping in addition to a large fleet of trucks.

The local plant has a sales staff of 12 men under William Schaffrick, sales manager, and Robert O'Keefe, sales supervisor. James Andretta, founder and president, started in this city at the time of repeal and opened in Albany in 1937. He is a charter member of the New York Wholesalers Association and is a past president of the organization.

'Y' Centennial Auxiliary Meets

The first meeting of the Women's Auxiliary for the Y.M.C.A. centennial year met January 12 in the auxiliary room which was used as headquarters for the Kingston Hospital drive from July through December.

During the meeting the president, Mrs. George H. DuBois, presided. In addition to the usual business, it was reported a special gift of linen was presented to the "Y" for dormitory use. The gift was accompanied by the hope that other "Y" groups will make similar presentations during the year, to help strengthen and improve the program and equipment.

Reports were also given revealing that, through their own work, the auxiliary had paid its $500 pledge to the "Y", leaving a balance in the treasury.

Say Religion, Education Needed for Jewish Unity

Baltimore, Jan. 16 (AP)—Three nationally known rabbis—each with a different approach to Judaism—expressed agreement last night on how to promote greater unity in the American Jewish community.

They said a renewed emphasis on religion and Jewish education was the answer.

They appeared here at the 1950-51 Y.M. and Y.W.H.A. forum series.

Speaking for the reform congregations, Dr. James G. Heller of Cincinnati, said:

"The real problem (of unity) is the ignorance and disaffection among large numbers of American Jews who have lost their moorings..."

Rabbi Emanuel Rackman, of Far Rockway, N. Y., who held the Orthodox viewpoint, put it this way:

"Chaplains in the last war discovered the miserable job Jewish congregations have done in the education of youth. Many Jews were completely alienated—not through choice but through force of circumstances."

The speaker representing the conservative synogogues was Dr. Abraham Neuman, president of Dropsia College in Philadelphia. He said:

"The American Jewish community lacks the cement of deep religion and common knowledge of the past, and the beauty and sanctity of the Hebrew language and literature. The community does not have the basis of a definite unity."

Dr. Neuman also warned that American Jewry may "fall into the trap that Hitler laid for it—fear of anti-semitism."

But, he said, Hitler was mistaken in thinking Jewish culture could be killed as people are killed.

'Y' Centennial Auxiliary Meets

The first meeting of the Women's Auxiliary for the Y.M.C.A. centennial year met January 12 in the auxiliary room which was used as headquarters for the Kingston Hospital drive from July through December.

During the meeting the president, Mrs. George H. DuBois, presided. In addition to the usual business, it was reported a special gift of linen was presented to the "Y" for dormitory use. The gift was accompanied by the hope that other "Y" groups will make similar presentations during the year, to help strengthen and improve the program and equipment.

Reports were also given revealing that, through their own work, the auxiliary had paid its $500 pledge to the "Y", leaving a balance in the treasury.

Say Religion, Education Needed for Jewish Unity

Baltimore, Jan. 16 (AP)—Three nationally known rabbis—each with a different approach to Judaism—expressed agreement last night on how to promote greater unity in the American Jewish community.

They said a renewed emphasis on religion and Jewish education was the answer.

They appeared here at the 1950-51 Y.M. and Y.W.H.A. forum series.

Speaking for the reform congregations, Dr. James G. Heller of Cincinnati, said:

"The real problem (of unity) is the ignorance and disaffection among large numbers of American Jews who have lost their moorings..."

Rabbi Emanuel Rackman, of Far Rockway, N. Y., who held the Orthodox viewpoint, put it this way:

"Chaplains in the last war discovered the miserable job Jewish congregations have done in the education of youth. Many Jews were completely alienated—not through choice but through force of circumstances."

The speaker representing the conservative synogogues was Dr. Abraham Neuman, president of Dropsia College in Philadelphia. He said:

"The American Jewish community lacks the cement of deep religion and common knowledge of the past, and the beauty and sanctity of the Hebrew language and literature. The community does not have the basis of a definite unity."

Dr. Neuman also warned that American Jewry may "fall into the trap that Hitler laid for it—fear of anti-semitism."

But, he said, Hitler was mistaken in thinking Jewish culture could be killed as people are killed.

Byrnes Asks . . .

Europe to have the help of the soldiers of every nation willing to oppose aggression by the atheistic Communist of Russia.

'May Provoke Russia'

Referring to the Korean war, Byrnes said he is aware "some of our Allies fear if China is declared an aggressor and the Air Force authorized to bomb supply bases in Manchuria, it may provoke Russia to war."

But, he argued, "that is the counsel of fear which I reject. If Russia is ready and willing to make war on the United Nations, she will want no such excuse."

Touching on the race question which bears on state educational matters, Byrnes said "it is our duty to provide for the races substantial equality in school facilities."

It also is "wise," he declared, because the state constitution "provides there shall be separate schools for white and colored children.

Not in Conflict

"More than half a century ago the U. S. Supreme Court held that such a provision was not in conflict with the United States Constitution provided the facilities for the races are equal."

A former Supreme Court justice himself, Byrnes expressed hope that tribunal will turn down appeals in cases which seek "to abolish segregation in all schools."

He was critical of the national administration for directing the attorney general's office to intervene before the court in an effort to "declare unconstitutional any law requiring separation of the races."

"What the leaders of the administration do not realize," he commented, "is that if they succeed in abolishing segregation they will thereby endanger the public school systems in many states."

Byrnes who resigned from President Truman's cabinet in disagreement over various matters has previously accused the administration of trying to centralize government in Washington, he said it was encroaching on states' rights guaranteed by the Constitution.

Byrnes, now 72, said the governorship of his native state will be his last public office.

Where Allies Threaten Red Time-Table

Open arrows locate areas where U.N. troops are in action in Korea attempting to delay time-table of Red drive southward. Double arrow in west below Seoul locates area where a sudden U.N. drive recaptured three towns, threatening right flank of Red line weakened by movement of troops to east for drives in Wonju and Yongwol areas (solid arrows). Allied right flank is also threatened by Reds massing in area southeast of Wonju (shaded area) after infiltrating U.N. lines.

Allied Reconaissance Goes . . .

Armies—at full strength about 120,000 troops — were massed south of the Han river near Seoul.

American airmen spotted 5,000 Red troops concentrated southeast of Seoul. They claimed 1,600 were killed in bombing and strafing attacks.

2,000 Enemy Dead

The Allied warplanes resumed their attacks Tuesday and said the toll of enemy dead was boosted to nearly 2,000.

They hit supply dumps, railroads, vehicles and buildings occupied by Red troops. The planes knocked out a Red tank and field piece near Seoul.

A.P. Correspondent William C. Barnard reported from the central front that the withdrawal from the Wonju area began Monday morning and was completed in an orderly way.

All the narrow valley around Wonju, its foothills and its ridges, where see-saw battles had raged was smoking.

Aggressive Allied patrols maintained contact with the enemy during the withdrawal.

West Europe Shows

told reporters, "to see that the President has asked for this huge amount, because it shows the determination with which the American government is shouldering its burden of preparation for all eventualities."

The Liberal Dagens Nyheter of Stockholm described the budget message as the strongest imaginable warning to the men in the Kremlin not to plunge the world into a new war which would . . . bring the end of their own regime."

It is proof, the newspaper said, that America is ready "to make the greatest sacrifice side by side with the other western democracies to win a swift victory in this war, if it ever comes."

Said Britain's independent, Liberal Manchester Guardian: "His requests for funds show the immense scope of America's defense plans."

No Solution Found

London, Jan. 16 (AP)—Secret talks here have failed to produce a solution of the thorny problem which has divided India and Pakistan for many months, a communique said last night. The prime ministers of the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and Ceylon said no settlement of the interdominion dispute over the rich state, predominantly Moslem but with a Hindu maharajah, had been reached at their discussions with India's Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru and Pakistan's head man, Liaquati Ali Khan. The communique said, however, the talks had "narrowed" the points of disagreement. The discussions were held in conjunction with the conference of British Commonwealth prime ministers.

and the nation's coastal fringes of the Atlantic eastward.

The sky giants bored into the air with their six propeller motors and four jet engines at intervals sufficient to achieve both night and day departures and were directed into different courses for the history making trans-Atlantic run.

Irvine Was Factor

Behind the scenes of the entire project, conceived under the eye of Lt. General Curtis E. Lemay, commander of the Strategic Air Command, Omaha, Neb., and Major General Samuel E. Anderson, was Brigadier General C. S. Irvine, commanding general of the home bomber base, and pilot of the "Pacusan Dreamboat" on its 1946 record flight from Honolulu to Cairo.

Each plane carried the normal crew of 15 men and simulation of complete combat armament.

The B-36 is armed with 26 twenty mm cannons and has carried a total of 84,000 pounds of bombs, the heaviest load of bombs ever carried by one airplane.

Maintenance crews flown from Fort Worth arrived in England and were ready to service the huge bombers when they arrived.

After servicing, which included 21,135 gallons of fuel, normally carried in the B-36 wing tanks, and the maintenance needed, the aircraft are expected to leave England for the U. S. within 96 hours.

The planes will fan out on separate missions ranging from 25 to 40 hours on the homeward flight to Fort Worth.

Auxiliary Police

visors' room of the court house in Kingston. Lieutenant Lawson is a veteran of 22 years with the troopers, an instructor in ballistics at the state police school, and a graduate of the recently held Civil Defense school at Troy.

In his introduction to the course Monday night, Lieutenant Lawson covered the organization of Civil Defense on local and state levels and the Aircraft Warning Service.

Other topics to be taken up include court procedure; duties of auxiliary police; traffic laws; panic prevention and control; fires and accidents; investigations; aerial, incendiary and atomic bombs, and precention of sabotage.

Lieutenatn Lawson stressed the fact that under his emergency powers, the governor may if necessary order all regular policemen to an emergency area. This action would leave the auxiliary police as the only law enforcement agency in a locality, and for this reason adequate preparation for police service is vital.

Byrd Proposes

members of both parties normally voice every January, but it is not always fulfilled.

Mr. Truman has presented five budgets to Congress, other than the one submitted yesterday. Twice it has exceeded his estimates. Prospects are that the current year's spending, spurred by the Korean war, will exceed the budget by more than $6,000,000,000.

'Fiscal Irresponsibility'

Ending a short-lived surface reconciliation following Mr. Truman's "Dear Harry" letter to Byrd, the Virginia senator declared in a statement:

"In my experience of 18 years, considering the perils that confront our nation, this (budget) message represents the very height of fiscal irresponsibility. . . . The President renews his advocacy of the socialistic measures known as the Fair Deal."

Actually, Byrd said, Mr. Truman proposed to increased nondefense spending to the highest level in history, and he added:

"He calls for an increase in taxation of from $16,000,000,000 to $20,000,000,000 annually and still proposes to continue wasteful domestic spending which has added billions to the public debt."

Four Billion Cut Asked

Byrd called for a $4,000,000,000 cut in spending on non-defense functions of government and a $3,000,000,000 reduction in economic aid to Europe. Mr. Truman asked for $7,461,000,000 in cash for foreign aid programs without breaking down the figure into economic and military help.

The President's suggestion for a tax increase big enough to cover an anticipated $16,456,000,000 deficit in the 1952 fiscal year found few, if any, members of Congress with definite ideas on how the money can be raised.

It would mean an overall tax increase of about 30 per cent, and the President said he would like Congress to make the increases retroactive to last Jan. 1. He will submit detailed plans in a separate message shortly.

'Fair Deal' Protested

Generally, the lawmakers voiced sympathy with the idea of putting defense spending on a pay-as-you-go basis, but many cried out against budget message calls for such "Fair Deal" measures as FEPC, Federal Medical Insurance and a major part of the Brannan Farm Subsidy Plan.

Chairman Cannon (D-Mo.) of the House Appropriations committee said he never had seen a budget so "drastically reduced" before it was presented, but he added he never had seen a budget "we couldn't trim."

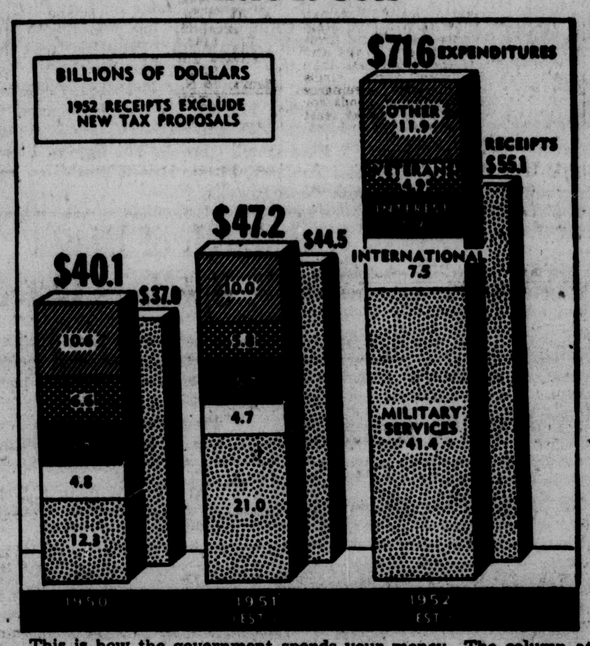

Teeing off for the Republicans, House GOP Leader Martin of Massachusetts and Rep. Taber (R-N.Y.), senior Republican on the appropriations committee, issued a joint statement saying:

"An examination of the budget shows that his (Mr. Truman's) entire socialistic program is once more included in the budget despite the fact that most of it has already been rejected by the American people.

"While a retreat has been ordered in Korea, the command is 'forward march' on the 'Fair Deal' domestic program."

Senator Bridges (R-N.H.), senior Republican on the appropriations committee, said he was shocked to find the budget "provides for the 'Fair Deal' under the guise of defense spending."

Where It Goes

This is how the government spends your money. The column at right is the estimate of expenditures in the new budget for fiscal 1952 (beginning July 1, 1951). Compare this with the expenditures for the past two fiscal years. (NEA Newschart)

Temple Emanuel's Harem Night Proves Hilarious Comedy

Approximately 300 patrons enjoyed the stage show and party held at Temple Emanuel, Saturday night, sponsored by the Sisterhood.

Men and women of various faiths took part in the comedy production, and the audience was of the same complexion, exemplifying the spirit of brotherhood which is one of the major projects of the congregation.

The show, written and coached by Mrs. Sam N. Mann, lived up to advance notices that there would be an abundance of comedy, and those who attended found relief from the tension of days overshadowed by an upset world.

Talented singers and dancers added a professional touch to the program that was generously applauded.

Refreshments were served by men of the congregation.

Will Confer on Defense

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—Lt. Gov. Frank C. Moore and 22 municipal officials will confer here next Tuesday on Governor Dewey's sweeping war-regimentation bill. It will be the first of several conferences the lieutenant governor will have with local authorities to explain the controversial civil defense proposal. The measure would give Dewey and a new State Defense Council unparalleled emergency powers over local government and the lives and property of New York's 15,000,000 people.

Europe to have the help of the soldiers of every nation willing to oppose aggression by the atheistic Communist of Russia.

'May Provoke Russia'

Referring to the Korean war, Byrnes said he is aware "some of our Allies fear if China is declared an aggressor and the Air Force authorized to bomb supply bases in Manchuria, it may provoke Russia to war."

But, he argued, "that is the counsel of fear which I reject. If Russia is ready and willing to make war on the United Nations, she will want no such excuse."

Touching on the race question which bears on state educational matters, Byrnes said "it is our duty to provide for the races substantial equality in school facilities."

It also is "wise," he declared, because the state constitution "provides there shall be separate schools for white and colored children.

Not in Conflict

"More than half a century ago the U. S. Supreme Court held that such a provision was not in conflict with the United States Constitution provided the facilities for the races are equal."

A former Supreme Court justice himself, Byrnes expressed hope that tribunal will turn down appeals in cases which seek "to abolish segregation in all schools."

He was critical of the national administration for directing the attorney general's office to intervene before the court in an effort to "declare unconstitutional any law requiring separation of the races."

"What the leaders of the administration do not realize," he commented, "is that if they succeed in abolishing segregation they will thereby endanger the public school systems in many states."

Byrnes who resigned from President Truman's cabinet in disagreement over various matters has previously accused the administration of trying to centralize government in Washington, he said it was encroaching on states' rights guaranteed by the Constitution.

Byrnes, now 72, said the governorship of his native state will be his last public office.

Where Allies Threaten Red Time-Table

Open arrows locate areas where U.N. troops are in action in Korea attempting to delay time-table of Red drive southward. Double arrow in west below Seoul locates area where a sudden U.N. drive recaptured three towns, threatening right flank of Red line weakened by movement of troops to east for drives in Wonju and Yongwol areas (solid arrows). Allied right flank is also threatened by Reds massing in area southeast of Wonju (shaded area) after infiltrating U.N. lines.

Allied Reconaissance Goes . . .

Armies—at full strength about 120,000 troops — were massed south of the Han river near Seoul.

American airmen spotted 5,000 Red troops concentrated southeast of Seoul. They claimed 1,600 were killed in bombing and strafing attacks.

2,000 Enemy Dead

The Allied warplanes resumed their attacks Tuesday and said the toll of enemy dead was boosted to nearly 2,000.

They hit supply dumps, railroads, vehicles and buildings occupied by Red troops. The planes knocked out a Red tank and field piece near Seoul.

A.P. Correspondent William C. Barnard reported from the central front that the withdrawal from the Wonju area began Monday morning and was completed in an orderly way.

All the narrow valley around Wonju, its foothills and its ridges, where see-saw battles had raged was smoking.

Aggressive Allied patrols maintained contact with the enemy during the withdrawal.

As they pulled out, the Allied troops burned villages and destroyed everything of value to the enemy.

told reporters, "to see that the President has asked for this huge amount, because it shows the determination with which the American government is shouldering its burden of preparation for all eventualities."

The Liberal Dagens Nyheter of Stockholm described the budget message as the strongest imaginable warning to the men in the Kremlin not to plunge the world into a new war which would . . . bring the end of their own regime."

It is proof, the newspaper said, that America is ready "to make the greatest sacrifice side by side with the other western democracies to win a swift victory in this war, if it ever comes."

Said Britain's independent, Liberal Manchester Guardian: "His requests for funds show the immense scope of America's defense plans."

No Solution Found

London, J an. 16 (AP)—Secret talks here have failed to produce a solution of the thorny problem which has divided India and Pakistan for many months, a communique said last night. The prime ministers of the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and Ceylon said no settlement of the interdominion dispute over the rich state, predominantly Moslem but with a Hindu maharajah, had been reached at their discussions with India's Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru and Pakistan's head man, Liaquati Ali Khan. The communique said, however, the talks had "narrowed" the points of disagreement. The discussions were held in conjunction with the conference of British Commonwealth prime ministers.

Irvine Was Factor

Behind the scenes of the entire project, conceived under the eye of Lt. General Curtis E. Lemay, commander of the Strategic Air Command, Omaha, Neb., and Major General Samuel E. Anderson, was Brigadier General C. S. Irvine, commanding general of the home bomber base, and pilot of the "Pacusan Dreamboat" on its 1946 record flight from Honolulu to Cairo.

Each plane carried the normal crew of 15 men and simulation of complete combat armament.

The B-36 is armed with 26 twenty mm cannons and has carried a total of 84,000 pounds of bombs, the heaviest load of bombs ever carried by one airplane.

Maintenance crews flown from Fort Worth arrived in England and were ready to service the huge bombers when they arrived.

After servicing, which included 21,135 gallons of fuel, normally carried in the B-36 wing tanks, and the maintenance needed, the aircraft are expected to leave England for the U. S. within 96 hours.

The planes will fan out on separate missions ranging from 25 to 40 hours on the homeward flight to Fort Worth.

visors' room of the court house in Kingston. Lieutenant Lawson is a veteran of 22 years with the troopers, an instructor in ballistics at the state police school, and a graduate of the recently held Civil Defense school at Troy.

In his introduction to the course Monday night, Lieutenant Lawson covered the organization of Civil Defense on local and state levels and the Aircraft Warning Service.

Other topics to be taken up include court procedure; duties of auxiliary police; traffic laws; panic prevention and control; fires and accidents; investigations; aerial, incendiary and atomic bombs, and precention of sabotage.

Lieutenatn Lawson stressed the fact that under his emergency powers, the governor may if necessary order all regular policemen to an emergency area. This action would leave the auxiliary police as the only law enforcement agency in a locality, and for this reason adequate preparation for police service is vital.

Byrd Proposes

members of both parties normally voice every January, but it is not always fulfilled.

Mr. Truman has presented five budgets to Congress, other than the one submitted yesterday. Twice it has exceeded his estimates. Prospects are that the current year's spending, spurred by the Korean war, will exceed the budget by more than $6,000,000,000.

'Fiscal Irresponsibility'

Ending a short-lived surface reconciliation following Mr. Truman's "Dear Harry" letter to Byrd, the Virginia senator declared in a statement:

"In my experience of 18 years, considering the perils that confront our nation, this (budget) message represents the very height of fiscal irresponsibility. . . . The President renews his advocacy of the socialistic measures known as the Fair Deal."

Actually, Byrd said, Mr. Truman proposed to increased nondefense spending to the highest level in history, and he added:

"He calls for an increase in taxation of from $16,000,000,000 to $20,000,000,000 annually and still proposes to continue wasteful domestic spending which has added billions to the public debt."

Four Billion Cut Asked

Byrd called for a $4,000,000,000 cut in spending on non-defense functions of government and a $3,000,000,000 reduction in economic aid to Europe. Mr. Truman asked for $7,461,000,000 in cash for foreign aid programs without breaking down the figure into economic and military help.

The President's suggestion for a tax increase big enough to cover an anticipated $16,456,000,000 deficit in the 1952 fiscal year found few, if any, members of Congress with definite ideas on how the money can be raised.

It would mean an overall tax increase of about 30 per cent, and the President said he would like Congress to make the increases retroactive to last Jan. 1. He will submit detailed plans in a separate message shortly.

'Fair Deal' Protested

Generally, the lawmakers voiced sympathy with the idea of putting defense spending on a pay-as-you-go basis, but many cried out against budget message calls for such "Fair Deal" measures as FEPC, Federal Medical Insurance and a major part of the Brannan Farm Subsidy Plan.

Chairman Cannon (D-Mo.) of the House Appropriations committee said he never had seen a budget so "drastically reduced" before it was presented, but he added he never had seen a budget "we couldn't trim."

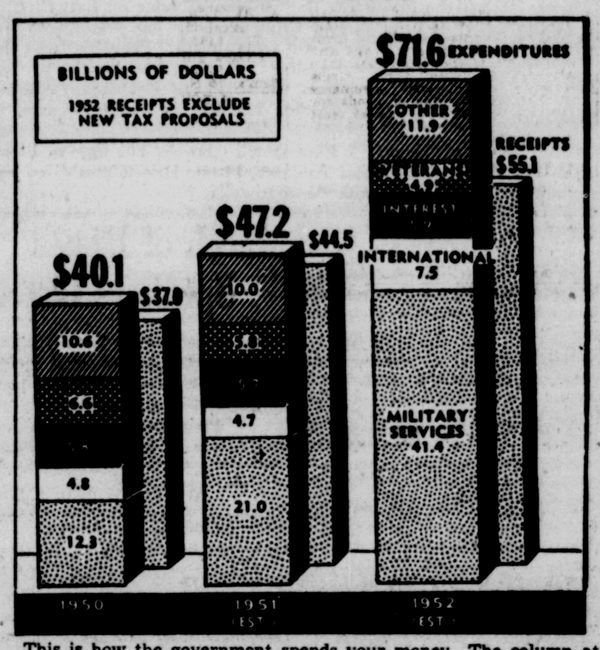

Teeing off for the Republicans, House GOP Leader Martin of Massachusetts and Rep. Taber (R-N.Y.), senior Republican on the appropriations committee, issued a joint statement saying:

"An examination of the budget shows that his (Mr. Truman's) entire socialistic program is once more included in the budget despite the fact that most of it has already been rejected by the American people.

"While a retreat has been ordered in Korea, the command is 'forward march' on the 'Fair Deal' domestic program."

Senator Bridges (R-N.H.), senior Republican on the appropriations committee, said he was shocked to find the budget "provides for the 'Fair Deal' under the guise of defense spending."

Where It Goes

This is how the government spends your money. The column at right is the estimate of expenditures in the new budget for fiscal 1952 (beginning July 1, 1951). Compare this with the expenditures for the past two fiscal years. (NEA Newschart)

Shriners' Ball for Children's Home

The entire proceeds from the annual Shriners' Ball, which will be held at the Kingston Municipal Auditorium on Monday evening, March 29, will be devoted to the Children's Home on East Chester street. Gordon A. Craig, president of the Ulster County Shrine Club, recently has announced the various committees, which are completing plans for a very successful social event. Proceeds from the ball provide the children at the home with comforts in their young lives. Among the activities provided are pictured above: In the upper picture is the girls' recreation room, where Gertrude Peterson, Jacqueline Peterson, Ruth Albright, Shirley Kelderhouse and Frances Harvey are busily engaged in projects of interest to them.

Clotheslines Are Raided by Thieves

Local police received several reports of thefts and apparent attempts at petty thefts Monday.

Two reports from Pearl street residents early last night said clothing had been stolen from clotheslines, and in one the only articles reported taken from a full line of clothes were a woman's undergarments.

The first report at 7:25 p. m., said someone had taken several sets of children's play suits and a child's dungarees from a line on Pearl street and at 7:53 p. m., a resident only a few doors away reported the undergarments missing.

At 8:55 p. m., another resident of Pearl street, considerably removed from the area of the other reported thefts, said two young men were in his car as he was about to enter it. They said they were in the wrong car and ran, and he reported that he had found a clock in the car had been loosened.

A report at 6:53 p. m., said that two young men had been "going through" parked cars in the vicinity of Green and Main streets, and at 7:35 p. m., a resident of Emerson street reported two young men running out of his garage.

Another report earlier yesterday said that someone had broken into the yard next to the Chevrolet garage on O'Neil street, had taken a car, "used it for some time and returned it to the yard."

No 'Me Too' Wanted

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 16 (AP)—"Me, too?" asked Dr. Ellen Wallenaiek of Houston, Tex., as dentists attending a mid-winter dental clinic lined up yesterday to register for the draft. "You, too," said the registrar. "Don't do," said Selective Service officials a few hours later when they heard about the incident and dropped her card in the waste basket. "Just an error," said an official. Women—not even denists—aren't being registered. Nor drafted.

Will Observe Safety Rules

New York, Jan. 16 (AP)—William H. Draper, Jr., trustee of the Long Island Rail Road, formally notified the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday that the line would comply with all the commission's safety recommendations. At the same time, the bankrupt road reported its operating deficit for the first 10 months of 1950 at $2,588,939. This would indicate a sharp reduction from the deficits of the last two years. However, L.I.R.R. officials warned that operation losses are greater in the winter months and that the figure did not include suits arising out of the Thanksgiving Eve wreck that took 79 lives. The 10-month estimate did include the $1,165,000 paid in claims for last February's Rockville Centre collision that took 32 lives. The 1949 deficit was $5,208,289 and in 1948 it was $6,016,680.

Gazette's Price Goes Up

Ovid, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—The Ovid Gazette and Independent says its subscription price, starting April 1, will be $3 a year, "strictly in advance." Since March 29, 1820, the weekly newspaper's subscription rate has been $2 a year, "strictly in advance." But after 130 years, said Editor S. E. Mekeel, rising costs have made it necessary to "reluctantly advance the price."

Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin (left) and John C. Wiley, former U.S. ambassador to Iran, meet in Washington to discuss a final settlement of Russia's $11,000,000,000 lend-lease account. Epidemics in Europe Warn World of Deadly Flu Spread

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

New York, Jan. 16 (AP)—The specter of flu is rising again, this time with epidemics in Britain, Sweden, North Germany and Belgium.

This specter has not failed to show every winter for years. It usually starts in a different place than the year before, but shows up in spots scattered over enough of the world to cause doctors to wonder—is this it?

"It" means a world flu outbreak. Despite at least three good, new medical remedies doctors are not entirely confident they could stop one. Yes, they can cope with epidemics like those now appearing in Europe, which affect towns, where even half the people get sick.

An outbreak everywhere is called a pandemic, and it is hard to realize what one is like, even for those of us who went through the 1918 flu pandemic.

In my home in Chicago, my wife, three children and myself, were stretched out in bed by flu in one night. In the morning I crawled on my knees, because I could not walk, to get them water to drink. The doctor was too busy to come. Our cases were not serious. But you never could predict who was going to get flu-pneumonia, which frequently killed in one or two days.

Many people wore masks, because no one knew where the flu infection came from. (We still are not very sure). In San Francisco everyone wore them until Nov. 11, the first Armistice Day, which filled all America's city streets with shouting, singing, laughing crowds. You can't sing in a mask. San Franciscans took them off. What no one knew then was that the pandemic was over.

Dr. Wilson G. Smillie, of Cornell, described a flu-stricken typical city.

"Not a wheel turned, not a factory ran, not a physician was on his feet."

Struck Entire World

This pandemic started early in 1918 in Spain and in the allied armies in France. In England the first wave of flu hit in June. About the same time there were epidemics in Japan and China. The second wave, more deadly than the first, struck seemingly almost simultaneously in every corner of the world.

In Europe and the United States this last wave came in the last week in August. By October 1 hardly a spot on the face of the earth had been missed. In the United States the pandemic reached its peak between October 12 and October 25, and then slowly subsided.

The statistics of illness and death are still a monument to the confusion. For the world it is estimated that 500 million, a quarter of the population, had flu with 15 million deaths. But equally good estimates says only 100 million had flu but with 21 million deaths.

In the United States it was estimated that 20 million had flu and that a half million died—plus or minus an error of 50 thousand deaths.

No one knows when flu began. But there are medical records of pandemics beginning in 1580. Then 1730, 1780, 1830, 1836, 1847, 1890 and 1918.

Caused by Virus

In 1918 the cause was unknown.

A clue appeared in 1928 when American swine were proved to have a form of flu like humans, caused by a virus, which is a very small protein particle.

In 1933 British doctors discovered a human virus, and named it virus A. In 1940 American doctors discovered another virus, and called it virus B. Both cause flu.

With these two viruses vaccines were made, and hundreds of thousands of World War II soldiers proved that the vaccine offered some protection though not complete.

But the protection from the vaccines is good enough so that doctors hope to prevent a pandemic. This vaccine is one of the medical remedies which did not exist in 1918.

The other two are the sulfas and penicillin, both for pneumonia. No reason is now known why these medicines will not protect against flu-pneumonia, just as against other forms.

There is one remaining worry. Doctors don't know what virus caused the 1918 pandemic. They can't prove it was either A or B. If it really is virus U (meaning unknown) then there may be trouble ahead.

Strike Is Predicted

New York, Jan. 16 (AP)—A bakery union official said today "it looks like a strike" here Feb. 1. Negotiations broke up last night with no date set for a further meeting. David Dubner, spokesman for the Specialty Bakery owners of America, a management group representing the 400 bakeries involved in the dispute, said discussions were "deadlocked" but could be re-opened by Dr. Paul Abelson, impartial chairman of the industry here.
